There has been any amount of swearing by the car drivers and passengers to-day. The bussets cars have insisted upon running off the track at every turn, and to add to the enjoyment the car horses, at least some of them, are given to balking and utterly refused to pull up hill.
Although the sleighing on Farnam street on Christmas day was not particularly nice, yet one man in the city took advantage of it, and the novel appearance of his rustic sleigh was a source of considerable delight to many pedestrians who saw him, though probably not so much so to the jaded horses that drew him.
The rink was crowded both in the afternoon and evening yesterday with our best people, and every one seemed pleased with the entertainment. To-morrow (Thursday) evening a pair of handsome nickel skates will be awarded to the best lady skater. The award will be made by ballot, each person present being entitled to one vote.
A. L. Wyman and Miss Julia Hardman were united in marriage at 7:30 last evening at Trinity cathedral, in the presence of a limited number of intimate friends. MERRY CHRISTMAS

Is Ushered in Amid Sweet Carols and Happy Greetings.
The Doings at the Churches and the General Festivities of the Season in This City.
The eighteen hundred and eighty-third anniversary of the Babe of Bethlehem has come, and gone with it the usual joy and festivity which gathers around the anniversary of that sacred event.
Christmas eve is an hour of rejoicing and merry making wherever the Christian religion is known. It has come down through the ages, and, instead of the interest in this occasion diminishing, it is constantly on the increase and probably will be so until the end of time.
With this glad Christmas tide came the tokens of love given by one dear friend to another, and this example set by the wise men, as they lavished their gifts of frankincense and myrrh upon the Babe in the manger, is likewise closely followed, and many a heart is caused to leap with joy as the tears of thanksgiving course down the cheeks, as a little messenger of love is received from dear ones far away.
Monday night was season of rejoicing in this city, such as has never before been equaled. The good citizens of this place have been abundantly blessed in the year which is past and gone and never before have they been so able to bestow gifts upon their loved ones as now and right well they have improved the opportunity, as is proven by the enormous amount of holiday goods which have been bought and sold in this city during the past month. Year by year the quality of Christmas gifts improve and instead of light, trashy stuff, which has been sold in such large quantities in former years, more substantial articles were substituted. To be sure there are more or less of those toys sold each year, and always will be so long as there are children, for what would Christmas be to the six-year-old without the little jumping jack or the toy whistle, or the tin steam-boat or locomotive engine. These things are just as essential to complete the happiness of the child, as are air and water essential to the life of man.
In hundreds of houses in Omaha Monday night there was such rejoicing as is only had upon Christmas eve. There, in one corner of the parlor, stood the beautiful Christmas tree trimmed with long strings of pop corn and tinsel, while myriads of waxen tapers added a dazzling brilliancy to the scene. In addition to these, the tree was loaded with presents for the various members of the family, and the whole presented a scene which made the children fairly shout for joy as the doors were thrown open and they were permitted to gaze upon the beautiful objects, and not alone the children, but the older ones who had been instrumental in bringing about this state of things, were carried back to their childhood days, and they entered into the merry-making with a zest which they would not have believed they were capable of. If there is anything which truly rejoices the heart of the parent, it is to be able to bring joy and happiness to the hearts of the dear little ones, for whose existence they are responsible, and many a heart was made happy in this way last night. A Bex reporter was permitted to attend one of these little family gatherings Monday night and speaks with every assurance of the joy which is derived from such a scene.
As we left the house and wandered up and down the streets, we passed many homes wherein like festivities were in progress, and before some of the brilliantly lighted windows we stood lost in thought and our mind wandered from the gay and festive scene to the lowly cot or the hovel where the lavish hand never bestows its gifts, but it was too sad a contrast and we shook ourselves from the lethargy and drifted away like a weed before the wind in search of another item.
As we wandered along we came in front of the FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,
and from within came the sound of merry voices and the glad notes of song as if inviting us to enter. We obeyed the summons, and walking up the steps pushed the large door upon its hinges, and stood looking upon a most happy scene. The church was appropriately trimmed, and in the front part stood a large Christmas tree. The children were all jubilant and each one of them was presented with a little ball of candy. The services were both interesting and instructive.
TRINITY CATHEDRAL.
At Trinity Cathedral there was the regular carol service and it was attended by a large number of both young and old. The singing was led by a chorus of twenty-two children, who were all perfectly trained and did their part very nicely.
The house was beautifully decorated for the Christmas service with ground pine and holly and presented a very beautiful appearance.
ST. BARNABAS.
At St. Barnabas church, corner of Nineteenth and California streets, the regular vesper service was presented, and a large crowd was present to participate in the festivities.
THE A. M. E. CHURCH.
At the A. M. E. church, corner of Eighteenth and Webster streets, the colored people held a fair, and as they are always given to having a first-class time, last night's entertainment was no exception to the general rule.
THE SKATING RINK.
A goodly crowd was present at the skating rink who could reap more enjoyment out of a glide over the smooth floor on rollers than in any other way. The hall was beautifully trimmed for the holidays and looked very pretty.
OTHER MODES OF ENJOYMENT.
The gambling halls and saloons were all well patronized, as they always are upon holiday occasions, and many a jolly good health was thrown down last night, preparatory to the regular "sweating off" on New Year's day, and yet for all that very little drunkenness was noticeable upon the streets. In some of the saloons elegant lunches were served and all was

CHRISTMAS DAY.

Beautiful Weather and an Unusually Quiet Time--Amusements of the Day.
We doubt if there has ever been a time, not for many years at least, when Christmas day was as mild and pleasant as was yesterday. Instead of the bleak and chilling blasts of December, the clear sky and balmy breezes of spring were here, and, as we listened, we fancied we could almost hear the song of the robin or the chirp of the cricket.
"How little it seems like Christmas," was the remark on every side--and how true it was. The word Christmas indicates the merry jingle of sleigh-bells and the happy sleighing party, and a Christmas without snow is like a Fourth of July without fire-crackers.
This may, in a measure, account for the quietness of the day in this city. The places of business were all closed early in the day, and the streets presented more of a Sunday appearance than of a holiday.
There was nothing in particular to attract the attention of the public, and the people wandered listlessly about the streets during the forenoon, with no apparent object in view.
After the Christmas dinners had been disposed of, however, the numbers of people upon the streets increased, and they were going up and down, some to visit friends and some to other places.
AT THE MATINEE.
Boyd's opera house was well filled in the afternoon with people to witness the production of "Lispet, the Tomboy," by the Leonard Grover Comedy company. The company were very well received, and some parts of the play were well rendered and called forth hearty applause. The same play was given in the evening.
AT THE ROLLER RINK.
In the afternoon the attendance was not so large, but in the evening a large crowd assembled to witness the exhibition skating by Prof. Daniels and Master Bert Bliss, a ten year old from Des Moines, Iowa. Together they did some very fine work and the little skater is certainly a wonder on wheels. He is as graceful and active as can be and will doubtless be the prince of roller skating in a few years.
After the double exhibition, Prof. Daniels delighted his many admirers by an exhibition of his skill. It is needless to say that it was immense.
Good music was in attendance and everybody had a most excellent time.
Under the management of Mr. Daniels, the roller rink is becoming a most favorite resort for male and female, both young and old.
TRINITY CATHEDRAL.
Appropriate Christmas services were held in Trinity Cathedral yesterday forenoon and evening. The music prepared for the occasion was most excellent. The church was beautifully trimmed and decorated for the occasion.
THE SOUTH M. E. CHURCH.
The Sunday school of the South Omaha M. E. church, gave their entertainment at their church, corner of Tenth and Pierce street, last night.
The Christmas tree was a large one, and was fairly loaded down with presents for the little ones.
Gen. O. O. Howard delivered a very fine address to the little ones, which was anxiously listened to. Mr. G. W. Tibbals had charge of the singing, which was good.
The little ones enjoyed themselves hugely.
AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.
The Christmas festival for the Sunday school of the Baptist church, was held last evening and was a thoroughly enjoyable affair. The entertainment consisted of recitations, dialogues, solos, duets and choruses by the children, and these were well selected and well rendered. The room was handsomely decorated with flags, the most attractive feature being, of course, the Christmas tree, well laden with handsome presents for the children. The appearance of Santa Claus, who distributed the presents, assisted by six little fairies, was the closing and most attractive feature of the evening. The house was packed with people, many being obliged to stand the entire evening.
FIRST M. E. CHURCH.
At the First M. E. church a large crowd of children and grown people gathered last evening. A Christmas tree was the feature of the evening, but members of the Sunday school contributed to the evening's enjoyment by recitations, song, etc. It was a joyous occasion and every one was happy.
SUGGESTIONS TO HOTEL PATRONS.
If it rains, do not hesitate to apply to the clerk for an umbrella. He keeps a large stock constantly on hand, which he loans cheerfully to guests of the house. He does not expect you to bring it back.
Do not neglect to look over the telegraphic several times a day. It gives you an air of importance; and, if you think of it, you might ask the clerk if "the Hon. Mr. So-and-So" had called for you "since you went out the last time."
Above all things, do not fail to inquire the time the trains on all the different roads take their departure. Do this long before you intend leaving, so that you can forget about it and have to ask it all over again the day you decide to go.
Remember, too, that one of the most admired guests in any house is the one who is always ringing for ice-water and growing because the towels are not on hand at exactly the minute he takes his bath. You should not forget that the only way the chambermaid has for "getting even" is to keep a man standing wet and cold while she goes down to the laundry. This is her sacred privilege established by a long line of precedent. She would die for it--and so may you.
Commercial travelers, otherwise known as "drummers," are entitled to primary consideration in all metropolitan hotels. Because you are a member of congress is no reason why you should expect a room on the parlor floor at second floor prices.
If the bell-boy answers your call within fifteen minutes after the time has gone by when you needed him, remember that he may have been asleep when you called, and has probably done as well as you would if you had been out with the boys the night before.
Register your name plainly, forgetting none of your titles. The newspaper always want you in their "personals." It will be a pleasure, also, to the hotel clerk to have you write your name so plainly that he can read it backward and upside-down just as well as forward.
If you think there is any subject upon which the clerk is not informed, you are

FURIED ALIVE.

Charles Forrest Caught Beneath a Falling Bank Yesterday.
A Sad and Solemn Christmas Journey From This Life into the Great Unknown Future.
Yesterday afternoon as three workmen were engaged in excavating under Dr. Peabody's house, corner Fourteenth and Jules street, the wall of dirt gave way, burying one of the men, Charles Forrest by name.
The bank was about eleven feet high, and the men had dug under it for a distance of eighteen inches, when it caved in upon them. The falling dirt caught Forrest upon the legs and buried him nearly up to his hips.
He was immediately extricated and moved to his residence, only a few doors distant, where he died about 4 o'clock.
The coroner was notified and immediately empaneled a jury, who upon hearing the evidence, stated that they found that the deceased came to his death by a mass of earth falling upon him at the place above mentioned.
It is the prevailing opinion that a large mass of dirt must have fallen upon him in such a manner as to have injured him internally.
He was about 37 years of age and leaves a wife to mourn his loss.
His funeral will take place to-morrow.
Messrs. Guild & McInnis, the 16th street dry goods merchants, extend to the public their cordial thanks for the large patronage conferred upon them during the holidays. This popular firm has at all times made efforts to draw trade by offering their goods at small profits. The large patronage received during the holidays testifies to the effect.
