THE SECOND LETTER.

The second letter was from Boynton to Keifer, in reply to the latter's letter of January 28, to General Boynton which has been read in the house to-day as part of Mr. Keifer's statement.

WASHINGTON, January 28.

Hon. J. Warren Keifer—Sir:—Your charges I have twice publicly declared utterly without foundation in truth.

In the face of your repetitions of them and your additions of pretended details I still declare your whole charge so far as it reflects on me, to be unqualifiedly false, and assert further that I never held any conversation whatever with you concerning the provisions of the McGarrhan bill, which, by the way, was reported favorably by a committee of your own appointment.

WHAT'S UP NOW?

Mr. Vanderbilt Gives His Opinion on Stocks.

NEW YORK, January 29.—William H. Vanderbilt, in an interview with a Commercial Advertiser reporter, says: "I think the good stocks are selling as low as they ought to sell, and they should advance. I think the advance, so far, has been genuine and healthy. Some stocks may advance with too much rapidity, and this may lead to a reaction in some cases, but my opinion is that inside of thirty days everybody will be grabbing for stocks, and by that time full confidence will be restored. I think the bottom has been reached, and that from now on there will be a good and steady rise. It may take a few weeks to fully restore public confidence, but I think that time is fast approaching."

Is your Life Worth a Dollar?

Perhaps that seems a high price for it, considering how poor your blood is, and how your whole system is prostrated, debilitated, and enfeebled. People have been heard to say, under such circumstances, that they would not give the toss of a copper for the choice between life and death. But when it comes to actually drawing near the grave, a man naturally draws back, and says he does not want to die. Life is very precious, and even to a broken-down man it is worth saving.

One dollar will buy a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters. That one dollar may start you on the road from misery to recovery. A man must take a very mean view of himself who is not willing to invest that much in making one serious effort to rescue himself from deadly debility, and to step into the enjoyment of solid health.
