Plain Facts Plainly Spoken.

At one time a discussion of the secret vice was entirely avoided by the profession, and medical works but a few years ago would hardly mention it.

To-day the physician is of a different opinion; he is aware that it is his duty—disagreeable though it may be—to handle this matter without gloves and speak plainly about it; and intelligent parents and squardians will thank him for doing so.

The results attending this destructive vice were or merly not understood, or not properly estimated; and no importance being attached to a subject which by its nature does not invite close investigation, it was willingly ignored.

Its nature does not invite close investigation, it was willingly ignored.

The habit is generally contracted by the young while attending school; older companions through their example, may be responsible for it, or it may be acquired through accident. The excitement once experienced, the practice will be repeated again and again, until at last the habit becomes firm and completely enslaves the victim. Mental and nervous afflictions are usually the primary results of self-abuse. Among the injurious effects may be mentioned lassiude, dejection or irrascibility of temper and general debility. The boy seeks seclusion, and rarely joins in the sports of his companions. If he be a young man he will be little found in company with the other sex, and is troubled with exceeding and annoying bashfulness in their presence. Lascivious dreams, emissions and eruptions on the face, etc., are also prominent symptoms.

If the practice is violently persisted in, more serious disturbances take place. Great palpitation of the heart, or epileptic convulsions, are experienced, and the sufferer may fall into a complete state of idiocy before, finally, death relieves him.

To all those engaged in this dangerous, practice, I would say, first of all, stop it at once; make every possible effort to do so; but if you fall, if your nervous system is aircady too much shattered, and consequently, your will-power broken, take some nerve tonic to add you in your effort. Having freed yourself from the habit, I would further counsel you to ge through a regular course of treatment, for it is a great mistake to suppose that any one may, for some time, be t every so litt'e give himself up to this fascinating but dangerous excluement without suffering from its evil consequences at some future time. The number of young men who are incapaciated to fill the duties enjoined by wedlock is alarmingly large, and in most of such cases this unfortunate condition of things can be traced to the practice of self-abuse, which had been shandoned years ago. Rishop Merrill Discusses the Ques tion of Which Christianity will Prove to be.

Yesterday morning the Broadway Methodist church was filled with a congregation curious to see and anxious to hear Bishop Merrill, of Chicago, who was announced to speak. The curiosity of seeing the man was satisfied by the view of a plainly dressed, unassuming well proportioned man of a little more than ordinary size, with a clean shaven frank looking face. As a speaker he showed himself to be deliberate, weighing his analysis of the containing maps and full particulars, will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents. ing his words carefully, and carrying with his utterances a conviction that he at least believed them to be the truth.

He chose as his text Isaiah xlii:4: "He shall not fail or be discouraged, till he have set judgement in the earth." He spoke of the clearness and distinctness which characterized Isaiah's prophecies concerning Christ, so clear and distinct, in fact, that men had been led to claim that the words must have been written after Christ's birth, but this claim was done away with by the well established facts showing that Isaiah must have lived 600 years beupon the perserverance and courage of question, rather, as to whether the proworld. A STRANGE STORY.

The Terrible Crime of a Beautiful Virginia Woman-A Strange Sequel.

Ren. Perley Poore in Boston Budget, Among other stories of real life which I have heard told at the capital, one of the strangest was of a widow in Virginia, who was left with several children, among them a very beautiful daughter about fifteen years of age. The widow finding herself embarrassed, opened a boardinghouse at the county site, and among her boarders was a Mr. W., a wealthy mer-chant over forty years of age, but a very fine-looking man. This gentleman was the prop and stay of the family; gave emdresses to Miss Belle Walker, daughter ployment to the sons, educated the daughter at a "fashionable academy," and, very naturally, on her return fell desperately in love with her, when he should have preferred the mother. pressed his suit with perseverance, but the beautiful Mildred resisted his appeals, and the importunities of all her theme being as to when the marriage friends. What rendered this case more extraordinary was that Miss T. was proverbial for the blandness of her manners and uniform sweetness of disposition. The sequel of this romance is yet more singular. Years rolled away, and W. continued a wretched and solitary man; but the spell of the enchantress was still upon his soul. He closed his store, sold his estates, collected his ample means and traced her to her distant retreat, to make a new offer of his hand. She had just married a gentleman of high standing, acquainted with all the details of her career, shuddering at the tragedy, but incapable of resisting her charms. Poor W.! Then, indeed, did the iron enter his soul. "The deadly arrow quivered in his side." His early love, his fluctuating courtship, his marriage and the catastrophe, the flight, the divorce, his years of misery, the new birth of his passion and now his disappointment, final and forever, came crushing over him like an iceberg in the tide of bitter memories, and he prayed for death.

Ame lean Grocer and Dr. Goods Chronicle.

A society has been recently formed in London to advocate the improvement and cheapening of the dust, one of its main objects being to show that a flesh diet is much more costly than a vegetable one, and less nourishing. A number of entertainments have been given under the auspices of the National Food Reform society, of which the following supper is a specimen:

One hundred and fifty persons, for the most part belonging to the working clas-ses, sat down to a bill of fare consisting of Scotch broth with slices of whole meal or Graham bread, green pea pie with potatoes, the pie-crust being made with cotton seed oil, and for desert sweetened semolina or farina pudding with stewed prunes. Mr. F. P. Doremus, secretary of the society, addressed those present after the cloth had been removed, and said they had all aparently enjoyed their supper, they might, especially the mothers and heads of families, like to know something about its ingredients and proportions. These can be re-cooked in a few minutes, and some of these preparations are as delicious as they are wholesome and convenient.
