

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

The injunction case of Marshall Key versus the city has been transferred from the circuit court to the district court, which meets in May. The delay is to be regretted by those who have to pass along that part of Broadway, where the sidewalk is left unfilled during the pendency of the suit.

Remember the lecture of Marion Baxter at the opera house next Monday evening. Subject, "Handwriting on the Wall." She comes here with the reputation of being a very fine speaker, and as the entire receipts of to the Home of the Friendless, by the generosity of the speaker and of Mr. Dohoney, the house shall be filled.

One of the lookers-on at the roller skating rink suggests that a balcony or gallery should be built for such as want to see but not to skate, so that the raised platform could be used by skaters to rest, and lookers-on would be better accommodated also. The rink is proving more of a success than was expected, and there are larger crowds than were looked for.

A man who claims to be a gentleman has been seen taking papers from the door of business houses in the morning, before they are open. If this person does not wish to see his name in print in connection with this article he will hereafter not take papers belonging to others. By calling at THE BEE office, No. 7 Pearl street, we will allow him to read the news gratis, if he is too poor to have it delivered by carrier at his residence for twenty cents per week.

Some are trying to make out that the old jail isn't so very bad after all because Jailer Schontz lives there, and if it was so terribly unhealthy and bad, he would choose some other habitation. Where could the jailer live except at the jail? Especially in his presence needed there day and night in view of the fact that this jail is so old and rickety, and as is well known had not Jailer Schontz and his family been right there, on several occasions there would have been a general jail delivery.

Jailer Metz had a drunken printer on his hands who was unable to pay his fine, and who wanted to go down to one of the newspaper offices and get a chance to work it out. Davy accommodated him by going down, and while talking with the foreman the printer slipped up stairs with the pretext of seeing if he could not raise money enough among the boys to pay the fine. He slipped away entirely, and now Davy says, "I shoot first and gun who take one step too fast." That settles it.

Ed. Allison, the other evening, lost a vest and pantaloons off the clothes-line at his residence. Ed. says he knows the fellow who stole them, and will give him a short time to return the same before he prefers charges against him. W. T. Brown also lost a pair of trousers in the rear of his house. With THE BEE man's shirt, which was taken last week, this clothes-line thief now must make a very respectable appearance. In fact, he would have the appearance of a real dude, could he "catch on" to The Globe man's neck-tie, and The Nonpareil man's eye-glasses.

The row at the Saturday night dance at Golden's house, near the Wabash depot, will probably be hushed up, though it ought not to be. The charge of disorderly conduct preferred against Crooks was dismissed, and one of assault and battery entered. Then that was dismissed and the case against Phillips, who is charged with stabbing Crooks in five or six places, was continued thirty days. It appears that the participants in the affair being related by marriage, it is a family mias, which they seem disposed to settle among themselves. This is the second row in which they have been concerned, and this second one is much more serious than the first, as it is said sling shots and knives were used. Phillips was battered and Crooks was stabbed. It is claimed that Crooks with some comrades came to the house to raise a row, and assaulted Phillips who in turn used a knife to defend himself. Crooks claims that Phillips is the party to blame. It seems as if so serious a matter ought to be sifted to the bottom, and whoever is at fault punished, for if a third row occurs and is as much more serious than the second, as the second is than the first, there will be a homicide.

The Tests To-Day.

The postponed official tests of the water works are to take place to-day if the weather is favorable. The committees, already named in THE BEE are to meet at the city building at 10 o'clock this morning, and the test will be as soon after that hour as the arrangements can be conveniently made.
