COUNCIL BLUFFS. ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS. MAKING MUSIC. The Hardman Piano And How It is Manufactured.

The last number of the American Art Journal contains the following concerning the Hardman pianos, of which J. Mueller of this city is the general agent.

Among the wide awake and progressive manufacturers in the piano trade are Hardman, Dowling & Peck. During the past year they have added many improvements to their instruments.

As constructed by most manufacturers who have adopted the full iron frame the pins are made to pass through the frame, giving a leverage of half an inch or more on the pins, which, to a certain extent, affects the vibrations of the strings, and consequently the solidity and purity of tone.

In this respect Hardman, Dowling & Peck have, in their new uprights, all the benefits of a full and complete iron frame extending to the top of the piano, while that part of the upright in which the pins are driven is free.

On account of these improvements and the excellent workmanship and material used in the Hardman pianos, the manufacturers have been obliged to advance their prices: As might be expected, under the circumstances, all of their agents have expressed a perfect willingness to pay the increased price, and continue to push the instruments the same as heretofore.

Large line black hose, in children's and ladies' sizes at Laing's. These goods are all new and will be sold at cost.

Officer Dunn last evening lost his pocket-book on Broadway. It contained $100 in notes, a check for $157 and $87 in cash beside other papers. The finder will receive a reward of $50.

IOWA NEWS. A Burlington saloon license, good to the 4th of July, is worth $71. Spencer saloons may buy a privilege good to the 4th of July for $100.

W. S. Moore, printer, has been appointed deputy oil inspector in Des Moines. Thirty-one Clinton saloon-keepers have paid $50 each into the treasury for licenses until July 4.

Two houses in Bedford, Taylor county, were slightly damaged by lightning a few evenings ago. The Polk county Woman Suffrage society have decided to invite the National society to hold its annual meeting in that county next October.

It is said that the city councils of Davenport and Dubuque will, prior to July 4, pass ordinances licensing the sale of "soda water, lemonade and other beverages." Jessie Norton, a young girl of Waterloo, died on the 1st inst. from tetanus, brought on by falling while skating on roller skates and cutting one of her hands.

Of the three women in the Polk county jail, one is past 60 and went from the temperance town of Boons to Des Moines for the purpose of having a spree. A farmer near Radcliff, Hardin county, started out to plow on the 1st inst., but not feeling well he returned to the house where he died in a few moments.

Mrs. Wm. Brownbridge, while changing cars at Ames, in the middle of the night, for Des Moines, fell between the cars and the station platform and broke her leg. The Gazette declares it to be rank folly to expend $20,000 and over for school houses and grounds in Corning, and then hire school teachers at $35 and $45 per month.

The Estherville Broad-Ax communicates the fact to a sinful world that citizens of Spirit Lake are moving in earnest for a camp-ground layout which shall throw Clear Lake into the shade. An interesting prayer meeting was held at Battle Creek on the 34th ult.; in the Presbyterian church. At the conclusion of the usual programme, Rev. Mr. Leclair united in marriage Mr. W. W. Condit and Mrs. Myra Hersey, both of Ida Grove.

An Emmet county young man felt so bad over an unrequited love that he first killed a pig belonging to the girl's father, then threw something into the man's well, and in the third place shot the family dog. Every marriageable girl in Emmet county should be warned against the fellow. A Mt. Auburn correspondent of the Vinton Eagle writes: A couple of young lady school teachers, in this township, tried to smuggle a gentleman friend from Vinton to this place, on Sunday night last. They covered him up with their gossamer and tried to palm him off as an old satchel.

Wm. Morrow, of Manning, said to be one of the best citizens of Carroll county, was assaulted in the street on the 1st inst., by a couple of women of alleged questionable character. They threw cayenne pepper in his eyes, completely blinding him, when one of them began using a horsewhip upon him. Morrow was a delegate to the late Burlington convention. The affair grew out of a letter the women had received, telling them they were not wanted at the skating rink, and they thought Morrow had something to do with sending it.

Des Moines Register, 2: Every way conceivable is going to be tried to evade the law in regard to the selling of whisky and beer. A gentleman in Des Moines yesterday says a saloonkeeper in Roseville, in this state, has rented rooms in the rear of a store which he will use as a drug store, though there is no communication between them. In the back room he will run his billiard hall, and from his drug store in front will furnish the whisky for the drinks. There is one place in Des Moines, now in operation, where there is a billiard and card room on the second floor, over the saloon, and the drinks are sent up from the saloon on a dumb waiter. The parties who drink do not know, of course, who sells the whisky, but it is just as effectual in making them drunk, and on the stand they could swear they did not know where it came from.

Comets. The comets on record exceeded 800. What are called "short period" comets are: De Vico's, 51; Winnecke's, 21; Boyce's, 13; Bida's, 61; P. Arest's, 61; Payne's, 7; Mechain's, 13; Halley's, 761.

Quakers of Long Ago. A record book of monthly meetings held by Virginia Friends of Henrico county from 1730--only eight years after the death of George Fox, the founder of the society--to 1769, now owned in a collection containing many interesting entries. It began with a report of a business meeting held to raise money for putting up a house to worship in, and at which it was ordered that of the tobacco crop raised that year, 5,000 pounds should be assessed for the purchase and paid over to the builders. The structure was to be 30 feet 6 long and 20 wide, and at another meeting an assessment of 1,700 pounds of tobacco was made to pay the expenses of ceiling and hanging the doors. No record is made of the spot where the house stood, and every trace of it has disappeared. The clerk in whose land the first records are written was Joseph Pleasants, a native of Henrico county, who came from England and settled under a grant from the King in 1668. A portion of the grant is still in the possession of a member of the family, who now lives on it, and it has been owned by the Pleasants "natives" and a great quantity of minor machinery of various kinds were engaged from 1755 to 1780 at the southeast end of London in a work compared with which the building of the pyramids--with modern appliances--would have been no signal feat. Previously the one entrance to the Victoria docks from the Thames had been at Blackwell Point, but now there is a dock capable of receiving all vessels no matter what they might be. Three and a half miles of wharf have been built, enclosing 90 acres of water. These wharves are 40 feet high, 5 feet thick at the top and 18 feet at 19 feet thick at the bottom, the whole of this enormous mass being composed of solid concrete for which 80,000 tons of Portland cement was used. Some 4,000,000 cubic feet of earth was dug out. It may assist the imagination somewhat to state that if it were filled into ordinary carts, the vehicles would form an unbroken line 7,000 miles long. The excavations went through a submergent forest, and among other curiosities dug out were a reindeer's horn, a Roman vase and what is supposed to be an ancient British canoe carved out of solid oak. The latter is now in the British museum. The new entrance below Woolwich, however, is a matter of great importance. The London and St. Katherine's and Victoria Docks Company are now prepared for vessels of all kinds, not excluding the largest vessels of the British navy. The cost was about £1,000,000.

Man Fighting Animal. Do what we will with him, man is naturally a fighting animal. There is a curious story to be found in Southern books, written by an old hunter about a century ago. There is the same thirst for blood and fierce love of the chase in it as if a beast of prey or grayhound were telling its story. The most amusing example is that the old man tells how he and his sons once trained some young dogs to hunt bears. "I put on the skin of an old bear," he says, "and crawled on all fours, while Elisha and Job drove the pups on. They were scared at first, but presently the whole six attacked me furiously, but my calves, to my hair, hung on my ears. I began to shout 'Enough! but Lisha cried, 'Don't, dad, don't! It's the life of the pups.' He adds, 'Of course I staid. I had consideration for the dogs.' It takes a great deal of training to get a dog to distinguish between men who inherit it. Every body knows the history of the fighting Quakers during the revolutionary war. Many of the stalwart sons of staid sires of the same faith slipped out of meeting during the last war to shoulder a rifle. Of a venerable old friend, a German town, Pa. found that three of his sons had gone to this conflict against which his creed argued him. The youngest felt that he, too, must go, but fearing to tell his father, he took his gun one day and began to trail a fox. He found it in his father's way. The old gentleman saw him and paced slowly up and down, but said nothing. Presently he approached the young man. "Charles," he said, deliberately, "if the devil has made these feet that these need not tread upon my pasture, and even my money, but get the best." Alexander Campbell, the most combative of Scotch reformers and theologians, once submitted his head to the fingers of a phrenologist, who had no knowledge of Mr. Campbell's training. The phrenologist, in conversation with the words: "From your executive ability and love of fighting, sir, you are or ought to be a great soldier." The aged clergyman heaved a sigh, "No sir, no. Circumstances were against it. But according to the motto, 'I've done what I could--I've done what I could.'"

Degeneracy of Sport. "Sport" is getting to be more and more disreputable. There is too much inevitable crookedness. It is hardly necessary to refer to the tendency of prize fights to taper out into fizzes and finks. There is perfunctory quarrelling, and the most innocent matches at ball and racket give rise to multitudinous growls about unfair play. All decent people will be glad that prize fighting has reduced to a swift degeneration, but it seems and that competitions which might be innocent and in some indirect way useful, should lapse into mere money-making schemes. Moral people will say that it all comes of the betting; and the question therefore arises whether we cannot have athletic contests without the betting. Apparently we cannot. Perhaps the ancients bet upon the result of the Olympic games, but from what we know of them they seem to have been engaged in them for the sake of honor. "Sport" on the other hand, is a mere money-making. The rest follows as a matter of course. If a pedestrian can cash by losing a match he will be likely to lose it. If there be pecuniary interest in a race, it will be sold, and he tried to, but he didn't, and I grabbed him and threw him down on to of me like several bricks, and I tell you it beat all--and so did he--and my little dog got behind Bill and bit him, and Bill kicked the dog, and the dog ran and I ran after the dog to fetch him back, and didn't catch him till I got home, and I'll whip him more yet. Is my eye very black?"

Whopping Cough--Dr. Garth, of Vienna, proposes a singular treatment for this distressing ailment, which will doubtless receive careful consideration from the medical profession. He states that by placing twenty drops of the oil of turpentine on a handkerchief, holding it before the face, and taking about forty deep inspirations, to be repeated three daily, marked relief, succeeded in cases of laryngeal catarrh with speedy cure, is the result. Being called in to attend an infant of fifteen months in the convulsive stage, he instructed the child's mother to hold a cloth moistened as already described, before when awake, and to drop the oil upon the pillow when asleep. In this instance the remedy in its effect was most beneficial. The frequency and severity of the attacks sensibly decreased in the course of twenty-four hours, and by proper support by the help of stimulants, improvement was rapid.

Advertising. The Lacon Home Journal gets off the following good one on the profession: The Jersey county medical society, some time ago, resolved not to advertise their names in the newspapers. It was considered "quackery" to mention themselves in print. A meeting of the society was lately held, which the D. Secret reported, omitting all names, merely interlarding the account with numerous dashes, as: Dr. ---, in the chair, Dr. ---, sec'y, Dr. ---, moved, etc. Now the Drs. are mad as hares, and there are not dashes enough outside of a type-foundry to express the highly objectionable words used by them when commenting upon the apparently sincere and courteous effort of the editor to respect their plainly spoken resolution.
