A Sermon by Rev. A. F. Sherrill, to

The Life, and Sudden Death of Judge A. M. Chadwick.

The sudden death of Judge Chadwick, which caused such universal sorrow in our city, is teaching its lessons.

Rev. A. F. Sherrill, pastor of First Congregational church, looks out into the dim and misty future, with his far-seeing eye faith, and sees in this deep affliction a lesson of great interest to the young men of this community, and accordingly prepared a discourse and accordingly prepared a discourse should be this moment, and as well in the chair. Roll called. Members in the chair. Roll called. Members in the chair. Roll called. Members present: Kaufman, Dunham, Woodworth, McGuckin, Baker, Thrane and Leeder. The minutes of the previous meeting were should be this moment, and as well in which he delivered last Sunday night, and the pith of which is given below:

THE SERMON:

PSALMS 26, 11—But as for me, I will walk in mine integrity; redeem me, and be merciful unto me.

uprightness, integrity; in their speaking the truth and doing righteousness. "The righteous Lord leveth righteousness"-i. e. right thoughts, words, deeds, right living. The author of the text, while firmly resolving to "walk in integrity," also recognizes his need of the help and mercy of God, "Redeem me and be merciful unto me."

I am to offer a few remarks, suggested by the life and recent, sudden death, in our midst, of Judge A. M. Chadwick. Nothing elaborate is attempted, only a few practical thoughts, for the hour. He has illustrated, first, what a young man's success and general well being does not depend on brilliant talents or evening. The thief, who had traded the aniinherited wealth, or other exceptional favors. He came here six years ago, with the equipment of merely good average abilities, such an education as is in every one's reach, a definite purpose, an honest heart; and went to work. At only 29 years of age, he is a well known citizen, entrusted, almost by acclamation with a responsible public office, prosperous, universally esteemed the result of uprightness, honest effort, persovered in to do something and be some one in the world. We all soon came to known his open face, reflecting good nature and good sense. His very gait told of a certain straight forwardness and diligence, always taking him on to something. He was found to be one who would tell anything just as it was. That he could be relied on, and and always strove to bring a transaction to the point of honesty. As a rule, he kept in good company and out of bad, from the first, and all the way. Daytime or evening, you did not go to some place of questionable resort to find him, but to his office or home. He did not keep clean because he touched nothing. He went right into the world and daily mixed in all its affairs, but he succeeded

No good thing will He withhold from them, that walk uprightly."

Second. He has illustrated, that the temptations of this city need not carry a young man off his feet; that though there be a pit-fall at every corner, and often sleeping, and relieved him of $15 and his watch. Some people say that the Council Bluffs police stand in with the gang of thieves, and such a thing might be.

several between the corners he will not fall into them, if he will only let his "eyes look right on, and his eyelids look straight before him." Temptation or not, depends more on the quality of the man, than on his surroundings. Three asking that Guy A. Brown be retained in years ago, when in Leadville, I met a his present position as state reporter. The railway mail service have determined qualities would do and become in the to weigh the mail hereafter, and the following trains will begin to do so from this date: different, so is that of the one who loved different, so is that of the one who loved him most, from our grief, when one falls, because he has wasted his years, in folly and dissipation. He diligently used all his days and strength, in doing well, what his hand found to do. There are no sad regress in that direction. He finished sooner than most, and what a merciful arrangment by which our future, up to the last, is hidden! God kindly veils our eyes, so that his development, usefulness, happiness went on to the last moment.

The early death of one, whose habits are good, and who inherits no disease, is unusual; such a sudden death is very unusual. I do not recall its parallel here, in tifteen years. The laws of health, and long life, usually run side by side, with the laws of industry and morality. You are far more likely, than otherwise, to live long, if you live well. Sabbath-school stories of contrary teaching are made up, and made the wrong way, for

As to religion—"Life is the time to serve the Lord." The only perfect death was preceded by a spotless life. "The Prodigal Son" and the "Penitent Thief" are there, but they are not the Scripture models. The true word is, "Patient con-tinuance in well-doing." Then you are the words of the text' "As for me, I will walk in mine integrity," adding the reverent prayer for help and mercy, "Redeem me and be merciful unto me." You cannot save yourself nor will God save you alone. In every case, there must be co-operation. He, when A great deal is said, especially in the Old Testament, of God's delight in men's uprightness, integrity; in their speaking good pleasure." Our friend met the same doubts you have. He did not, however, live in them, or let them stay him, but met them openly, canvassed them thoroughly, and came out into clear day and upon firm ground. There he tried himself awhile, in the light of God's countenance. He used to be here very regularly, on the Sabbath. I can see him now, just as he used to look, coming up that west aisle, to his place, often slone, as if he came on purpose and for a reason. Last May, he met two or three of us here, one Sabbath afternoon, to give "a reason, for the faith that was in him," his personal faith, in Jesus Christ, as his Divine Saviour, his fixed purpose to "walk in integrity" by God's help. A little later he stood with others in the St. Mary's Avenue church, his future home, to conless Christ before men, as he would be confessed before his Father in heaven. He did it all deliberately in the days of his health. To it he has since adhered. God could rely on him after he had told Him. He might—he was growing in this as in other things—if he had lived we should have heard more from him. But the time came. The hour of twelve struck. God called and he was "ready." He merely went to a higher service To "a higher service," not as a matter of course, not because I say so, or the paper, or his church, but because he did in time enter and hold on in that way which leads through Christ up to God.
