There was almost every conceivable condition of man in that vast multitude. There was -Himebaugh & Taylor, Omaha, sell Buffalo the gentleman, who basks in luxury, and U. S. Standard scale. Write for prices, tf there was the bootblack, who was obliged to sleep in the street because of having "put up" his last cent to see the "knockers." The sporting fraternity were out in full force. There were two or three ladies present who really looked lonesome among the 2,000 men.

THE BEE reporter walked back of the scenes, and upon inquiring for Sullivan was informed than he was in his dressing room, and having determined to "beard the lion in his den," we approached and tapped upon the door, which upon being opened revealed Sullivan seated upon a chair smoking a cigar. He was surrounded by his cabi net, who all greeted us pleasantly. # THE CHILD'S HOSPITAL.

The Dedication of the New Institution of Charity.

ts History and Present Condition -Comfortable Home for Sick or Needy Children.

The Child's Hospital, just completed, was formally dedicated last evening with a religious service conducted by Bishop Clarkson. The service was brief and simple. Short addresses were made by some of Omaha's citizens. Many friends see him and then turn and walk off, they of the institution were present. They expressed themselves well pleased with the home-like appearance of the place. The occasion was a pleasant one, and marks the inauguration of what will be one of the best institutions in the west. There is no doubt that the Child's Hos-Look at the advertised large stocks of pital will do a great work of charity. Store open until 9 p. and some ample contributions from the east. The work that it does in the time to come will speak for itself.

THE INSTITUTION. The Child's hospital is on the north side of Dodge street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth. It is not a very large building, but has an attractive exterior appearance. It is situated in a compact block of residences, and is not so promi-nent as it would be if it were on a more commanding site. But with the object for which the institution was built this will make no difference. The building has three stories above ground and commodious basement. In this base ment are the dispensary, laundry, boiler room, with the kitchen and children's dining room in the rear. Two separate stairways lead up to the main floor.

On the main floor, in front, are the in Cheyenne Leader says: As Mr. Hugus firmary and sisters' room. The linen who, having got into hot water themselves, have trumped this charge up in with which the needy children will be furnished, are also on this floor. There is now on hand a very good supply of clothing, which has been donated by the good people of Omaha and other cities. The attic is not yet finished, but probably will be next year. When the attic rooms are unished the accommodations of the institution will be considerably increased.

ITS OBJECT. The institution is intended as a hospi tal and home for sick and needy children. Those who are sick will, of course, have the preference in being received. Everything that could be done that he found his partner was a trifle has been done to make the place a model home. It is nicely lighted. It has winbasement to attic. Large chandeliers handsome but not showy, are in the main rooms, the entire building being lighted by gas. The rooms are neat and bright. In a short time, as the work of

A look through the institution will give the varitor a better idea of its aim and work than could a column of description. It is in charge of Sister Sarah, who came here from New York about two years ago, when the hospital was founded. She is pleased at all times to receive visitors and show them the cheerful home she has in charge.

ITS HISTORY. The Child's hospital was started from a small contribution. Two years ago last spring a lady living in Pittsburg, Pa. sent to Mrs. Clarkson, of Omaha, wife of the bishop, $25, to be used for some charitable purpose. It had long been the wish of Mrs. Clarkson to found a children's hospital. The bishop suggested that this contribution was her opportunity. Accordingly, December 6 1881, a hospital was opened in a little frame building on the site of the present institution. Sister Sarah came The petition of property owner on pital remained in the small frame building for a year and a half. It became inadequate for the accommodation of the applicants. One year ago it was determined to build anew and larger. A friend of Mrs. Clarkson, in New York, gave $5,000 to be used for the erection of a suitable building. Sister Sarah energetically began the work of soliciting, and has secured $3,000 in Omaha. Other states and other towns in the state have also contributed. Recently a bazaar for the sale of fancy articles and holiday gifts was held in this city, and the receipts given to the Child's Hospital. The articles sold at the bazaar had been contributed for that purpose. In this way $2,400 was added to the hospital fund. The present building was commenced last May. It is now nearly finished, but is not entirely furnished. It will cost when completed about $10,000. nearly paid for, there being about $1,000 yet to raise. The fund will be kept open, and an opportunity to contribute will be given to those who have not yet been called upon.

When the present building was begun the hospital was closed. There are now no patients, but in about two weeks the 11 00 institution will be open to all. It is under the charge of the Protestant Episco pal church of the diocese of Nebraska Mrs. Clarkson, from the first, has been a very energetic worker, and it is greatly due to her that the institution is now established. The faiteful work and care of Sister Sarah have done much toward making the place a real home, bright and cheerful. Those who have so generously given the funds that have made possible the establishment of the institution are deserving of the gratitude of everyone. They can be assured that their gifts have been put to good use, and where they will be the means of great comfort and

SUDDEN DEATH.

Herman Greenblach Dies at His Home Last Evening.

Herman Greenblach, a peddler, died very suddenly at about 11:30 o'clock last night, at his home on Leavenworth street, between Thirteenth and Four-

The circumstances of his death are the following: He had been sick for some time, and was attended by Dr. Hoffman. The doctor made his last visit about 10:30 in the evening. He left a prescription, which was filled and the medicine brought in. The patient took a dose of the medicine, and immediately fell back and died.

Soon as this happened, a young man named Reese went after Dr. Hoffman. The doctor refused refused to go, and thrust the young man down stairs. Reese then got Officer Hogan, and together they returned for the doctor. This time. it is said, the doctor appeared with a revolver. He said he had put the young man down stairs, and if he returned, he (the doctor) would do worse.

During this time the coroner was notified and came in. He made several inquiries concerning the man's death. In view of what he learned, he thought it unneces sary to hold an inquest. The man had been very sick and was likely to die at any time. The coroner believes the taking of the medicine had nothing to do with Greenblach's death.

In regard to the action of the doctor in not returning when he was called, it is said that his own child is very sick and that on that account he had refused to make one or two other calls during the evening. It may also be further said that as the man was already dead, he was beyond the reach of medical aid.

Heiman Greenblach was a Polnish Jew and by occupation a peddler. He leaves a wife and five small children.
