MARRIAGE SECRETS. A Booklet containing 30 pages of numerous revelations regarding the most interesting and mysterious secrets of the human mind.

THE FACTS OF THE CASE are these: The deceased Tobin was one of the most highly respected farmers in the vicinity of Blue Hill. It seems his father is unfortunately addicted to the immoderate use of liquor.

back of the head fell him to the floor. He was carried out to temporary quarters for treatment, and as the injury was deemed very slight the friends of both parties thought but little of it and some congratulated themselves that Tobin would be soon around again on time to fully repay Cox for his assault.

When this became known there was much excitement and Cox was immediately arrested. He remarked to those around, "I suppose the boys will get a rope ready now, and he at once requested to be taken to Red Cloud. This was done by Sheriff J. W. Warren, of Webster county, but Cox thought that even Red Cloud was not secure enough for him, so he begged to be taken to Lincoln. This was agreed to, and as the prisoner did not desire to pass by Blue Hill on the main Denver line of the R. & M. he was brought to the penitentiary here.

Mr. Tobin's funeral on Friday was the largest ever held in Webster county. Business was entirely suspended and nearly all the citizens followed the remains to the grave. The saloon in which the affair took place, and in which Cox, in all probability, procured stimulants enough to fire up his baser passions, was draped in mourning and kept its doors closed during the hour of the funeral.

THOUSANDS SAY So. Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers."

HAVEVERLY'S MASTODONS. They Were Greeted With a Packed House at Boyd's Opera House Last Night. This excellent combination opened a two nights' engagement at Boyd's opera house to one of the, if not the, largest audiences ever assembled in that theatre.

THE DANVILLE DEVILTRY. TESTIMONY BEFORE THE COMMITTEE. WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Danville committee to-day examined Eustace Gibson, congressman from West Virginia.

at the polling place was entirely drawn by colored men. The news of the riot was very damaging to the democrats. Congressman George D. Wise, of Virginia, took the witness chair. Referring to the testimony of John S. Wise, he remarked: "I consider my case stronger now than when we started. He (Massey) has not 700 perverts and forgers for his benefit."

THE RAILWAYS. Cut Rates in Cotton—Various Track Matters. New York, April 5.—Commissioner Fink to-day issued the following: "In accordance with the demand for a reduction of tariff rates on cotton to a basis of the lowest cut rates, notice is hereby given, that, taking effect Monday, April 7th, the rate on uncompressed cotton to New York from points named, will be as follows: Memphis, 40 cents; St. Louis and Hannibal, 36 cents; East St. Louis and Hannibal, 32 cents; Cairo, 34 cents; Evansville, 33 cents; Louisville, Jeffersonville and New Albany, 32 cents; Cincinnati, 30 cents.

Outrages New York Corruption. New York, April 6.—At the state senate inquiry to-day into the management of public works, John Devlin, contractor, testified that he had been employed by the Western Union Telegraph company to lay pneumatic tubes under Broadway. He had to pay a bribe of $500 before he could get a permit from the department and was embarrassed, and finally ousted from his work because of his refusal to submit to further bribery.

Chief Engineer Melville's Relic. Henry C. Ellis.—Have you seen Melville's Sherman relic from New York? I met Lieutenant Schuetze in the paymaster's office, No. 29 Broadway, on February 4, 1882, just as he was starting to join Harber in London, to go to the Lena for the bodies of DeLong and his associates. I gave him a bottle of brandy, and a bottle of whisky for my old shipmate and friend, George Melville. After he and Harber left I took on Monday, March 20, I watched the Tribune closely, for I knew it was giving the best information on the Jeanette matter, until I observed that Schuetze and Harber had passed Melville between Irukutak and Yakutsk, without seeing him.

THE BATTLE. Round 1—Nickveit appeared to be frightened from the first. A tremor was seen to pass over him, and many expected him to fall down. He fired up, however, after getting a terrible blow on the face, and in a very short time had Kihain down in his corner. After this he got down to his work and shared all the honors with the other.

THE FIGHTERS. The prize fighters were a local Hungarian miner, named Nickveit, who was formerly a St. Louis sport, and a man who had been entered an unknown, Sullivan, who was given out on the cars that it was Kihain, a Boston pugilist. There is a large amount of doubt about this, however. Leading sportsmen from the east and west declared he was an impostor. Arthur Chambers told him so, and he was knocked down for his insolence. There was more shooting and one man, a bystander, got a bad hole through his body, and one of the gang got his ear clipped as nicely as a negro might have done it with a razor.

WEST POINT, Ga., April 6.—The block from Dorden & Kennedy's corner to the corner of Gilmore and Montgomery streets was burned to-night. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $100,000.

THE RING. The ring was pitched at 4 o'clock, and simultaneously the pair jumped over the ropes. The crowd immediately rushed and broke the ring down. For a time it seemed there would be a riot, but practically the trouble was suppressed. Bill Montgomery, a sport from Huntington, who was the referee, came to the centre. Arthur Chambers was the umpire for Nickveit. It is not possible to give an adequate description of the rounds. Suffice to say the first one had the advantage. There were three rounds, and that in the last one the Hungarian fell and struck his head upon a stone that had been thrown for his benefit. A shot was then fired. Whether that killed him or not, he was found dead after the melee which followed.

THE RATTLE. Round 1—Nickveit appeared to be frightened from the first. A tremor was seen to pass over him, and many expected him to fall down. He fired up, however, after getting a terrible blow on the face, and in a very short time had Kihain down in his corner. After this he got down to his work and shared all the honors with the other.

ROUND 2.—This was about the liveliest night of the occasion. Nickveit led off by giving his opponent a terrible blow in the stomach, which made him wilt. Arthur Chambers, Nickveit's umpire, called foul. This set him and Montgomery at war. They called each other all the hard names in the dictionary, or out of it, and then proceeded to have a prize fight of their own. The crowd pushed them into the ring, where they fought two rounds, and at the end of that time, Montgomery appeared very much in the shape of a well-dressed bear. He was carried away on a stretcher and a new referee appointed.
