Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's. Spiritualistic to-night. Music and dancing.

The delegates to the grand lodge of Knights of Pythias, held at Ottumwa, returned home yesterday.

N. L. Hall seems to have struck it well in opening up a news and cigar stand in the Pacific house office.

Edward Yule, of Stanton, Neb., was given a permit yesterday to wed Nellie Eldridge, of Council Bluffs.

D. Longnecker, of Walnut, has now only two fingers on one hand, a threshing machine having got the other two.

Max Mohr, of the Creston house, is pulling down his old buildings, preparatory to building larger, on property adjoining the hotel.

Rev. Mr. Gulick, of Wilmington, Illinois, will preach in the Presbyterian church to-morrow at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. Sabbath school at 12 m.

The street parade of the Wild West company yesterday attracted much attention, and considering the muddy condition of Broadway was very creditable, as well as being novel.

Mrs. Nettie Peas-Fox, editress of The Spiritual Offering, Ottumwa, Iowa, will lecture Sunday at St. George hall, corner Fourteenth and Farnam streets, in Omaha, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

A man named Wilson, employed at the furniture factory, caught his hand in some of the machinery yesterday morning, tearing off a portion of one finger, and mangling the rest of it somewhat.

Smith and Sternum the two men arrested for robbing a cowboy at the Broadway hotel, were before Justice Crowl yesterday, on a charge of venue from Judge Aylesworth, and their cases set for Monday.

"Death is but a kind Servant Who Unlocks Life's Door, to Show Us Those We Love." Spiritualistic to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon and evening, at 2 and 7:30 o'clock in Spiritual hall, Shugart & Benzo's block.

Second Spiritualistic society meets every Sunday at 310 Middle Broadway, Hood's block, up stairs, room 4. Mediums will be in attendance. Hours, 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. Subject of investigation, "The Life Beyond the Grave."

The home of an old lady living in Walnut was burglarized the other night, the old lady being chloroformed and the house searched and burglarized of $69. She lives all alone and is quite aged, and she did not recover from the effects of the opium for several days. No clue to the thief.

W. G. Holland, the main street liveryman, has sold out his business and business to W. D. Cole and George F. Maxwell, who enter at once upon the possession of the same, the firm name to be Cole & Maxwell. Both have many acquaintances and friends here, and a good business has fallen into hands fully capable of keeping it good.

Col. Abbott has returned from Northboro, Page county, to institute a post of the G. A. R., to be known as Gettysburg post. It is offered as follows: P. C., George E. Merrill; Adjutant, J. H. Wheeler; S. V. C., J. W. Holcomb; G. V. C., James Turpin; Chaplain, O. D. Woodworth; Q. M., J. Winnett; O. D., George Wolf; O. G., Robert Johnson; S. M., J. E. Poffenberger.

J. C. Morgan in last evening's Globe publishes his farewell, the financial embarrassment of the concern having forced him to lay down the pen, and look for other business. In his farewell he blames the Democracy for not giving a sufficient support to that paper to enable it to meet its bills, but still, for all that proposes to cling to the party. It is to be hoped that Mr. Morgan's next venture may prove more profitable.

Some of the country papers in this vicinity are now trying to help the suppression of the confidence business by paragraphs warning visitors to Council Bluffs to look out for sharpers. It is a poor advertisement for this city, but it can't be helped unless the crooks are caught and punished. They are generally well known to the officers, and they ought to be run in for vagrancy if for nothing else. That charge could be proved on them and they could be made to smart.

Iowa editors seem to be catching it all around, and they ought to form a mutual aid and accident insurance association. Best of The Harlan Tribune, a brother of the Council Bluffs news gatherer, thus states his experience. "Last Saturday night while I was in conversation with ex-Sheriff T. W. Chaburn he suddenly struck us a light blow in the face, discolored our left optic. We clinched and threw him upon the sidewalk upon his right hip, bruising his hip, ankle and right arm upon the oak walk. We undervalued the valiant ex-sheriff has been telling about town that he knocked down two rods the first kick. Just how he can reconcile that statement with his position on the sidewalk in three seconds after he struck is more than we can imagine. Then again, if he used us up so badly as he pretends, how is it that he could with difficulty waddle about town the next day, assisted by a cane. You will have to try it again, Tommy."

SCARED STEEDS.

One of Buffalo Bill's Cow-Boys Saves a Farmer's Life.

Mrs. Dr. Burroughs Thrown from Her Carriage and Badly Injured.

There were two exciting runaways yesterday. One of these was a farmer's team, near the Union Pacific depot. The horses became frightened by the buffaloes and other features of the "Wild West" show, which was being unloaded from the cars. The team started on a wild run, and the farmer, tumbling off the wagon, fell upon the tongue, where he was hanging and dangling, it seeming every minute that he must fall under the horses feet and be crushed by the wagon. One of the cowboys connected with Buffalo Bill's company, struck his spurs in his pony's flanks and away he flew after the runaway team. Running along side of them he caught the horses, and brought them to a standstill, and released the farmer from his perilous condition.

BADLY SMASHED UP. Yesterday forenoon, as Mrs. Dr. Burroughs was driving down Market street, her horse, who has been used to wearing blinders, but was without them at the time, became frightened by the moving of the buffalo robe in the carriage, and broke into a run. The horse dashed around the corner, out Broadway, and near the Ohio house the carriage was overturned and Mrs. Dr. Burroughs thrown out, falling with great force on the edge of the sidewalk. She was taken into the Ogden house, where Dr. Montgomerie and Dr. Paulsen were immediately summoned to attend her. It was at first thought that she was very seriously if not fatally injured, but the examination showed that no bones were broken, although she received numerous bruises, some quite severe. The carriage was badly wrecked, its bed being broken in two and the smaller parts splintered. The horse also received some cuts and scratches.

RAISING THE TRACK.

Should Not the Street Car Company Pay for the Filling?

The filling up of Broadway and Main streets raises the question as to who should pay for filling necessary to raise the railway track which runs on both streets. A year ago when a portion of Main street was being raised, the question was asked, but the street railway company said it was not for them to pay, and the city said it was not its place to pay for it. The amount was taxed up with the rest to the adjacent property. A few property owners protested, and it was finally decided that City Attorney Mayne and the company's attorney, G. F. Wright, would agree upon a statement of facts to present to the court, and have the question passed upon. The matter has dragged along since then and no agreed case has been submitted. In the meantime the work of filling has gone on, and the expense of filling where the track is has been charged to the adjacent property, amounting probably to $4 or $5 a lot extra. There has been no issue raised in the courts, and no individual seems willing to go to the expense of testing the matter. Now the same question arises in regard to Broadway. It ought to be settled definitely one way or the other. If it belongs to the street railway company to fill up its own tracks the property owners should certainly not be forced to pay it. The city is talking of paving these streets soon, and it is also important to know whether the street railway company is to pay for the paving of its track or whether the adjacent property should pay for it. The question ought not to slumber in the pigeon hole, but be brought to the front and decided.

"THE WILD WEST."

The Weather Somewhat Against the Entertainment, But Still it Draws the Crowd.

Bad luck so far as weather is concerned seems to attend every attempt to have an entertainment at the driving park. Yesterday the "Wild West" was presented there and the novelty of the entertainment, as well as the rare skill shown in riding and shooting, with the fame of "Buffalo Bill," as W. F. Cody is familiarly known, Dr. Carver and Captain Bogardus would naturally have drawn one of the largest crowds ever gathered at the driving park. The day was raw and damp, mud abounded, and many who would gladly have gone themselves and taken their families were deterred from doing so. Still the gathering was a large one, and the entertainment provided all that was promised for it. There were pony races by the Indians, the showing of the wonderful pony express, an exciting attack on a mail coach by a party of redskins, capturing of wild Texas steers and wild horses, the raids of cowboys, and scenes from a grand hunt on the plains. In fact the whole was not only a unique entertainment, unlike any other show in the whole country, but it was also a life like presentation of life and adventure in the wild west, giving a person a wonderfully true idea of what life really is. The wonderful shots made by Capt. Bogardus and Dr. Carver seem almost impossible to be made by human skill, while "Buffalo Bill" himself is no poor shot, though yesterday he was not at his best. Those who missed seeing the exciting entertainment missed much indeed.

DRAWING OUT DETAILS.

The Full Facts Concerning the Killing of Joe Devore.

The coroner's jury, consisting of D. M. Connell, F. W. Fitch and Frank S. Hesse, yesterday afternoon held an inquest on the body of Joseph Devore, the U. P. brakeman killed Thursday night while coupling cars in the yards here. The deceased living in Omaha, the watch and other effects on the body at the time of the fatal accident were taken charge of by the conductor, who took them across the river with him. This has called forth some criticism and comment, and some inquiries were made on this point by the jury. There seemed no suspicion but that these effects would be safely held subject to the order of the friends, but the simple point seemed to be the technical one as to whether the effects ought not to have been left with the body and taken charge of by the coroner. The inquest also brought out the fact that the use of different couplings by the company was the indirect cause of death, the lack of uniformity necessitating the deceased stopping between the cars to couple them. There were only two witnesses sworn, who testified as follows: Testimony of Chas. Finley—I live in Omaha; I was at the U. P. depot at the time of the moving of the U. P. passenger cars from the emigrant house to the dummy track. They then brought the main train to the U. P. track; I rode in the front car, and after the switch was thrown upon the train stopped with one foot, and before he escaped from between the cars they caught him between the platforms, and he said, "For God's sake, boys, give the signal to go ahead." Then it was ten or fifteen seconds before they moved ahead. As soon as they moved ahead he fell on the ground beside the cars.

I went to him and turned him over, he lay on his face. The other brakeman, Tom Sully, I think came to him. We then raised him to the platform. I asked him if he was badly hurt. He said "yes." After a time we went for the conductor, and he came, and we then carried him to the baggage car, and then we telegraphed for a doctor.

My business is oiling and repairing cars on the U. P. R. R.

It was not in my opinion the fault of the engineer. The train was very heavy. The conductor took his property from him after he was dead. The conductor did not wish to take it, but the men insisted on his taking it. One of the couplings is what is called the Miller, the coupling on the other car was the Porter. If both couplings had been the Miller make he would not have been required to have entered between the cars to make the coupling.

Charles Inskip being sworn, said: I reside in Omaha. My business is that of oiler and repairer on the Union Pacific road. I first saw Devore when he was laid on the platform. I did not hear him speak. I was there when the railroad conductor took the effect from his person. He was dead at the time. I don't know the speed of the train when it was backing up to the depot. I noticed the coupling of the cars. One was the Miller and the other was the Porter. Both had been the Miller he was working on, but he had been required to have entered between the cars to couple them. It was about 15 minutes from the time of the accident until he died.

The verdict was simply, "that he came to his death by being caught between the cars while in the yards of the U. P. R. Co., in Council Bluffs."

The body remained at Mr. Connell's undertaking rooms, awaiting the arrival of friends who were expected last evening.
