Two Crooks Try to Get a Thousand Dollars in Gold.

Mr. Green a Little Too Sharp for Them.

An amusing attempt was made the other day by a pair of crooks to get away with a bag of gold. The would-be victim was one of the city's real estate and loan men, who shuns the notoriety of being named in connection with the affair, but who vouches for the facts given below, as learned by THE BEE.

A young fellow named Quackenbush was arrested yesterday afternoon for fighting, he and "Big Sandy" and some other fellow having had a round or two.

About a week ago a daughter of M. D. McMahon, of Denison, took one of her father's best horses, after nightfall, and disappeared. The girl is only 13 years of age, and no cause seems assigned for the act.

The democratic county convention meets at the court house at 10 o'clock this morning for the purpose of selecting thirteen delegates to the state convention which meets at Burlington on the 24th of April.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn were surprised at their home on Sutsman street Tuesday night by a gathering of friends, who came accompanied by an orchestra and other novelties for a good time, and a good time was had surely.

Mrs. Ben Heath died very suddenly of heart disease at her home in Dow City. She was to have taken part in a concert the following evening, and a lady who called to practice with her found her lying dead on the floor of the parlor.

Johnnie Epeneter now wears as his own the beautiful gold medal, made by Michael Bros., having won it in three contests at the skating rink as the fastest mile skater. The engraving was made complete yesterday by the scroll being filled with the words, "Won by John Epeneter. Time, 3 minutes, 43 seconds."

Yesterday afternoon a young fellow giving his name as Charles Blanchard was arrested for indecent exposure of person, at the C. B. & Q. depot. It appears that he helped some country ladies get a trunk, and after loading it into the wagon, got mad because they refused to pay him a quarter, and so insulted them.

Dr. Willis Danforth, of Milwaukee, assisted by Dr. A. P. Hanchett, of this city and Dr. W. S. F. Hanchett, of Omaha, performed a very delicate surgical operation upon Mrs. J. McNaughton yesterday morning. Mrs. McNaughton's many friends will be pleased to know that she rallied from the operation very nicely and last evening was doing well, with a good prospect of ultimate recovery.

The following have been selected as superintendents of the various departments at the coming fair here: Horses and mules, J. W. Verogey; cattle, Col. W. F. Sapp; hogs, George F. Wright; sheep and poultry, P. Lacy; implements and machinery, E. L. Shugart; vehicles, tools and hardware, Thomas Bowman; poultry, kitchen and dairy, W. S. Pettibone; grain, vegetable, fruits, plants and flowers, Henry Eiseaman; fine art, Capt. D. F. Eichler.

The festival given by the ladies of the Lutheran church at Marten's skating rink proved a great success every way—financially and socially. The attendance was very large and the arrangements were so well planned and happily carried out that all who participated had a merry time. Mr. John Kost was the general manager, and had the affairs in charge, and much of the success of the occasion was due to him, he seeing to it that everything went off smoothly and joyously.

Charles St. Clair seems to be a kleptomaniac in the boot and shoe line. He lately stole a pair of shoes of Eiseaman, Rodda & Co., and was sentenced to thirty days in jail. Tuesday his time was up and he had not been released an hour before he was walking up the street with a pair of rubber boots stolen from Beno & Co. Mr. Beno overtook him, and asked him what he was going to do with those boots. The fellow coolly replied that he was going to sell them. He was then told that he had better pay for them first, but he remarked that he "didn't have to," whereupon he was sent to the cooler. Yesterday he was sentenced to thirty days more in jail.

The Parade Yesterday.

Yesterday Mayor Vaughan showed up the new police force to the public gaze. A parade of the men being made, the Bavarian band furnishing the music. The men were arrayed in their new uniforms, and so far as individual appearance was concerned showed up well. Collectively it was not so great a show, as there were but eight in number besides the chief, Tom Skinner. A stranger seeing the men marching down Broadway with the mayor at their head must have been struck with some amazement to learn that this was the entire police force of a city claiming 25,000 inhabitants, and scattered over a whole township.

The parade was worthy of note for several reasons, one being that it was the first time in the history of the city when all the policemen appeared in new regulation uniforms. The new hats are the same as those used by the Chicago police, a tall, stiff hat, with a military cord, and the letters in front, "C. B. P.," and the number of the officer. The suits are of navy blue, frock coats, and blue pantaloons with white cords on the outer seams. Now belts and new billies have also been provided, so that the policemen look quite metropolitan.

The parade yesterday consisted of a march along Broadway and Main streets, and an inspection at each of the newspaper offices, the force stopping in front of each office long enough for the new clothes to be inspected, and the tired newspaper men to be refreshed with music. After visiting all the newspapers, photographic views were taken of the force.

The getting of new suits of clothes for nine men was not much of a thing to make such a "hurry" over, but it was the best thing that Vaughan had yesterday to "boom" on, and as all know, he cannot let quiet. It was the best he had, and he made the best of it, and better than that nothing. It lived up the streets for an hour, and made a stir. All this fuss about the new uniforms reminds one of the story told on Officer Morse. Police business was dull, but finally he ran in one man for being drunk. Field, who was then chief of police, soon after entered the station, and finding the man looked up there, was surprised, as he did not seem to be drinking much. He asked Morse why he arrested him, and was told that it was for being drunk. "Drunk," said the chief, "why, he don't seem to be drunk." "Well," said Morse, "he was the drunkest I could find." The parade was the best that Vaughan could do yesterday to keep the town stirring, and it wasn't his fault that there was not more of a show, he having out all that the council would furnish him.

Missouri Valley Times, 11: On the first day of the first fair ever held in Missouri Valley, Ed. Cusack, of this city, swallowed a peach-stone, and was unable to get it either up or down in his throat. Friday evening he was taken sick and vomited up that peach-stone, and Wm. A. Evans now has the stone in his possession. Ed. feels better than he has since the day he swallowed that stone. For fourteen years he had been unable to swallow meat of any kind, or any substance in large quantity. It seems strange that a peach-stone would remain in a man's throat for fourteen years, but such is the fact.
