Blanchard, of the Erie railroad, in regard to their refusal to comply with the recommenda-tion to abolish elevator charges. This could not be done without arrangements with the B. & O. and Pennsylvania roads, unless the commerce of that port was seriously injured. The charges at Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston and Montreal compelled them to lighter grain at an expense of three-fourths of a cent a bushel and subject the grain to one cent a bushel additional charged by King Cetewayo's party having assembled the floating elevator. They hoped to be with the intention of rescuing Cetewayo able to bring about some adjustment from Inkanklabush, where he has been which would be equitable and satisfactory to all, but it had been impossible as yet to accomplish this result.

GAMBLING REVELATIONS.

The Secrets of The St. Louis Grand Jury Published.

Sr. Louis, October 16 .- The Post-Dispatch continues its revelations of the testimony given before the late grand jury regarding the gambling ring and the police department. It prints this afternoon ten columns of evidence of J. White, attorney of Police Commissioner Kinkead. He swore he informed Governor Crittenden that the resignation on Kinkead sending him another one; that after parleying and compromising, it was finally settled that the genuine resignation should take effect October 1st. President Tutt, President of the Third National Bank, testified he demanded blank resignations of two gentlemen who could have been appointed police commissioners on that condition, but they refused; that the idea and suggestion of blank resignations originated solely with Gov. Crittenden and were for his use. Charles Green, president of the fair association testified that Mr. Tutt demanded a blank signature from him for the Governor, but he refused. Ex-Police Commissioner Bland testified to some facts. Ex-Commissioner Kinwood narrated the circumstances of his resignation and how he informed the lovernor it was a forgery sent by Warren so they might get them in their power.
