THE LA ABRA MINE AWARD.

The supreme court to-day rendered decision in two La Abra mining cases. These were suits brought to obtain write of mandamus requiring the secretary of state to pay the relators certain amounts alleged to be due them from the installment of 1882 of the award made by the international Mexican commission under the treaty of July 4, 1868. The secretary refused because President Arthur, having examined into the claims, be lieved the awards were obtained by fraud and advised negotiating a treaty with Mexico providing for a rehearing [this treaty is now pending in the senate] and directing the installment to be with held. The court holds that in thus dealing with a friendly government, the United States is put on its honor and lation of law and began an investigation must not resort to legal technicalities. that while the court does not undertake livered through Capt. Watch, who reto pass judgment in the matter of alleged ceived them from a stranger and was fraud, it nevertheless holds that it is ignorant of their contents. The matter clearly within the authority of the chief executive to withhold payments pending a rehearing before a new commission, and renders judgment accordingly.

The supreme court decides that the case brought against the state of Virginia involving the right of a state to refuse to The secretary refused his consent. Th take the coupons of its bonds in payment for taxes, after issuing such bonds with of 9,600 acros of land by survey. The the promise that it would take them in payment for taxes, is a proper matter to be heard by the United States district court, because it involves the act of the legislature of a state which impairs the validity of a contract, such act being a violation of the constitution of the United States. The case came up on an appeal from the decision of the United States circuit court, which remanded it to the state court as a matter not of federal jurisdiction.

This matter has been in an unsettled state for about twenty years and has been appealed to the United States courts and congress. It was claimed that the sale of this property would give the roads a complete monoply of the lake commerce of Chicago as soon as the government harbor is completed and piers erected. The sale remained in abeyance under an injunction of the United States court, but the recent death of Hon. Thomas Hayne, killed in a railway accident near Roches ter, removed the objector to a dissolution of the injunction.
