Philadelphia Record. "The styles of barbers' poles have changed considerably in the last few years," said an old sign painter yesterday afternoon. "I remember the time very well when you never saw anything bu the old red and white stripes sort, but right side of my father's upper lip. It started like a blood blister, and kept in-creasing in size. Its progress was slow nowadays they paint them all sorts of colors. See there, for instance," and he pointed to a corner of the shop where stood a small pole resplendent in gold and black.

"That pole is for a shop on Ridge avenue," he continued, "and was ordered by a colored man who said he wanted something 'that would catch the eye ob the least observin' of mankind.' About a month ago I sent one out painted blue and covered with gilt stars. It went somewhere on North Second street, and cost the barber $23; but as a rule they don't pay more than $6 or $8 for a good man's peace of mind. No one medicine will cure everything, but it is an incontestible fast that Thomas relectric Oil will cure a sprain or 3 bruise, a bite, or an ache, and is also an active and prono cure for neuralgia and rheuman. Two Great Shaving Cities. A barber is so distinctly a luxury that a pair of cities which boasts of 4,000 barbers must be very luxurious indeed. New York has 2,500 shavers and Brooklyn 1,500. They are an army in themselves sufficient, if armed with nothing but their own razors, to overawe all the negroes in the south in case of a colored revolt. To live, these 4,000 must shave 100,000 men a day. Leaving out, therefore, the beardless, who long for the snowy brush, and the full beard, who laugh lather to scorn, it follows that one shavable person in every three is the slave of the barber's chair. The influence of the barber is tremendons. The man who is being shaved must listen. Into his ear political doctrine may be poured that he abhors. To listen is often to be convinced. Hence it becomes a grave question for the am-bitious in public life to know who controls the greatest number of barbers They are in power, and nothing but their native modesty keeps them from raining the cities that they shave.
