Mr. William Snyder sold yesterday to P. C. Himebaugh, Esq., an elegant C. spring, latest style phonograph. This is one of the finest and most attractive pieces of work Mr. Snyder has ever turned out of his shop, and is a vehicle that even a king might be proud to own.

The Rev. Father Beskinder, of Tasmania and nephew of the Bishop of that place, is at present in this city and will lecture on next Sunday evening at 7:30 in the Catholic Cathedral. The subject being, "Impressions made by travels in Europe, or thoughts suggested by the tombs of O'Connell, Napoleon and St. Peter." This lecture has been delivered in the Australian Colonies and California. One secular paper referring to the part relating to the tomb of St. Peter, says: "In this part of his address he evidenced the possession of descriptive power of a very high order, and when telling his hearers of the glory which now crowns the tomb of St. Peter, almost the perfection of word painting was reached." Admission will be free, but after the lecture a collection will be taken up in aid of the charitable object for which the reverend gentleman labors I. e., the rebuilding of the Cathedral Church of Hobart.

A spotted Comanche pony which the Indians presented to President Arthur at Fort Washkie during his recent visit to their country, passed through this city Tuesday in an express car bound to the Great Father in Washington. It was a genuine "Finto."

The injunction suit against the Board of Education has been withdrawn and the examination of teachers will proceed. There is some question as to how the teachers of drawing and painting are to be examined.

Charlie Swobol, of the Merchants National bank, discovered the skeleton of what he supposed to have been an Indian at Bellevue, last Sunday, near the site of the new college. It was pretty badly broken up. He brought home the lower jaw and part of ear, containing some ear-rings such as Indians wear.

"Sofy Ann," one of the hardest cases that ever darkened the portals of the police court, was up yesterday for disturbance. She is as black as coal and with as little beauty. The judge discharged her, and as she passed through the crowd she caused quite a laugh by exclaiming, "If you ever catch me in here again--I'll turn white." The impossibility of the metamorphosis was what amused the loungers.

The Board of Public Works vs. The Omaha Water Company.

Chairman Creighton Sits Down on Local Monopoly.

About six weeks ago a resolution was passed by the city council which was introduced to prevent the interference by private corporations with the work of paving and other public improvements. This was merely the carrying out of the spirit of a resolution passed several months ago ordering the gas and water companies to make all the necessary excavations on streets ordered to be paved before the work of paving was commenced.

But little attention has been paid to this resolution, and the result is that the work of Superintendent Grant and his forces has frequently been delayed not a little by the operations of the gas and water companies, which, generally kept right ahead of this paving work, Grant's gang following close on their heels and often being compelled to suspend work to allow the others to finish their job.

Chairman Creighton of the Board of Public Works, has been trying his best to crowd all the public improvements as fast as possible, as the winter promises to close in early and has pushed Grant among the rest, the latter being equally energetic in his endeavors to keep the ball rolling.

The work on Harney street has been badly interrupted of late and yesterday morning Mr. Creighton went to Mr. Hunt, who was heading the job of making connections with water mains, and calling his attention to the fact that he was delaying Mr. Grant and that he was violating the orders of the council, requested him to fill up the trenches at once. Mr. Hunt was, according to Mr. Creighton's statement, decidedly independent and paid but little attention to the request of the latter.

Grant had about 100 men at work and offered to assist the water company's men in filling up the trenches free of charge. In the afternoon Mr. Creighton again visited the scene of action, which was at the intersection of Harney and Fourteenth, and found that not only had the trenches dug in the morning been left still open, but that new ones were being opened. He remonstrated with Mr. Hunt, who denied him and intimated that he would fill up the trenches "when he got good and ready."

Mr. Creighton had some words with Hunt, and at length, losing all patience, proceeded to "go for him." As it is well known he had his shoulder bone broken some time ago, and is unable yet to lift his right arm to his head, but he used his left arm to good advantage, and also applied his technical extremities to Hunt's person with considerable force.

After obtaining some degree of satisfaction in this manner Mr. Creighton went to City Attorney Connell's office and consulted him as to the legal right of the water company to proceed with the work and under what public provisions and finding that his views were coincident with, determined to enforce the rule to the very letter, as he says he is tired of interference from private monopolies.

MOONSHINE.

Theory, Practice and Pay in Our Schools.

Teachers who Ask to Have Opinions of Their Own.

Superintendent James should kindly look "a little over" when he calls the teachers together for the purpose of relieving his mind from aberration caused apparently by "drawing" on his "musical" imagination. Teachers are entitled to opinions of their own concerning matters which encroach upon their legitimate duties. It does not seem in accord with "western" courtesy to intimate that because of this fact the school board is ready to receive the resignations of teachers differing in opinion, upon certain points, from the superintendent.

The office of school superintendent is a servant of the people and receives nourishment from public contribution and is not delegated with power to menace our teachers possibly because they do not approve or the manner in which the drawing and music instructions are given. From an impartial standpoint how can we help dissatisfaction in these particulars. The special instructors meet the teachers in a body and demonstrate to them the "theory" of their respective subjects; the result a few weeks is then expected to devote forty minutes to these subjects with their pupils, practically teaching the drawing and music themselves. That is, the teachers are taught first by the special and then teach to their own scholars that which the special instructors should go into the school room before the scholars and teach themselves.

As a school official does Mr. James propose this method of teaching, inasmuch as fair to all? Cannot he then, understand why dissatisfaction exists, and if so, is it essential that they should be told that their resignations will be received?

Another cause arises out of these methods for provocation. Enormous salaries are fixed for these instructors, and being given in the manner in which they are at present, the fact is fully demonstrated that by a few weeks of constant application, any teacher could become specially qualified to teach these branches, especially drawing, sufficiently thorough to meet the demand which the comprehension of the pupil's mind will admit of.

These instructions now call for $110 and $90 respectively per month, while the regular teachers, in order to become proficient in the teaching of these subjects, have spent years in study, and normal school, and receive salaries of from $55 to $70 per month, and they not only instruct in one branch, but in many. Hence in performing their own duties and in addition being required to practically assume these outside branches at a difference of $30 to $40 per month against them in salaries does not, in the nature of things, inspire the most unfeeling contentment. This is the cause of dissatisfaction and the legitimate reason why our teachers should not be menaced or deemed obnoxious and rebuked at their gatherings for having opinions of their own.

Mr. James should realize that they constitute our school system the wide world over, and that as educators, through whose instrumentality he also became an educator, they should be free to think, suggest, act and assist in the best and wisest method possible for the intellectual growth of our children, particularly when they have discretion enough to "keep their places."

A SQUAW MAN.

The Case of the United States vs. "Blowhard."

An Important Suit From the Winnebago Reservation.

United States District Attorney Lamberson arrived in the city last night on his way to the Winnebago agency to take depositions in the case of the United States vs. Harvey Peterson, better known to the Indians by the sobriquet of "Blowhard."

This is a case in which action is brought to set aside a patent issued under an act of Congress passed in 1853, granting lands in severalty to this tribe. The heads of families were each to receive eighty acres and the chief as much more as the agent might deem advisable.

Peterson, who is a "squaw man," or one who married into the tribe, managed to get his name on the list of allotments, and in this fraudulent manner obtained eighty acres of the most valuable land in the heart of the reservation.

The Indians got on "Blowhard," who, as his name indicates, is considered a bad character, and it is their indignation that this suit is brought, which will be heard at the next sitting of the United States court in this city.

Figures that Lie.

A well known bachelor of Omaha, who has for twenty-five long years been figuring for a wife, but failed to get one, finally concluded to give up the job and live out his few remaining years without a single branch to cheer his loneliness.

His wife, however, has not been a total blank for while he was laying siege to married people divorced, he was also laying up a store for posterity and future bachelors, which may serve to soften the "mittens" of coming years. Here are the figures:

Wives who have left their husbands.....	1,872
Married people divorced.....	4,780
Married people living separate and apart.....	191,093
