THE DAILY BEE.

OMAHA.

Friday Morning, Nov. 16.

The Weather.

For the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, rising temperature and falling barometer, fair weather, south to west winds, and the temperature has fallen in the Ohio and upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and dangerous westerly gales continue in the lake regions. Indications are that there will be fairer and warmer weather Friday and Saturday in the northwest lake region and upper Missouri valleys.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

—No work was done on Sixteenth street in the paving line yesterday.

—Workmen are engaged in laying another track on Fifteenth street for the Street Railway Company.

—Young Phillips, the Saline mail robber, was indicted in the United States Court Wednesday.

—Chas. Shiverick has just received a new lot of chamber suits, and is selling them at astonishingly low prices.

The regular annual ball of the Iron Moulders' association occurs Thanksgiving eve, at Crounse's hall. It promises to be a pleasant event. The committee in charge consists of James Young, James Knight, Robert Kaiser, Wm. Kearon and W. M. Benedict.

—Mr. N. B. Falconer has just moved into one of the most handsome and convenient private offices in the city. It is situated on the second floor of his block and opens into the hall in the main building, and also into the cashier's and bookkeeper's offices.

—A number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. Drexell paid them a visit at their home, three miles south of this city, Wednesday. The invading party took with them musicians and a bountiful supper of oysters, and Mr. and Mrs. Drexell turned over the premises to them for the night. Everybody enjoyed himself so well that the first tinges of the morning's sun could be seen in the east ere they returned to town.

—The swindling horse trade mentioned in Wednesday's BEE ended better for the victimized farmer than he thought at first it would. When he became fully aware of the sort of game that was being played upon him he secured an officer and began a search for the mules. About 7 o'clock in the evening the team was returned to him and he was requested that no questions be asked. The mules were returned and the farmer still has the $10 that was given him to bind the bargain.

—The case of Daily, the man under arrest for stealing silver from the Smelting Works, will come before Judge Beneke this evening. Two burglary cases will also have a hearing.

—A report reaches this city that Frank Stark, advance agent of the John F. Ward comedy company, shot and killed R. D. Allen, the company's manager, at Vicksburg, Miss. Mr. Stark is well known in Omaha, having stopped here for about two months last fall. His friends here are [illegible] prised to hear the report, and [illegible] if he has participated in a trage[illegible] der great provocation.

—A telegram was received from [illegible] Wednesday afternoon to arrest a deser[illegible] the regular army, who, it was supposed, [illegible] arrive in this city last night. The police [illegible] been keeping their eyes open in hopes of [illegible] ing in that big $30, but the noble boy in [illegible] has not shown up and probably will not.

—Immense quantities of grain are recei[illegible] daily by the Union Elevator company, a[illegible] their elevators are kept running until a l[illegible] hour every night.

—Matters at the county court were entirely quiet yesterday.

—Twelve hundred and ninety yards of asphalt pavement were put down on Sixteenth street yesterday. If the weather continues favorable the work under contract will be finished next week. In order to push the work to completion a force of men will be kept on over Sunday, and all hands will be busy until the work is done.

—May, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Fitzmorris, died of scarlet fever at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The child was bright and interesting. Her parents are greatly grieved at their loss. They have the sympathy of their many friends.

—As Mrs. Peycke and a lady friend were driving on Fourteenth street, near the Paxton hotel, yesterday afternoon, the horses became frightened and ran away. The buggy was tipped over and damaged. The ladies were thrown out, but fortunately were not hurt. They were assisted from the wreck by a gentleman who saw the runaway.

—The Home Circle club will give the second party of the series of 1883-84 at Masonic hall this evening.

—The B. McAuley company closed its engagement at Boyd's last evening. The play was Henry IV., in which Mr. McAuley appeared as "Falstaff." It was given in a very satisfactory manner. Mr. McAuley as "Falstaff" made a good impression upon the audience. The support was very good. From here [illegible] goes to Marshalltown, Iowa.

A Surprising Discovery.

Physicians are often startled by remarkable discoveries. The fact that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and all throat and lung diseases is daily curing patients that they have given up to die, is startling them to realize their sense of duty, and examine into the merits of this wonderful discovery; resulting in hundreds of our best citizens using it in their practice. Trial bottles free at C. F. Goodman's drug store. Regular size $1.00.

Railroad Notes.

The new time card of the Idaho division of the U. P. took effect yesterday. Passengers to and from Portland, Oregon, may now make close connection in the Union depot at Garrison, Montana, with the trains of the Northern Pacific. This arrangement will be appreciated by the traveling public. The same time is now made from Omaha to Portland by the U. P. as from St. Paul by the Northern Pacific.

The new time cards for the Wyoming division of the U. P. go into effect the 20th inst. There are no important changes.

Three sleeping-cars were sent out for the Oregon Short Line this week. They will run between Granger and Hailey This fully equips the Short Line for travel.

The U. P. passenger train from the west, due at 3:20 p. m., was reported to be six to eight hours late yesterday.

R. B. Graham, treasurer of Lancaster county, spent the day in Omaha yesterday, and returned home last evening.

TRINITY CATHEDRAL.

A Beautiful Edifice Consecrated to the Service of God.

An Interesting Ceremony—An Eloquent Sermon by Bishop Garrett, of Northern Texas.

Trinity cathedral was consecrated yesterday, the ceremonies being of an interesting character. The church was filled by an audience composed of the members of Trinity parish, as well as of the other Episcopal parishes in the city. There were also present a large number of prominent citizens who came to view the beautiful church. Several clergymen of other denominations were present as spectators. The seats were all taken long before the opening of the services, and the congregation meantime feasted their eyes upon the many beauties of the interior, a description of which will be found below.

The consecration services were conducted by the Right Reverend R. H. Clarkson, bishop of the diocese, assisted by Bishop Garrett, of Northern Texas, and the Lord Bishop of Toronto, Rev. F. R. Millspaugh, dean of the cathedral; Rev. Messrs. Patterson, Williams, Doherty, Green, of Omaha, and several clergymen from abroad, one of whom was Rev. J. G. Gasmann, one of the former rectors of Trinity.

A few minutes after 11 o'clock the procession entered the cathedral in the following order:

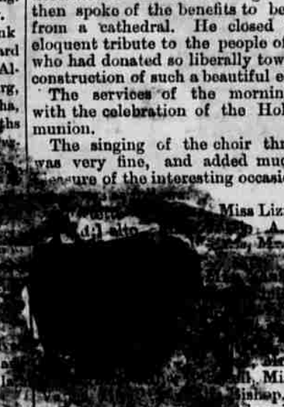
The bishops.
The canons and dean of the cathedral.
The clergy of other dioceses.
The lay members of the chapter.
The cathedral vestry.

The procession moved up the central isle, and the ministers, all in their clerical robes, took positions within the chancel rail. The consecration service was conducted by Bishop Clarkson, according to the usual ritual. Hon. J. M. Woolworth, chancellor of the diocese, made the formal presentation of the cathedral edifice from the congregation to the bishop, to be devoted to the uses for which it had been built. The bishop's formal acceptance was read by Dean Millspaugh.

Following these services came the usual morning prayer, after which the sermon was delivered by the Right Reverend Alex. Garrett, Bishop of Northern Texas, and was for some years the rector of Trinity parish. His sermon was an able, eloquent and interesting discourse, he having lost none of his old fire and logic. He first discussed the doctrines of the church in general, and then spoke of the benefits to be derived from a cathedral. He closed with an eloquent tribute to the people of Omaha who had donated so liberally towards the construction of such a beautiful edifice.

The services of the morning closed with the celebration of the Holy Communion.

The singing of the choir throughout was very fine, and added much to the [illegible] of the interesting occasion. The



[illegible] Miss Lizzie Caldwell, [illegible] A. Pennel, Mr. Thomas [illegible] Mattl, [illegible] ears, [illegible] Larkenridge, Mr. O. H. Gordon, [illegible] Wilbur, Mr. W. S. Hoaglan[illegible]

A DESCRIPTION OF THE CATHEDRAL.

Trinity cathedral is conceded, by those who are competent to judge, to be one of the finest church buildings in the United States. It is of Gothic architecture in the English pointed style, and is built of blue limestone from Illinois. The tower, not yet completed, is to be of crown imperial style of architecture. The cathedral building is cruciform, with nave, aisles, transepts, choir and a clerestory. The east end is apsidal and is pierced with thirteen high, slender windows. The tower porch is paved with tile laid in an exquisite pattern. The walls are at present very simply tinted, but there are no other decorations. The outside doors, presented by St. Andrew's church, Rye Beach, New Hampshire, are of massive oak which swing both ways. Over them are to be very beautiful stained glass windows set in rich tracery. In the tower entrance is a very fine alms chest for offerings to the child's hospital. The openings from the tower into the church are two and are covered with rich, heavy draperies of a golden olive color.

Upon entering the church one is immediately struck with the beautiful and harmonious appearance of the interior. The chancel rail, pulpit and font are at the east end. The rail is massive and enriched by bold carving, quarter-sawed, colored like old English oak and carved in natural foliage. The choir is reached by four steps. The opening of the rail is 10 feet, and the rail on each side terminates in very handsome posts, also deeply carved. The rail on the north side is also broken by the pulpit, entrance into which is from the choir. The pulpit is the shape of a wine glass, the stem standing on the floor of the nave. It has five panels, each with a canopy in tabernacle work, and in the niches are statues, the centre being of our Lord in the act of teaching, the others of the four Evangelists. The pulpit is supplied with a brass book-rest. The rail and the pulpit are the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Kountze in memory of their two children. On the south side of the steps into the choir is the marble font. The base is gray, from which springs a dark octagon column, around which are eight small columns, the capitals of which are beautifully cut in natural foliage, each differing from the others. The bowl is pure white Italian statuary marble in octagon form, each face being richly carved with an emblem. It is the gift of Mrs. Fred Davis in memory of her two little boys. Within the rail on the south of the opening stands the brass lectern, which, together with the candelabra in the chancel, were presented by cousins of the Bishop, who live at Potsdam, in New York. The litany desk which stands at the foot of the steps on the floor of the nave was presented by the clergy of Dakota in remembrance of Bishop Clarkson's missionary episcopate in that jurisdiction.

The chair seats are arranged on each side of the passage to the altar and face inward. They were the gift of Mrs. Bean in memory of her late husband, who at the time of his death was a member of the vestry.

On the north side of the chancel is the Bishop's throne. Rising about the seat to a height of fourteen feet is a canopy in three gables of openwork. In the front gable is set a mitre, in that facing the nave the arms of the Bishop, and in that facing the altar, the arms of Canterbury, from which see all others of the Anglican communion have proceeded.

Beyond the throne are four canon's stalls. The throne and attached stalls are given by Mrs. Woolworth in memory of her son, who bore the name of the Bishop.

On the south side is the dean's stall, which is like the throne, the gable in front bearing the arms of the cathedral chapter, that facing the nave the arms of the dean, and that facing the altar the arms of the chancellor of the diocese.

There also four canon's stalls on the altar side of the Dean's stall. All are the gift of Mr. C. P. Woolworth and Miss Jennie Woolworth in memory of three little sisters The altar rail of brass was presented by Mrs. Capt. Bourke as a thank offering for recovery from illness.

The credence was presented by Mrs. Webster Snyder for a little girl who was buried in New York. It is a bracket supporting a table three feet long, the corners being cut off so as to present five faces. Towards the altar the table is extended and forms a piscena for the washing of the holy vessels. Over the credence rises a canopy of open work with five faces, rising in graceful proportions to a height of fourteen feet from the floor, and surmounted by a jeweled star

The altar is seven and a half feet long. Around the top is curved a wreath of wheat, grape-vine with fruit and passion flowers. Each end is finished in a deep panel and the front is divided into three panels. The panels are filled with bronze relieves modeled by Sibell, a sculptor of New York. These relieves are two inches and over deep and twenty-two inches square. The subject of the north end is the Annunciation, in which the Virgin is kneeling and turned partially around, while back of her is the angel bearing the fleur de lis and announcing her coming glory. In the extreme upper part is the dove in the midst of a cloud of angels, and from which the light streams upon the maiden. The background is two windows—that back of the Virgin has the draperies hanging down; that back of the angel has them drawn apart. The whole forms a most pathetic picture. The next tablet, which is in front, is Gethsemane. Jesus is kneeling on the mount. At the foot of the mount are the three sleeping disciples, and in the sky is the angel coming to comfort the stricken One. The centre panel is the crucifixion. It presents our Lord after His death. At the foot of the cross on one side is the Roman soldier, whose countenance is cast down with wondering sorrow. Mary Magdalen is kneeling as catching in a napkin the sacred blood flowing from the feet, while John and the mother stand on the other side. The next tablet is the appearance of the risen Lord to Mary in the garden, with the tomb on one side, and the angel sitting by it. The bronze in the south end of the altar is the Ascension. Above and beside the altar is the reredos. The part above the altar and the retabel is divived into five panels deeply recessed and richly carved. The canopy, besides the other work, bears a most lovely angel in the upper part, and is surmounted by a cross at the height of sixteen feet from the altar floor. On each side of the altar the reredos is of three arches which are open so that walls beyond are visible. The columns of the reredos are black, the capitals are exquisitely carved and it is enriched with pinnacles and finials in elaborate carvings. All this work was erected by Mr. Woolworth in memory of his wife, who died here sixteen years ago.

At each end of the altar stands a large candelabra. The altar is beautifully decorated with a superb gilded cross in the center panel of the reredos, while the other panels have very handsome vases. These are the gifts of Mrs. Jerome, of New York, and Miss Drummond, of Chicago. On this occasion the new alms basin will be used for the first time. It is a massive silver and richly gilt basin presented by the Misses Clarkson, of Potsdam. The communion service of silver was the gift some years ago of the Bishop's aunt, the late Miss Clarkson, of New York.

The organ stands in a chamber on the south end of the choir. The books for the chancel, including the service book for the litany desk, and the Bible for the lectern are very elegant and are from Mrs. Turner, of Chicago. The thirteen chancel windows are full figures of our Lord and twelve apostles. They are memorials—the center one of our Lord for Mrs. Caldwell's two children, the St. John for Anna Barkalow, St. Philip for Mrs. Dickey, St. Matthew for Mrs. Chase, St. Bartholomew for the mother of the Misses Butterfield, St. Simon for Mrs. Patterson, St. Thaddeus for the Rev. Dr. Twing, St. James from the children baptized by Bishop Clarkson at St. James church, Chicago; St. Paul from the children of the church at Brainerd, Minn; St. Peter for Dr. Brick, St. Thomas for Bishop Hobart, St. Andrews for Miss Peabody, St. James the Less for Mrs. Poppleton's little girl.

The large window in the north transept is in memory of Bishop Selwin, the first Bishop of New Zealand, and at his death Bishop of Lichfield, England, and was presented by the family of Clarksons of Potsdam. The large window in the south transept is in memory of Bishop Patteson, of one of the Melanesian Islands, and martyred thereon, and is the gift of Miss Owen, of New York. The large west window is in memory of Bishop Kemper, of Wisconsin.

The windows in the aisles are of Mrs. Windsor's husband, a clergyman of the church, and of Bishop Clarkson's father and mother, Mrs. Lyman Richardson's children, Colonel Thornburgh and his little boy, the child of Major Morton, of the army, the wife of J. Sterling Morton, and the three exquisite windows which should be called "the three sisters," of William B. Ogden, Malon D. Ogden and Mrs. Sheldon, their sister. The transoms of the tower are of Mr. Stein, Mr. Roddis, and Col. Brownson's children, and the windows in the north porch are for the mother and sisters of Mrs. Lacy, and the beautiful boy of Wm. L. Adams. Two are temporary, but soon one will be filled to the memory of Mrs Boyd's little girl and the other to the memory of the children of Mrs. H. K. Smith. The clere-story windows are the gifts of the parishes and schools of the diocese.

PAVEMENT AND SEWERAGE.

Wanted by the Property Owners of Farnam Street.

A meeting of the property owners of Farnam street was held last evening at parlors of the First National Bank, to discuss the matter af paving. The meeting was largely attended.

Samuel Herman, Esq., was called to the chair and Henry W. Yates chosen secretary.

After a preliminary talk, it was voted to sign a petition to the council asking that the street be paved as early as practicable.

A resolution was offered, and after a lively discussion of the merits and cost of various pavements, was adopted, to have Farnam street paved with asphalt.

Mr. James Creighton urged the construction of a storm sewer from Fifteenth street to the river, at the expense of the property-owners.

City Engineer Rosewater was called upon to explain the character and cost of the sewer. His estimates place the cost at about $75 to each 22-foot lot.

Mr. Holdredge proposed that the storm sewer should terminate at the corner of Eighth and Farnam.

This was opposed by quite a number, and was finally voted down.

The original motion prevailed, and the petition was signed by nearly all present.

It was also the sense of the meeting that the council should be asked to widen the sidewalks on Farnam street to twenty feet.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Yates, Ben Smith and Herman Kountze was appointed to procure additional signers to the petition and to transmit the same to the council.

The meeting then adjourned,

General Estabrook has returned from Chicago, where he has been spending a month visiting relatives.

Mr. W. L. Parrotte, of the firm of W. L. Parrotte & Co., is entertaining his sister, Miss Nellie Parrotte, of Russellville, Illinois.

Julius Festner returned home Wednesday from a trip to Chicago, Detroit, Canada and Davenport. He went right to work at his old position as manager of his father's establishment and The Nebraska Tribune.

Hoyt Sherman, jr., traveling agent of the U. P. railroad at Chicago, arrived in this city Wednesday with a party of thirty-five people from Owatona, Minn. They were enroute for Colton, Col., where they will settle, and left by special car for that place last evening.

MEXICAN VETERANS.

A Pleasant Re-Union at the Paxton Hotel,

Between Ex-Senator Caldwell, of Kansas, and D. B. Houck, of Omaha.

A pleasant incident occurred at the Paxton Hotel the other evening. Ex-United States Senator Caldwell, of Kansas, while engaged in conversation with Judge Hawes, inquired of the Judge if he knew a man in Omaha named Dorsey B. Houck. The Judge replied that he did.

"I would like to see him," said Mr. Caldwell, "he and I slept under the same blanket during the Mexican war, and I have not seen him for thirty-six years."

Judge Hawes said that he would hunt Houck up next morning and bring him to the hotel. The next morning the Judge and Mr. Houck put in an appearance at the hotel, Mr. Houck simply having been told that a man wanted to see him there.

Mr. Caldwell approached him and said, "Were you at Chapultepec?"

"Yes; who are you?" asked Houck.

"I was in the same company with you, and my father, who commanded the company, was shot at Chapultepec and died two days afterwards."

"Your name is Caldwell."

"And your name is Houck."

Both men then shook hands in a cordial manner, and adjourned to the bar room with a party of friends, and after a liberal supply of liquids had been disposed of, Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Houck sat down by themselves and fought their battles over. They were all through the Mexican war together, and their reunion was one that will be remembered by them. Mr. Caldwell has become a prominent and wealthy man, being now the president of the Caldwell wagon manufacturing company and also of the Idaho and Oregon Improvement company. Mr. Houck, however, remains a poor man, although he is in fairly comfortable circumstances. Mr. Caldwell asked him what he was engaged in, and he replied that he was driving a city express wagon. "Houck, I want to make you a little present," said Mr. Caldwell, "I am going to have made and sent to you the finest wagon that can be built at my works, and I shall have it done as soon as possible. It will be the finest in Omaha."
