

ALASKA SPRUNG.

Public opinion has sprung a leak, and a few facts have leaked out of the fact when it states in the face plain as a noonday sun: The old fallacy that all proprietary medicines are worthless has been swept away, and in its place stands the incontrovertible fact that there is at least one remedy amongst the many advertised ones that will not only cure, but prevent the disease.

SOCIALLY CLEANINGS.

A Few Festivities Which Escaped From Our Card Basket. On Sunday evening, Sept. 30, a pleasant wedding took place at the residence of H. N. Bittinger, Esq., 829 South Twenty-first street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. Goo. F. Stelling, of the Lutheran church. The groom was Mr. Byron Clark, a well known Omaha business man who has resided here for several years, and the bride was Miss Louisa Bittinger, a sister of H. N. Bittinger, chief shipping clerk for Steele, Johnson & Co., and for some time past a teacher in our public schools. The happy couple left yesterday afternoon for a bridal tour, in the course of which they will witness the parade of the "Veiled Prophets" at St. Louis.

AN EXPLORATION.

The curiosity of the two young men was aroused and they determined to learn whence came these articles of clothing, because it did not seem possible that such a warehouse of dilapidated relics and filthy rags could be occupied by women. They plunged in. High to the ceiling on each side were piles of stuffs filled with paper and rags, with samples hanging from every rift. Feeling their way along the length of the room, they found the door at the end of the warehouse where an immense crane was conveying the lot, through a hole in the floor, almost a carload of rags in big bundles.

OVER THEIR HEADS.

It was tied the conventional handkerchief of different colors, which keeps the dust off of their hair, but here and there a stray bit of gray black and escaped from the tight folds of the head-covering. The women looked like a band of gypsies, and they chattered in their strange tongue faster than ever at the entrance of the strangers. Some were seated on piles of old cloth on the floor, others on benches, and some stood over large screens of wire in which were heaped a lot of rags, the worthless bits falling through in the screen.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Bohemian Athletic association picnicked at Hascall's park Sunday. They marched out early in the day headed by the band. One of the Bohemian societies went down to Plattsmouth Saturday on an excursion and had an enjoyable time. A most enjoyable social affair took place on Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. McClain, on Idaho street. This was a birthday party given in honor of the sixteenth anniversary of Miss Mamie McClain. About twenty couples were present. There was an excellent music and dancing and a splendid supper was served. The lawn was brilliantly lighted with Japanese lanterns and every provision was made for a royal time, which was certainly enjoyed.

THE GERMAN THEATER.

Triple Performances Last Night in Turner Hall. The German theater was filled in every part of the building Sunday evening, by a large and appreciative audience, drawn together to witness three of the most amusing pieces ever produced on the German stage. The first play presented was entitled "English," and was thoroughly side-splitting from beginning to end. Mr. Molchin's personation of an English lord was admirable, and evoked bursts of genuine applause on all sides. The reporter, who has traveled in England, and of course, been on terms of intimacy with most of the English lords, can testify to the faithfulness of Mr. Molchin's delineation of the beau ideal English lord. Mr. Baureis made a very charming Adele Frencher, a young widow, and Mrs. Puls-Alb as Mary, the servant maid, performed her part very attractively. Miss Thibaut in the role of Rosa and Mr. Puls as John were both excellent and deserve commendation.

THE WORM DISEASE.

Insatiable might be developed here. But in the third and last play, entitled "A Short Experience in an Office," Mr. Molchin in the character of a merchant and Mr. Baureis as clerk were much applauded and they certainly deserved all the applause they received. Mrs. Baureis as Lieschen acted very charmingly and looked as pretty as a picture. Mr. Penner as Reinhold showed up well and Mrs. Puls as Schweppes, a traveler, was excellent. The remaining roles were all well sustained.

THE WORM DISEASE.

At the conclusion of the Theban part of the programme the audience tripped the light fantastic with great gusto. On the whole the entertainment was a grand success and does great credit to Omaha's German theater.

PICKING RAGS.

Bright-Eyed Bohemian Girls Laughing and Chatting Over Their Tasks.

Where Our Undergarments Go When We Have Done With Them.

The sound of spirited conversation by distinctly feminine voices, running up occasionally into an outburst of laughter, came to the ears of a 13th street reporter one day last week as he stood in front of an old building on a side street, conversing with a friend he had met. It was a junk-shop, and one of the most irregularly dilapidated of its kind. The old walls were bent in all directions by the loads of rubbish crammed within, the windows were patched up with sheet iron, save here and there, where a bottle or two, or some rusty tin had managed to push its way through to the sidewalk. The floors were as bad as the windows and looked as if they were once that they would always remain so from the sheer obstinacy of age. In front of them was arranged an assortment of old stoves, such as are sold to the poor at "bargains"—for the seller, and just inside were two barrels full of cartridge shells to be disposed of as old brass.

The curiosity of the two young men was aroused and they determined to learn whence came these articles of clothing, because it did not seem possible that such a warehouse of dilapidated relics and filthy rags could be occupied by women. They plunged in. High to the ceiling on each side were piles of stuffs filled with paper and rags, with samples hanging from every rift. Feeling their way along the length of the room, they found the door at the end of the warehouse where an immense crane was conveying the lot, through a hole in the floor, almost a carload of rags in big bundles.

The women looked like a band of gypsies, and they chattered in their strange tongue faster than ever at the entrance of the strangers. Some were seated on piles of old cloth on the floor, others on benches, and some stood over large screens of wire in which were heaped a lot of rags, the worthless bits falling through in the screen.

In one corner stood an old woman, by no means so good looking as the younger ones, prevented from participating in the conversation by a sponge over her mouth. She was assorting the collections of the rag pickers just as they came from the street, full of dust and dirt, and she wore the sponge to protect her lungs and her eyes from the dust and dirt. She was assorting the collections of the rag pickers just as they came from the street, full of dust and dirt, and she wore the sponge to protect her lungs and her eyes from the dust and dirt.

"There is no need to conceal that," said the newspaper man, "we saw it plainly. It was a small diamond. What will you do with it?" "I will give it to do proprietore, of course," said the woman, "but in the meantime, I will keep it, and I will not let it go until it is worth a fortune." "Oh, yes, indeed," said the woman, "people are so careless. We have pins, now, and sometimes."

"How much is paid for picking rags?" asked the friend, glancing admiringly at a tall and red checked girl who stooped to swing her shoulder an immense load of rags, and revealed an unstockinged limb gracefully turned. "De women gets twenty cents a hundred pounds, and they pick 'em so fast they make much money sometimes."

"How do you assort these things?" The woman illustrated the work. Here was an awfully old and filthy worn sock. She threw that in a bin with others of its kind. The next was half a handkerchief that went in with the fine linens. Then a bit of crocheted and tucked, that once belonged to some petted baby. It also had its place. She was sorting only white goods. Some in the front room had the coarser clothes and were ripping to pieces dresses, coats, pants, vests and all manner of garments. A fine dust pervaded the whole atmosphere of these upper rooms. It seemed as if

Very few come from Nebraska, the country is not old enough. They are collected in Iowa, where the farmers are all very careful to save up bits of cloth, until the rag man comes around, and we pay them a good price, a cent and a cent and a half a hundred. The market goes up and down like any other. It is down just now."

And the men crawled out of the disheveled and brushed the dust off their coats, and viewed it was quite an interesting visit.

IMPROVING THE SCHOOLS.

The Board of Education Employs a Special Teacher of Music.

Drawing Slates and the Kindergarten Method for Primary Grades. A large number of bids on school supplies were referred to the committee on supplies, with power to act. Adjourned.

A Night School to be Established During the Winter Months.

The board of education met last evening, Messrs. Conroy, Hall, Livesey, Points, Parker, Specht and President Long being present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The report of Truman Buck, city treasurer, was received. It shows a balance since the last report of $90,451; collected in August, $771; taxes and licenses in September, $7,139; warrants paid in September, $9,087; balance in sinking fund, $1,389; bonds on deposit, $43,000.

The applications of Ada Shirley, Mary M. Barnes and Lillian M. Wilbur, for positions as teachers, were referred.

The estimate for work and materials furnished by F. S. Potvin, contractor, for the erection of the Seventeenth and Leavenworth school house, was allowed, $3,300, less 15 per cent.

The committee on teachers and text books reported a resolution recommending that Miss Lucia Rogers be employed as special teacher of music in the public schools at $110 per month; that the study of moral and mental philosophy be discontinued in the high school, and Perry's Political Economy be substituted; that 2,100 drawing slates be purchased for the children of the primary schools.

This resolution excited a lively discussion. The first recommendation was passed over; the second, in regard to the high school studies, adopted; in regard to the drawing slates, a number were protested against slates or any other kindergarten method, saying that if there was any money to spend it should be put into new buildings, which were much needed. It was submitted that without the slates the work of the teacher in drawing would be useless. The third part of the resolution was adopted by the following vote: Ayes—Hall, Gibbon, Parker, Mr. President; noes—Conroy, Livesey, Points.

Mr. Points then moved the adoption of the first section of the report in regard to the music teacher. Specht called upon the board to go around and look at the children growing sick and blind in poor rooms and miserable school houses where they could not get any fresh air. Mr. Copeland said that he had thought if music were introduced without the machinery of the board the experiment would prove disastrous in the Omaha public schools. The things that he would have done last had already been introduced and now the finances were so crippled that they could not afford music.

Mr. Copeland said that if he had thought this would not carry, he should certainly vote against the two other specialties of drawing and writing and elocution. Mr. Livesey insisted that music should not be introduced until new school houses were built. On motion of Mr. Conroy the salary was changed from $110 to $100 per month. Mr. Specht moved that $100 be paid for a thousand dollars he could hire the Bohemian band to play every afternoon in the schools. The resolution was finally adopted, Messrs. Livesey and Specht voting no.

Mr. Copeland presented the report of the committee on kindergartens, begging that Messrs. Livesey and Specht could be paid in the request that makes. The committee recommended that $25 be appropriated to purchase kindergarten material to be used in the rooms of Mrs. Leonard, 1st A.; Mrs. Perkins, 2d and 3d A.; Miss Case, 1st A.

At the invitation of the president, Mayor Chase, who was among the spectators, was invited to address the board, and he spoke in regard to placing a clock at a fine location in the front of the high school building. He said that some years ago Prof. Decker had raised some money by an entertainment for this purpose, and that the Catholic bishop had once signified his willingness to make this amount good. The mayor said he had taken many distinguished people around the city in his official capacity and that the high school was always the central point of interest, and all it now needed was the clock.

President Long said that $460 was lying in the bank, the proceeds with interest of an entertainment given a year ago, and that several gentlemen had offered at different times to add contributions to the high school clock. The salary of the janitor of the high school was increased to $125 a month, as the work has grown very heavy.

Mr. Gibbon submitted to the board the project of employing a man by the year as special carpenter, as the amount of repairing done warranted it. The secretary was instructed to inform the board at its next meeting how much had been expended in day work and jobs in the last two years.

Mr. Conroy said he had found when work was done by the day, and the board purchased its own material, it was always cheaper than by contract. The repair bill had been high lately, because of changes at the high school. Mr. Copeland introduced a resolution instructing the committee on buildings and property to hire a suitable room, and fit it up with tables and chairs for an evening school, and that a teacher be employed at $50 a month during the six winter months. The matter of a room was referred to the committee on building and property, with power to act, and the employment of a teacher to the committee on teachers and the appointment, with power to act. It is understood that the teacher will be employed at $1.50 a night.

On motion of Mr. Specht, it was decided that on next Monday all applications would be received for vacant teaching positions and janitorships by the secretary, and that they be elected at the next regular meeting in December.

The committee on buildings and property was authorized to contract for the earth being removed from Mr. Elgutter's house to be placed in the grounds of the South school to fill up, at ten cents a yard.

Mr. Gibbon offered a resolution that the committee on buildings and property employ a competent person to attach some device to the balustrades in the school buildings to prevent children sliding down the stairs. Adopted.

A large number of bids on school supplies were referred to the committee on supplies, with power to act. Adjourned.

NEXT DOOR.

The Fire Fiend Makes a Raid on the New Court House Block.

Destroying the Engine Room and Carpenter Shop. At 2:15 last night Captain Donohoe, of the police force, saw a faint curl of fiery smoke issuing from the stack of the engine house built by Contractor Coats on the east side of the new court house block. It increased in size rapidly and he ran to No. 3 engine house, from which an alarm was rung by hand and promptly responded to.

The engine house, together with the carpenter shop and some sheds, was destroyed. The loss will be two or three thousand dollars at least to say nothing of the check it puts on the work.

The Pullman car "Silver City" was detailed last night to take a party of Omaha excursionists to see the Veiled Prophets at St. Louis, going by the Cannon Ball route. Among the passengers were W. F. Bechel and wife, J. H. Ryan, Byron Clark and wife, Ed Maurer, John E. McClure and Joe Teahon, with others whose names were not learned.

The U. P. train from the west last night was nearly two hours late, delayed by the heavy rain of freight and stock trains.

Omaha is furnishing a good many foreign institutions with men who take important positions in them. Among the last to go is Dr. A. E. Van Camp, for many years a resident here, and recently located at Elkhorn station in the practice of medicine. He left yesterday to take the position of assistant surgeon in the Iowa medical college.

The Hastings Gazette-Journal says: "We learn from The Columbus Journal that M. V. Mouty, formerly of this city, and now living at Geneva, while attending the State fair, fell into a hole in the streets of Omaha, which had been left unguarded by the city authorities, and broke three of his ribs. He is now wearing a plaster jacket to keep his ribs in place and intends to bring suit against the city of Omaha for damages."

Pale, Poor, Puny, and Pallid. Considering all the ills that attack little children, it is a wonder that any of the poor little youngsters live to grow up.

There are children who are truly objects of pity. They seem almost bloodless. Their cheeks are thin and pinched; their eyes are hollow; and their skin is tightly drawn over their foreheads. There is nothing hearty about them. They do not enjoy their lives. They are suffering from the debility that leads to marasmus. Poor things!

Do a good deed for the pale, poor, puny, pallid child. Hand its mother a bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Here is life even for the most delicate, the most debilitated; for the child almost given up for dead. Iron in the blood is what the child needs, to bring it up. The little digestive apparatus will recover. The pale cheeks will fill out. The weary groan of the child will be exchanged for the merry prattle of infantile gladness. Your druggist will tell you what wonders BROWN'S IRON BITTERS has done for very sick children. It
