A FATHER'S LOVE.

He Forgives His Wife's Infidelity for His Children's Sake.

And Allows the Destroyer to Depart in Peace.

The following story, which comes well rouched for, and in fact bears the stamp of truth on its face, being stranger than fiction, shows that man sometimes exercise that "charity" which is said to be the greatest of all virtues.

One night last week a man went to an officer of the police force, and, calling him to one side, told him a queer story He said that he had married a beautiful woman, and had lived with her for seva big one, having thirteen cars, three of which eral years, never once suspecting her fidelity, in fact he would have staked his -Cold weather makes the oyster trade life on her being true to him, and would boom. A few days later he saw another circumstance which confirmed his suspicion and he, still preferring to be certain before he took any rash act, came to the officer, who was a personal friend, and ard he, still preferring to be certain before he took any rash act, came to the

The sequel would make a long story. He walked the streets until late in the next day and finally made up his mind not to ruin his home and disgrace the woman in her children's eyes. He passed the day quietly and in the evening when they were alone told her the whole story and that he was ready to forgive and forget, and that she must tell her seducer to leave town at once or he would not live to see another day. The unfortunate woman at length confessed all on her knees, and implored his forgiveness, and the wretch who tried to destroy the family's happiness, next day was told by the woman the whole circumstance, and is already outside the boundaries, even of the United States.

The Picnic on the Union Pacific Still Going On.

Another Train Demolished Sunday Night.

The number of wrecks and accidents on the various roads throughout the country has of late been alarming, and the Union Pacific is having its share of mishaps. The smoke from the last burning timbers gathered up from the wreck at Carbon had scarcely died away when news comes of another bad affair, this time nearer Omaha. The bulletin board at the depot telegraph office yesterday bore, under the head "trains from the west," the simple legend "trains all late."

The cause of this was an accident which occurred Sunday night to an eastbound freight train between Gilmore and Papillion, near the scene of the old Paw-nee fight. BRILLIANT WEDDING:

A Noted Social Event Which Occurred Sunday Evening.

A few days ago handsome invitations were issued announcing the forthcoming nuptials of Miss Annie Bernstein, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bernstein, of this city, to Mr. Nathan Rosenberg of New York City.

In response to these cards a large gathering of friends took place Sunday night at the hall of the Swedish Libraassociation in Lytle block, where the ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock, Rabbi H. Adelman, of Des Moines, officiating.

The bride is a beautiful young woman, and looked very charming in her dress of crushed strawberry silk, trimmed heavily with the finest lace.
