

THE DAILY BEE. COUNCIL BLUFFS. Friday Morning, Nov. 9.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: By Carrier, 25 cents per week; By Mail, $10.00 per Year.

MINOR MENTION.

See Joseph Reiter's fall goods. Additional locals on seventh page. Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's.

The city council deliberates again Monday evening. The Transfer club is to have a levee and promenade on next Wednesday evening.

Work has actively commenced on the bridge over Indian creek at Bryant street.

McAuley appears at Dohoney's next Monday evening in "Uncle Dan" of Jarvis Section.

Miss Ella Miller, a returned missionary from India, gave an interesting lecture at the Baptist church last evening.

Mrs. Kate Herbert now asks for a release from the matrimonial bonds fastener to George Herbert. She claims he has deserted her.

Leave to marry was granted yesterday to J. D. Clark and Ginevra Jump, both of this city; also to H. C. McGraw and Anna Stocker, both of Carson.

Seven and a quarter pounds of papers were filed yesterday in the case of Groneweg & Schenckgen vs. W. A. Campbell, sent here from Mills county.

The leading attraction in Abbott's court yesterday was the examination of the charge of unwilful conduct preferred against Mrs. Ed. Burke by her husband.

David Testevin was again booked at the police station yesterday, this time as "drunk or eccentric." His eccentricity, if that is what is the matter, is getting unbearable.

The time of the Superior Court was taken up yesterday in the further hearing of the case of Colby vs. The Cedar Rapids Insurance company, the question being of law rather than fact.

To-morrow afternoon there is the promise of much sport at the driving park. There is to be a race between Little Sioux and Dr. Cary's black mare Loresee. Also a contest for single roadsters for $100.

J. M. Dorr, principal of the public schools at Cheney, Neb., was married in this city to Miss Sarah Stocker, of Morningside, Ill., Wednesday evening and the happy couple left for their Nebraska home yesterday.

Pottawattamie Grove No. 23, Ancient Order of Druids, had the following officers installed last evening: Deputy E. Rosecrans; J. D. Nicholson, N. A.; James A. Herald, V. A.; Fred Spetzman, Conductor; John Stagg, I. G.; Phillip Thomas, O. G.

Deputy Sheriff Clatterback left last evening to take Anna Scott, the crazy colored woman of Carson, to the asylum at Mt. Pleasant. He also had the papers for the transfer of Levi Graybill and Justus Beichlen from Mt. Pleasant to Daventry.

Dr. Green's horse took a run yesterday down Broadway, and then into North Main running into its boarding place at Dr. Patton's livery stable, colliding with the front post, but fortunately not hurting him. The buggy escaped damage also.

C. J. Smith, who was arrested for stealing a gold watch from Mrs. Davis' second-hand store on Broadway and several buffalo robes from livery stables, has been held to answer to the grand jury, his bail being fixed at $500. Being unable to furnish it he lies in jail.

Mr. Charles Dodge, the agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, at the Union Pacific depot, was on Wednesday night married to Miss Alma Jennings, daughter of J. J. Jennings. Both are most worthy young folks and have many friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. Hamlin, of the Congregational church, in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties.

S. T. Walker rises to correct THE BEE. He is seeking to get the State book binding, and not the State printing. The State printing will probably go again to the E. F. Dodge office, but if Mr. Walker could be chosen as the State binder, it would not only be agreeable to him, but to many others as well, who believe that the would not only be well and honestly done, but who would like to see so worthy a man yet the position.

The next term of the district court promises to be a dry one, in one respect at least. The roof of the court house is actually being fixed. It will be a little awkward at first for the attorneys who have been in the habit on rainy days, of holding an umbrella with one hand, while gesturing with the other, in their arguments before the jury. The court room itself is also to be calmed and cleaned up before court opens.

Mueller, the music man, is on the jump these days, and is sending out instruments, musical goods, fancy goods, and toys in all directions. Yesterday, when we dropped into his palace store, there were about fifteen orders on the floor being packed for shipment, while Mueller himself, with coat off, was looking over fully fifty more, which had got to be filled, and all this, too, not counting the pianos and organs. He laughed and remarked, "There is no use talking, advertising does pay."

Yesterday morning the marshal held a public sale of the unredeemed property left at police headquarters to secure fines, etc. The sale was largely attended. The stock consisted of watches, rings and clothes wringers, old whisky bottles, revolvers and jackknives, slung shots, pocketbooks, false hair, old keys, paste diamonds, etc. The total amount of the sale was $49.75. In the eagerness to get bargains one fellow bid off a watch which had no works in it, while old knives, three for a quarter, went off quicker than watermelons near a school-house. This is the first sale that has been held in three years, the last being under Vaughan's administration.

The Bee has time and again called attention to the faulty and unreliable condition of the present cheap electric lighting system. The boxes were examined yesterday and out of twenty-one, six were found not to be in a working condition. It is high time that the whole system was abandoned, or else that new and reliable boxes and other needed apparatus be put in. The public as well as the department rely now, more or less, on the electric alarm, and it is certainly very unreliable. To rely on this unreliability is worse than to do without it entirely, and depend on the old fashioned yell of "Fire, fire!" which seldom led the engines astray. Better yet, though, to get a first-class alarm.

THE NEW DYEWORKS. F. R. Hurlbert has opened, at No. 24 Pearl street, a steam dyeing and French dyeing works. Plumes and tips, velvets, silks, satins, gent's clothing, merchant's shelf worn goods, all made as good as new.

DELIGHTED WITH DENVER. Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Harding Still lingering in the West.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Harding left Council Bluffs for the west there have been many inquiries as to when they were to return, and as to how they were prospering, their many friends here and Mrs. Dr. Harding's numerous patients being naturally much interested. A letter received by THE BEE states that on account of Mr. Harding's health they will remain at Denver during the winter.

At first his health was unfavorably affected by the climate, but it is now the reverse. Mrs. Harding writes THE BEE as follows, a letter which will be read with interest by the friends here: To the Editor of THE BEE:

Denver, Col., November 4.—I am wont this lovely Sabbath morning to sing a new song of praise to the giver of all blessings, while enjoying to our fullness the varied glories of his wonderful creation. Surely in this lovely region of country, where are spread to view on every hand nature's most sublime phases, may we exclaim, God is with us and for us, blessed be his presence. Yes, with us in the tiny flower and leaflet, in even the silently towering mountain that seems in its very solid stillness wholly wanting in life—but if we go back and note the many changes it has undergone in its formation through the progress of evolution, may we not ascribe to it life in that the moulder, the masser power, that controls all things through perfect evolution, has in it fulfilled his established law.

Yes, this is a quiet Sabbath, and "How sweet the sound of Sabbath bells, That float upon the air, To gentle caresses than swells, And wakes the soul to prayer."

Having just returned from an early morning stroll, cheered by the rising sun that promises another day of radiant brightness and welcome warmth, I can but think of, and crave the same for you there in the lower altitude, where now, even, is threatened the cold blasts of winter. Here there has not, as yet, blown one chilling blast to warn us of that which may come to mar our blissful content and pleasure. When I tell you, dear reader friends, that the sun's glad rays have daily for weeks been so warm as to make it necessary to raise high the windows to admit air during the hours of noon, you will readily imagine how grateful must be the cheering warmth, especially to the many invalids who still linger, wooed by the welcome retriever.

We, too, have lingered, thus retained; and feel to still continue hoping for the added benefit so necessary for my husband, whose fat failing health induced us to seek this region, so fraught with health-giving advantages; nor have we hoped in vain, for of late there'vet improvement has appeared, bidding us hope for much in the future with longer stay. And now interested friends, while it would afford me much pleasure to enter somewhat into detail of things in general, according to the measure of my knowledge concerning this really wonderful city, when we remember its age and position—and that puts a few years since it was simply a vast prairie, the haunt and unmolested roaming place of wild beasts, and now a city of wealth and beauty—where even the fine arts find encouragement, with a prospect that in the not far off future the present awakening to every possible need in the way of education and refinement will be fully met and even a greater effort manifested, with a zeal and determination not excelled elsewhere, except in the east, the cradle of refinement—and with this the aim—that many we not hope for in the years that are to come for this city of extreme youth, because of her foreshadowing possibilities?

If permitted and time offers in the future to occasionally through this medium commune with friends, until I can return to them, I shall be happy.

MRS. HARDING.

IOWA'S ARCHITECT. He Evidently is a Bell with a Tongue. But Says He has No King.

Mr. M. E. Bell, who has just been appointed supervising architect of the Treasury in place of Hill, has started for his new position in Washington, and while en route fell into the hands of the Chicago reporters, one of whom, a Tribune man, reports him as saying: "I go to Washington untrammelled by any rings of contractors, and free to act as I may think best for the interests of the government. When I first heard that Mr. Hill would probably resign I wrote to several prominent friends of mine and asked them to use their influence for me. They were Senators Logan and Collum, of Illinois, and Senators Kirkwood and Wilson and ex-Senator Kirkwood, of Iowa, to all of whom I have personally known, and all of whom I have seen the results of my work. Through them I obtained the position. The fact that I will be under no obligation to large contractors will be a great advantage to me, and will leave me great independence of action. I have already received communications from a number of Superintendents at various points, asking in instruction in regard to work, etc., but I shall not answer them until I arrive in Washington and thoroughly understand the character of my duties. I shall also have to make myself acquainted with the subordinates in the office and their fitness. It is a difficult position for a new man to enter upon, but I shall try to serve the Government faithfully and see that contracts are carried out to the letter."

INDIANA STILES. He is Taken Back in Irons to Answer a Foul Charge.

The Sad Wrecking of a Child's Life by Villeness.

Sheriff Kyle, of Plymouth, Marshall county, Indiana, arrived here yesterday after the man W. E. Stiles, arrested a few days ago by Deputy Sheriff Clatterback. Stiles is a young man but 28 old, and his wife, who seems to sympathize with him, came on also to accompany him back. The charge preferred against him is that he made a vile assault upon his wife's sister, a girl of the age of 13, almost a child in size as well as years. It is claimed that the girl's mother died about four years ago, and she has since been living with her sister and brother-in-law, Stiles being employed in a saw-mill at Plymouth. It is said that he first forced the little girl to yield to his desires, and then managed to make her keep still about the outrage, and that after that he maintained his brutal control over her until it was discovered that she was in a delicate condition. Stiles then skipped out, and a reward for him resulted in learning that he was in Nebraska and sailing under the name of Elliburn. He was traced to this city, and calling for letters addressed to that name was arrested. Stiles has been married for several years, and had a little child of his own, who has died during his absence from home. It was aged 16 months. Mrs. Stiles in talking about the charge against her husband, intimated that she knew he had been too intimate with her sister, but that he was not the only one who had trifled with her, and that the girl is naturally bad. Stiles seemed to take the situation coolly, and said that he expected he would "have to take a little jump on account of it," but thought it would be hard work to prove the charge, as the little girl was the only witness against him. While, with the iron on his hands, his wife standing on one side of him and the sheriff on the other, waiting for the situation coolly, and danced a little jig, and remarked that if he only had a fiddle he would dance still more, as they couldn't deprive him of all his liberty. In fact he appeared as careless about his grave situation as though he was going back to a picnic instead of to a felon's cell. The prosecution intends to convict him of rape, if possible, but if the evidence falls short, it is predicted that there will be no difficulty in proving seduction and adultery.
