Mr. Springer (dem. Ill.) offered a resolution calling on the postmaster general for copies of correspondence with the department of justice in regard to the star route prosecution and an itemiz d state ment of the expenditures of the department in investigating those frauds. Referred.

Mr. Shelly (dem. Ala.) offered a resolution directing the committee on rivers and harbors to inquire as to the necessity of an immediate appropriation for continuing the work on important river and harbor improvements where work has been or is about to be suspended for upon a fluctuating standard. He proposed want of appropriation. Referred.

Mr. Hatch (dem., Mo.) presented a

The house went into committee of the whole (Mr. Cox, of New York, in the chair) for its consideration. Mr. Willis stated the appropriation was necessary to prevent injury to valuable plants, and to enable the commission to proceed to werk. Mr. Belford (rep., Col.), referring to the question as to which committee the oill should go to, debated some days ago, said he wished to call the attention o the country to the fact that while the republican party was willing to make a iberal appropriation for the improvement of the Mississippi, gentlemen on the democratic side were higgling about the committee jurisdiction.

Mr. King (dem., La.) denied that there as any conflict between the Mississippi evee committee and the river and har-oor committee.

Mr. Belford went on to point out to the house its line of duty, which he de-clared would unlock the vaults of the national treasury. [Laughter.] There are, he said, $100,000,000 in the treas-ury kept out of business channels and trade. Business firms were failing all over the country because the money was kept out of employment. Suppose $20,000, 000 were appropriated for the Mississipp river where would it go? Not to France or England, but to the horny-hande toilers of this country. It was the duty of the majority of the house to compel, execute and enforce a broad and liberal policy in regard to the great water courses in order that they might overcome the men who control the railroad corportions of the country.

Mr. Blanchard (dem., Ls.) critizisad
the remarks of Mr. Belford as having, under guise of support of the measure, injected a noxious dose of politics. He misstated the democratic side when he stated it was not harmonious in support of this improvement. The speaker would guarantee for every vote cast for the measure by the republicans that two would be cast by democrats.

Mr. Henderson (rep., Ia.) spoke in favor of appropriating $20,000 to continue the improvement of the ice harbon at Dubuque. Mr Gibson (dem., W. Va.) said the committee on rivers and harbors did not depreciate the importance other improvements by asking imme-diate consideration of the pending measure. It was brought forward out of re spect to the message of the president and the pressing recommendation of the

Mr. Hunt (dem , La.) argued that im-provement was both necessary and economical.

Mr. Bayne (rep., Pa.) would not vote against the measure, but disliked to hear it advocated to the detriment of all other streams of the country. Improvement of the Mississippi was yet an undemonstrated experiment.

Mr. Miller (rep., Pa.) ventured to say there had not been an appropriation for river improvement from which there had seen so much filching as those for the Mississippi and mutterings had come up that private corporations and individuals were being wonderfully benefited by

Mr. Hepburn, (rep. Ia.), was in favor of the improvement of the navigation of the river, but not the banks and plantaions on each side of the stream, and believed it was the purpose of certain gentlemen of the house to secure the im-provement of their own property and property of their constituents by secur-ing plantations on the lower Mississippi from overflow rather than to protect nrvigation. The clerical and menial service of the commission he said had eaten nearly half of the $4'.000,000 appropriated. He believed the commission contemplated 5,000 miles of levels sion contempl and for this an appropriation of $30,000,000 would be only a beginning.

Mr. Horr, (rep. Mich.), and Mr. Henderson, (rep. Ill.), favored the bill.
