upon the honesty, integrity and fair dealing of "The Lousiana State Lottery," and the many doubts expressed as to the drawing and payment of prizes by this institution, we deem it but simple justice to make this voluntary statement regarding our dealings and experiences with the company, and to certify to the fact of having drawn and having been paid in full the prizes opposite our respective names.

These price tickets were purchased of Col. R FRANK MOORE, formerly of New York, but now of Chicago to whose honest, straightforward, conscientious manner of conducting busicess, we bear willing testimony.

He never made a statement not absolutely true; nover made a promise not strictly fulfilled, in connection with, and relative to the operations of "The Louisiana State Lottery." He never encourages the purchase of tickets by parties who are unable to take the risk or lose the amount of investment. On the contrary he tells you not to invest if you haven't the money to lose, and certainly where there is no compulsion there should be no complaint if the investor fails to draw a prize.

traction of national bank circulation of about $60,000,000 per annum. It is evident that unless there are additional legislation bonds held for security of circula-tion will rapidly diminish. New legislation may, however, postpone payment of the public debt or cause the profit on circulation to increase sufficiently to induce national banks to invest in long 4's, which are not to mature for 24 years. Contraction of bank circulation may be woided by the reduction of the redundant revenue and there is no doubt this is the true policy. Contraction of bank circulation may also be avoided by the conversion of long bonds into 3 per cents by offering inducements to holders of bonds to exchange them for 3 per cents to mature 1907, the government paying holders thereof a reasonable amount for the difference in value. The premium to be paid the holders of these long bonds may be considerably reduced by providing the circulation to be issued or by postponement of the time of their payment. The comptroller believes a proposition to convert long bonds into threes more desirable than the proposition to increase the rate of circulation. and that large contraction of the currency now imminent should not be allowed to take place too rapidly or the deficiency caused by such contraction will oe replaced by a substitute less desirable than the bank notes now in circulation. Knox calls attention to the statement that the contraction of the currency may be supplied by imported gold, the annual product of the mines, or by ver certificates are now issued, and shows the excess of gold imports growing smaller, and the probability of gold now held by the United States will not long hence be greatly diminished. The substitution of the standard silver dollar for retired circulation would be simply the introduction of inferior currency. the introduction of inferior currency. In answer to the proposition that treasury notes as well as silver certificates may be issued in place of bank notes to be returned, the comptreller says the treasury is embarrassed with a revenue greater than it needs and greater thau it can judiciously disburse. Under such circum stances the authority of congress to print additional treasury notes will lead to still greater embarrassment at a time when the most important subject before congress is the reduction of the redundant revenue and employment of the surplus of an overflowing treasury. If it were possible to issue additional treasury notes when the revenues of the government is so much greater than its expenditures and simultareously with yearly addition of silver dollars now aucouncil ministers decided to send 2,000 tion of a railway to a port on Hudson's thorized by law, it is evident such steps gendarmes and 6,000Bedouins to Sunkim. bay, and recommends the formation of would lead plainly from gold to silver With that object in view negatiations an association outside of any existing standard.
