ZACCHEUS FROM LARAMIE.

Robbed of a Trip to Europe by a "Friend."

An Acquaintance Formed at St. Louis Results Disasterously in a Bowery Hotel.

McAdams's Hurred Departure.

New York Journal, Nov. 10th.

Zaccheus Whitworth came to New York last Thursday night about 10 o'clock and came to grief in five brief hours thereafter. Whether, like his namesake in scriptural lore, he climbed a tree or not is unknown, but that he is now "up a tree," in common parlance, will be seen from the record of his adventures. Some weeks ago he left his home in Cook County, California, with a large drove of sheep, seeking to market them at Laramie, Wyoming Territory. A bloodless, weary journey over he found himself at his destination on Sunday, October 28. He at once opened negotiations with dealers in South Down chops and hides, all wool a yard wide. The whole lot of stock was readily sold for $2,600 in crisp notes and gold, which the joyous possessor took at once to the Laramie Bank, and purchased there with a draft on Liverpool for £3 12, intending to enjoy a trip to the old country, if not to locate there.

A stop-over ticket for New York was bought, and the happy ranchman at once set out for the Mecca of his hopes. A delay of a few days on the road added a little variety to the trip, and Kansas City was reached Monday last. At that point a pleasant but newly young man came upon the train, wishing to go to New York. He had not, in fact, sufficient funds to pay his fare, and Mr. Whitworth very kindly advanced the requisite amount, so interested did he become in his new acquaintance. In fact, the young man was no less a personage than William St. J. McAdams, of St. Louis, nephew of the captain of the Park police of New York--so he said. The recently acquired friend was soon on the best of terms with the Western ranchman. A medium-sized man, he was of benign face and facile tongue, in new apparently under thirty years. When they reached the metropolis Thursday evening they went to the Van Dyke House, at the Bowery and Bayard street, where both gave specimens of their chirography and were assigned to room No. 5, Mr. Whitworth footing the bill. A pleasant stroll through the Bowery and its adjacent boulevards was the next thing on the card. The clerk of the hotel says that the gentlemen returned about the solemn hour of midnight redolent with the perfume of mountain dew. The friends retired to their apartment, and Mr. Whitworth ignored passing events from that time until 5 o'clock next morning, when he awoke. Mr. McAdams was sitting up, and the limit of $32 and $58 in currency had vanished. The young man had told Mr. Whitworth that he at times worked in a cigar factory in the neighborhood of the hotel, but inquiry there failed to give any information concerning him. Captain Beatty, of the Park police, is not related to the officer. The unfortunate victim of this speculation had not money enough to telegraph his loss to Laramie. As he told his story to Captain Petty, of the Fifth Precinct, he was quite overcome. He is a swarthy, unbrowned man with dark tangled beard and speaks with the accent common in the north of Ireland.

The clerk at the Van Dyke House said it was not uncommon for guests to leave at any time of night and no track was kept of them if their bills had been paid, and he thought no blame could possibly be attached to the house.

The Poor Ye Have Always. H. C. Flanders, Supt. of the Alms House, Weare, N. H., certifies: "A helpless, afflicted woman, bed-ridden for five years, by the use of the great pain-banisher, St. Jacobs Oil, now gets from her bed and knits stockings."

Cribbing Corn. The depreciation in the value of the corn crop, from the time it is put in the crib until it is fed out, or removed to market, would, if prevented, be a handsome profit to the farmer.

One of the first requisites to prevent fermentation when thrown into bulk, is to arrange for free circulation of air through the corn and cribs.

This may be pretty effectually prevented by leaving on a large amount of husks and silks, and if these are moist from dew or rain one has first-class conditions for the corn to heat and mold in the crib. Hired men and careless farmers who have known crops of corn to keep well even when the crib is filthy with trash, silks and husks, console themselves in the continuance of their negligence and untidy habits by the remembrance of crops that have kept well in spite of silks and husks and corn blades abundant in the crib.

When they have received damage from heating corn, and there was no surplus moisture stored with the trash in the crib.

It pays to form the habit of husking clean. It is all a matter of habit. Filthy huskers and slovenly farmers do not crib any more corn in a season or accomplish any more work than they who habituate themselves to doing all the work as thoroughly and well as they know how. It does not pay to be in so big a hurry to finish the day's work, or the season's work, as that the work can not be done in the best manner.

The piles of silks and husks at the window will not only induce heating of the mass of corn, but invite rats and mice to harbor there, to destroy from ten to twenty per cent of the year's labor. But, as long as the weather continues warm, and the corn damps and chafes full of sap, the absence of silks and husks may not be enough to save it.

We have found it pays to crib only clean corn, and also to put in ventilators through the mass of corn. Our plan is simple and effectual. When corn heats in bulk, the gas and heated air will tend to rise, and not settle or disperse through the sides and bottom of the crib.

If the gas and warm air can ascend freely, they will carry out with them much moisture, but the main thing is the free escape which will reduce temperature and keep the corn cool. If this be the principle, then the plan sometimes practiced of throwing rails into the crib to allow the air to pass through will not do, as good work for us as will some devices that will allow the air to pass upward freely from bottom and out at the top.

We take two slats, three inches by one inch, as long as the crib is deep. We nail on the edges of these two slats cross pieces of inch boards six inches long, placing them four feet apart. On these cross pieces we nail two slats three inches wide, and we have an open box ten or twelve feet long and six inches square, open at each end; and along the four corners there is an inch space. This we call a ventilating shaft, or ventilator. When we begin to fill a crib we set one of these in the crib, half way from each side and in front of the window where the corn falls from the scow, as there is where corn packs the closest and heats the soonest. In a crib thirty-six feet long and six feet wide we have three windows, and we use three such ventilators, reaching from the floor to the roof, and the free circulation of air and ready escape of heated air prevents mold or heating of the corn.

The device is quickly made by fitting common fencing. Two fence boards will make a ventilator. They will last as long as the crib, if taken care of, and will effectually ventilate the corn and pay for their cost in one year.

Let there be care now to ventilate the corn that is going into cribs. There will be a rapid decline in the value of the corn, as its temperature rises during the next fortnight. Good sound corn is valuable feed, but moldy, heated corn is poor trash. Better let it rot in the field than in the crib, but a little care will prevent loss in either place.

The "Exposition Universelle de l'art Culinaire" awarded the highest honors to Angostura Bitters as the most efficacious stimulant to excite the appetite and to keep the digestive organs in good order. Ask for the genuine article, manufactured only by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons, and beware of imitations.

The Shoemakers on Protection. The Lynn (Mass.) Bee, organ of the workmen in the boot and shoe manufacturing industry of that city in a recent issue said:

There is a large and increasing number of laboring men in this vicinity who believe the high protective system now in vogue, and which neither party has the courage to remedy, a gigantic humbug. They have been told at every election that the duties are kept at their present high and unreasonable rate to protect workmen's interests and secure them high wages. They find that this is the cheapest kind of talk, and that the manufacturers who are active and earnest, who spend efforts and money to secure protection for their particular industries, are nothing near so anxious to give their employees good wages. They are beginning to make pertinent and hard questions. Workmen would like to have it explained, if high duties are for their especial protection, how comes it that the manufacturers are growing richer and the workmen poorer? By catering to the most narrow and senseless of all prejudices among Americans--the native American sentiment and prejudice against foreigners--the advocates of protection have been enabled to win the workmen's applause and steal their money at the same time. But they are beginning to inquire where the justice is in throwing the markets of the world open to employers to secure labor at the lowest possible rate, which they are constantly taking advantage of, while these same markets by unjust legislation are practically closed to them. By legislation the workmen are forced to pay for important articles of food and clothing in some instances double the natural price. This calling their dear workmen just before election and selling them extremely dear merchandise the balance of the year is a transparent farce that is beginning to be appreciated.

Whether you prefer the sea breeze or the breezy mountain air for your summer vacation you should not omit to provide yourself with a bottle of Angostura Bitters, which is the acknowledged standard regulator of the digestive organs. Be sure to get the genuine article, manufactured only by Dr. J. G. B. SIEGERT & SONS.

Keep an Eye on Them. Bank clerks and store clerks who frequent disreputable resorts--as many of them do night after night--are not worthy of trust, and their employers ought to be sharp enough to know it.

FOUND IN A BOX. Mr. John Ristman, of Augusta, Me., writes, May 10, 1883, as follows: "I have been afflicted for some years with a severe kidney trouble, and have noticed an article one of our papers of the wonderful cures Hunt's Remedy had performed in many cases of dropsy, bladder and kidney troubles, and finding a bottle in a box of straw packing, I concluded I would try it, and commenced to take it, when, to my surprise, I found that the first bottle benefited me so much that I decided that I would continue its use, and I kept on taking it until I had used in all six bottles, and my appetite got good, all pains in the back and side disappeared, and for some of my years (I am now 50 years old) I am able to attend to my business, and am strong and vigorous, as most of my friends and neighbors can testify that know me well. I beg to state also, that many of our neighbors have used Hunt's Remedy with equally good results, and one of my friends who has just purchased a bottle of G. P. Kinsman & Allen, of Portland, says he would not be without it at any price."

THE BAKER'S WAY. Mr. Alfred Nathan, No. 62 Lincoln street, Lewiston, Me., writes us, May 24, 1883: "I have been severely afflicted for a long time with indigestion and liver complaint, and at times all that I ate so distressed me that I could not bear the sight of food. I had tried a good many different remedies for my complaint, and they all failed, until one day Mr. Martel, one of our druggists in Lewiston, recommended Hunt's Remedy, as he knew of so many who had used it here with great success for kidney, liver, and urinary troubles, as well as indigestion, and upon his recommendation I finally concluded to try a bottle, and commenced taking, with very little faith in it. The first bottle helped me so much that I purchased two more, and it has done me a wonderful amount of good and cured me of indigestion. I can eat all kinds of food now, and can truly recommend Hunt's Remedy as a sure cure for indigestion, liver and kidney diseases."

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE. Mr. Geo. D. Bates, of No. 22 Cottage street, Lewiston, Me., a reliable and prominent citizen, imparts the following information, May 14, 1883: "Having learned of the valuable qualities of Hunt's Remedy in a practical manner, I beg to state that I consider it a remedy of great merit, and can most cheerfully recommend it to any one troubled with kidney or liver disease."
