A JAIL BREAKER JUGGED.

Mike Walters, an Iowa Thief Arrest

Some weeks ago the prisoners in the county jail at Des Moines broke out and about fifteen escaped. It was thought some of them might have come to Omaha, and a desective was sent here to watch and secure any fugitives from the Iowa capital that might come to this city. The detective for some time had shadowed a man, who for some time been washing buggies at McShane's livery stable. Feeling certain that he was one of the jail breakers, the detective, with Capt. Donahue, arrested the man last night. He gave his name as Mike Walters, and is thought to be the man wanted at Des Moines for grand larceny. When taken to the jail he refused to give any information concerning himself.

A FRIGHTFUL FALL.

A horrible accident occured at Paxton's building, corner of Fifteenth and Farnam streets, shortly after noon yesterday, which cost Mel Sailsbury his life.

Four men among whom was young Sailsbury, were engaged in removing one of the large plates of glass from the sliding doors in the front of the above mentioned building. The four men were standing upon a pine plank, one foot wide and two inches in thickness, and just as the glass was removed from the door. THE PLANK GAVE AWAY and all four were precipitated into the pasement. In the fall the glass was broken in a thousand pieces and in some way young Sailsbury fell in such a manner as o strike upon a piece of the glass, cut-

He then started out of the office sank exhausted and faint upon the door step. Dr. Lee was passing and at once went to work to save his life if possible. Other physicians were sent for and in a few minutes Doctors Avers. Rebert and several others were present.

The first thing to be done was to find and tie the ends of the several arteries. By this time the injured man had become so faint from that it was thought doubtful whether o not his life could be saved, even if the operation was successfully performed. Several ineffective attempts were made to take up the arteries. By this time the man had partially revived and his cries, which were uttered in a low, weak voice would almost curdle a person's blood, so full were they of anguish and pain,

A large crowd gathered, and it was ecessary for the police to handle some of them quite roughly before they could be made to stand back sufficiently to al low the air to get to the wounded man. The sidewalk was covered with the Death of Two Persons,

A serious runaway occurred yesterday and it was by the merest chance that two persons were not killed by the accident. The runaway team is owned by Mathew Gruber. The team has been used for some time for hauling Sioux Falls granite for atreet paving purposes, and was engaged in that business yesterday morning. About 8:30 Gruber was driving down Sixteenth street with a large load of granite. When in front of Roeder's drug store, the forward end gate of the wagon came out and the granite blocks began to roll off upon the ground. This precipitated Gruber to pavement and he

THE SAVINGS BANK,

Run Caused by a port-No Safer Financial Institution in Omaha.

Wednesdayeve, some onelstarted a false and foolish report about the Omaha Sav ings bank, and there was quite a run on the institution. All depositors, however, who presented their books were promptly paid. Quite a number, when they found the report entirely without foundation, concluded to leave their deposits. The bank did not take advantage of the provision which allows it to demand sixty days' notice from depositors who wish to withdraw. This provision is necessary as the money deposited in the bank is loaned out on real estate, and of course it requires time to reconvert those loans into cash.

There is no more solid financial institu tion in Omaha than the Omaha Sav ings bank. The stockholders are all re sponsible men, some of them being indi-vidually worth mere than the sum of all the deposits in the bank, and each one is liable in twice the amount of his stock. Among the stockholders are such men as J. E. Boyd, W. A. Paxton, Senator Manderson, J. W. Gannett, T. L. Kimball, L. B. Williams, Max Meyer, L. M. Bennett, C. F. Lininger, H. Pundt, E L. Stone, C. H. Dewey and M. C. Keith. The bank is carefully managed, and the money being safely loaned on real estate cannot be lost to the depositors. It should be borne in mind, however, by the patrons of the institution that a savings bank as rule does not carry a large amount of ready money like a commercial bank, as it loans it out as rapidly as possible on real estate.

Would not be without Redding's Russia Salve, is the verdict of all who use it. Price

Up For Argument To-Day.

The Petitit Jury to be Allowed to Go Home This Morning.

terday, Judge Dundy on the bench, two scene. About 225 persons had assembled cases were tried and submitted to the jury, and two verdicts rendered thereon. In the case of Reed against the city of and confusion. But few knew what Plattsmouth, the jury returned a verdict berths they would occupy, and those that of special findings. In the case of Kellogg against Hilton a verdict for $2,890 for plaintiff was returned.

In the case of Hogg against Butler county, the Lincoln Northwestern railway company, and the audiior and secretary of state an important decisions affecting municipal bonds was rendered by Judge Brewer. On the convening of court yesterday morning a demurrer had been filed by the auditor and secretary, defendants to the cross bill of Barnable B. Connable, who claimed to be the holder and owner of a large number of Butler county bonds and prayed that the court direct the auditor and secretary of state to certify under the constitution that they were issued pursuant to law. Mr. Lambertson for the state officers objected for the reason that there was no law of the state making said provision of the constitution operative and until the legislature passed an act stating what inquiries and linvestigations they should make for the | purpose of ascertaining whether the provisions of the law had been complied with and also declaring the form and character the certificate the auditor and secretary could' not be required to certify to any bonds. Judge Brewer took this view of the case and held under the decision of the United States supreme court in the Dixon county bond case that no county or other bonds issued in aid of internal improvements needed a certificate of the auditor and secretary of the state to make them valid and that the court could and would not make an order requiring these state officers to certify to any such bonds.

Before Judge Brewer

held court in the judges chamber the case of Parks against Watson was argued taking up the greater part of the afternoon. This case was brought to set aside certain tax deeds, of five years standing, issued by the treasurer of Otoe county on. Several other cases of importance were argued and submitted.

Yesterday Marshal Beerbower received notice from Washington that the jurors fund had been exhausted. When this term of court opened there were only $700 in this fund to its credit, but it was hoped some provision would be made by which the jury could be detained for the full term. Judge Dundy and Marshal Bierbower held a conference last evening as to the best thing to do in the premises. and it was decided to allow the petit jurors to go home this morning and to diamiss the grand jury on Saturday, b which time its labors will be closed. Should provisions be made the petit jury may be recalled. This will make this term of court practically a failure as only two jury cases have been tried-

The celebrated case of the United States against the Brighton Ranch company will come up on argument this morning. In this case, being a suit brought to enjoin the further use of, and occupation of 52,000 acres of government lands and to abate a fence surrounding the same fifty miles long, exceptions have been raised to the answer which in equity have the same effect as in law, a general demurrer to the answer. The questions raised will be. First: whether th United States have a right to relief in equity by a mandatory injunction or whether they must proceed in a suit at law by ejectment or trespass. Second: whether the answer sets up any defence. The case will be doubtless heard before both judges, Brewer and Dundy. It is expected the decision will terminate the litigation or lay down the rules and prin-ciples that will hereafter govern the subsequent proceedings in the case
