

THE DAILY BEE. Monday Morning, June 9. PRINTERS WANTED. A number of good printers can find steady employment at this office.

LOCAL BREVITIES. The case of Holloway, arrested for burglary, has been investigated by the grand jury and they have found no case against him and he has been discharged.

The Musical Union orchestra will have a grand railroad excursion and picnic at U. P. park, fifteen miles from Omaha on June 29th. They will have a special train, which will leave at 8:30 a. m. and return at 6 p. m.

Misses, Julius Meyer and G. H. Hasman have gone to Lincoln today, to arrange the next Sangerfest which will take place at Lincoln in June, 1885.

The board of managers of the Omaha Sportsmen's club held a meeting Saturday and elected the following delegates to the state convention of sportsmen, to be held at Plattsmouth, on the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th of this month: Judge Lake, R. N. Withnell, W. Preston, Dr. J. H. Peabody and F. J. McShane.

Mr. M. J. Fennan, the marble worker of this city, has just finished a beautiful baptismal font for Grace Episcopal church, Columbus. Chisled upon the face of the font is the inscription: "Of blessed memory the Rt. Rev. R. H. Clarkson, D. D., J. L. D., first bishop of Nebraska--entered into rest March 10th, 1884."

Some of the whistles on the U. P. yard engines, particularly the summit mogul, are holy terrors, and the throttle pullers seem to delight in blowing them for all they are worth. They fill the valley with loud strident screams which make the houses shiver and the people cork their ears. A two-minute blast is followed by two short and sharp blasts that would make an ocean fog-horn die of envy. Four short blasts is now the recognized signal for the girls living adjacent to the track, and every time the signal is given, bunches of animated calico grace the door-ways and windows and flirt with the engines. Draw it mildly, boys, or this BEE will give it away.

Seriously Hurt. Saturday little Frank Elliott, son of M. J. Elliott, the Sixteenth street confectioner, was playing near the track of the C. M., St. P. & O. road, when he found what to him was a great curiosity. It was a little round iron thing and was something that he had never seen before. He procured a stick and began to pound it when all at once the thing, which proved to be a torpedo, exploded. Frank's face was badly burned and his eyes are in a precarious condition. He is under a doctor's care and is suffering great pain. It was carelessness on the part of the railroad employees in leaving a torpedo thus exposed and Mr. Elliott says he will try to hold the company responsible for the damage done his child.

We wish to express our thanks to the editors of The Republican, Herald and Bee for sending the daily papers to our rooms, and to all who have given us aid in the past, we are very grateful.

RATIFYING REPUBLICANS.

They Assemble and Hold an Enthusiastic Meeting. A Reception to be Tendered the Nebraska Delegation at the Boyd.

At the republican ratification meeting, held on the corner of Thirtieth and Douglas streets, Saturday evening, between two and three thousand were present. A platform had been built for the speakers, which was beautifully set off by festoons of Chinese lanterns. Previous to the meeting there was a grand display of fireworks, which continued at broken intervals through the speaking. The U. P. band added to the success of the evening by furnishing the music for the occasion.

The meeting was called to order by G. M. Hitchcock, who, after stating to those present that Hon. J. C. Cowin would be the principal speaker of the evening and addresses would also be made by Judge Neville, I. S. Haccall, J. L. Webster, C. K. Coutant called for three cheers for Blaine and Logan and was met by a hearty response.

After making a brief speech Mr. Hitchcock was followed by Postmaster Contant, Col. Smythe, H. D. Estabrook and E. M. Bartlett, each of whom spoke in great praise of the wisdom of the Chicago convention and prophesied the overwhelming defeat of democracy at the polls in November. Mr. Cowin then addressed the meeting as follows:

MR. COWIN'S ADDRESS. Mr. President and fellow citizens--It seems to me that at the present we are living again in some of the grandest history of the republican party of the past. It seems to me that with the enthusiasm that is demonstrated here to-night, we see again before us the grand achievements of the grand man that we have nominated to be the standard bearer of the republican party. I have but a word to say at this meeting, and that is simply to add my voice to the ratification of the nomination of the Chicago convention, and no man, be he republican or be he democrat, be he greenbacker, be he black or white; be they men or be they women, for many women do better than men so far as that is concerned--none of them can help but feel proud of the man selected at Chicago, as candidates on the republican ticket, James G. Blaine is a man that will not call the blush of shame to the face of any living American, no matter of what nationality he may be. [Vociferous cheering.] I am glad to endorse James G. Blaine for the reason that he is a representative of young and old America, and a specimen of noble manhood. A specimen, of men of what a man may make of himself when his manly exercises his own judgment, his own ability as given him by his God, and in a word worthy to be followed by all young men of this country. I wish also to ratify the nomination of Blaine and Logan as candidates for president and vice president, and that is the only thing I have to say in the direction of the man who have, on all important issues, kept quiet. So that when an available man is presented, it is not necessary to say anything on this issue or that, and if he has not committed himself by saying or doing anything, he is nominated. Never since James G. Blaine was nominated, has there been so important a political issue but that he has taken firm and determined ideas and has exercised his own power in the direction of what he thought was right, no matter what his man that might think. I want to rouse up the latest enthusiasm of the people of this country, was a man for president, and I believe in the deserts, on the shores of any country he will know that there is a president at the head of the nation that will protect him. I want a president at the head of the United States, and I believe we will get such an one, that will make the stars and stripes as significant and sacred as the stars and stripes as they are right here in the city of Omaha. [Applause.] I want a man that has some interest in the nation outside of the routine of his office, such a man, believe me, I believe James G. Blaine. We have next a man, if not his superior, if not his equal, a man well worthy of being placed first on the ticket if it were necessary, but we have him in second. He is a man that has stood by the government in the hours of its trial, the champion of the soldiers independent of this country. Without making a prediction, I know that James G. Blaine and John A. Logan are worthy representative American citizens and I have no doubt that with the bold they have on hearts of the American people, their election will be triumphant and it will take something more than a corpse to beat them. [Loud applause.]

Mr. Cowin was followed by Messrs. Burke and Breckinridge.

The meeting was enthusiastic from beginning to end and every speaker was frequently long and loudly applauded.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. Estabrook and adopted that a committee be appointed to meet the Nebraska delegation on its arrival and welcome it back to Omaha; and that a reception be tendered them this evening at Boyd's opera house. The chair appointed Messrs. Estabrook, Haccall, Hunt, Coutant, Bechel, Behm and Yost as the committee on reception. The meeting then adjourned.

Scared Employees. The lady clerks in the telephone office were considerably frightened Saturday morning. Some men were at work on the roof of the building and by their jarring loosened the plaster and it fell, a large piece of it striking one of the operators, Miss Swope, upon the head. She was not seriously hurt but was so badly frightened as to have a slight attack of hysteria. This frightened the other ladies, who were positively certain that the building had been struck with lightning.

A Small Fire. About fifteen minutes past 8 Saturday morning an alarm of fire was sent in, caused by a profusion of smoke in C. S. Higgins saloon. The department responded promptly and after arriving at the place it was sometime before the fire could be found. It was finally discovered in the partition in the rear of the range and was speedily extinguished. This is the second time that fire has been occasioned in the same way. Now the lath and plaster will be torn from the wall and the range set back against the brick.

At the Congregational Church. Miss Ella McBride, the elocutionist, who has recently come to this city, and a group of favorite musical artists entertained a large audience at the First Congregational church Friday evening. Miss McBride scored a decided success showing that she is possessed of true dramatic instinct and fire, a voice capable of expressing the different emotions, a commanding stage presence, and much personal magnetism. She avoids the error that which many professional readers fall into and inserts familiar lines with new force and beauty. This was notably true of her rendering of "Aux Italiens." The scene from "Macbeth" fulfilled the most exacting requirements, while the pathos and humor of other numbers were as artistically given as could have been asked.

As regards the musical part of the entertainment, it was delightful in the extreme. Mr. Mayer's organ solo, the performance of the old favorite Mr. Reed, Mr. Northrop's song, Miss Calderwood's songs, one of which was encored, and the church choir and Glee Club quartettes proved, as had been anticipated, rare treats.

House Movers Wanted. It is a dead certainty that a few more house-movers are wanted in Omaha. There is but one firm in the city which attends to the business and the consequence is that they continually have more than they can attend to. This accounts for the number of buildings which are standing in the streets in various parts of the city. One in particular, stood at the corner of Sixteenth and Douglas streets for more than five weeks. There was so much said about it that it was moved up Sixteenth to Henry street, where it has stood for three weeks. It is now time that it is moved on to where it is intended to go or else set on fire and burned down, as it is an intolerable nuisance in its present condition. The house-movers are not alone to blame in this matter, but the city authorities for allowing such things.

DISAGREEABLE NEIGHBORS. Bitter Feeling Against Certain Prominent Men for Renting Their Houses to the Sold Doves of the City.

Omaha, June 7, 1884. Editor Omaha Bee: The hitherto quiet and tranquil location of South Jackson street, is fast losing its original fascination as a place of residence. The fresh, fragrant and balmy air of that choice location is fast being polluted, poisoned and tarnished, by the foul breath and intolerable presence of prostitutes, with their dives and dens of iniquity, under the disguise of "Room to Rent," "Laundry," "Dress-making," &c. The principal source of this nuisance of late is fast centering on that part of Jackson, between Thirtieth and Fourteenth streets. In this article we will not mention the names of the inmates of the owners of the property. We deem their presence an outrage upon our citizenship, a scandal to the locality and a direct insult to our morals and religion. It is certainly humiliating to us who pay high taxes and high rents in the heart of a city of this magnitude to have to remain within our doors or be forced to the painful necessity of sitting on our porch in front of a house a scene of foul breath and, at times, half naked prostitutes. We, the law adding citizens of this locality call upon the officers of the law for a redress of our grievances.

CITIZENS OF JACKSON ST. Ask your druggist for Redding's Russia Salve. Keep it in the house in case of accidents. Price 25c.

Golden Years. Cards have been issued announcing the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Peironnet, at their home on South Eleventh street, on Wednesday evening, June 11, 1884. The couple are to be congratulated upon the happy outcome of their married life, for very few couples there are who are so long spared to comfort and assist each other.

Police Court. In police court Saturday Mike Berry was fined $5, and costs for being drunk.

Geo. Leens, for striking a woman and her little baby, was held pending an investigation.

Friday night Lilly Woods, a prostitute that lives at Norris' on Twelfth street, gave "Broncho Kate" a slap in the face for interfering in affairs which did not in any way concern her. Lilly was arrested and held for trial and says she will have "Bronco" arrested for stealing.

John Nea, arrested for vagrancy, was discharged.

The State University. J. T. Mallalieu, of Kearney, one of the regents of the university, passed through Omaha yesterday on his way to Lincoln. While there he will attend the meeting of the board on Wednesday which will issue diplomas to this year's graduates from the university and elect professors to the seats now vacant in the faculty. The chairs to be filled are those of Agriculture and Horticulture, and Natural Science, both of which have been made vacant by resignations. Professors Thompson and Aughey. The regents have been considering, of late, the feasibility of adding two new chairs to the faculty--those of Veterinary Surgery and technical arts. Mr. Mallalieu says it is the feeling of the board to continue for the coming year the old order of things and no changes will be made unless for good cause.

RELIEVED OF HIS ROLL. A Young Man is Hobbed of $17 in Money and His Watch.

Last evening about 10 o'clock a young man who works in Frederick's hat store but whose name could not be learned came running down to the Farnam street office saying he thought he had killed a man. On inquiry it was learned he was on his way up St. Mary's avenue and when between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets he was met by a stranger who ordered him to deliver over his money and valuables. The young man handed up $17 in money and his watch. The robber then started down town when the boy pulled his pistol and fired it at the robbing highwayman. He was not hurt. SUNDAY PASTIMES.

The German Theatre, and the Picnics at Haecall's Park. THE GERMAN THEATRE. Last evening, owing to the threatening appearance of the weather, the performance at the German theatre were held in the Winter hall. Two plays were presented, namely, "A woman's crime," and "Through the key hole." The first piece was a melodramatic character and was very favorably received. Miss K. Spohn, who has now become quite a favorite among frequenters of the German theatre, sustained the role of Mathilde, the guilty wife, admirably and was several times recalled. Mr. Molchin, who personated Dumont, the banker, was excellent and little Miss Minnie Brandt as Joanne was immense. Mr. Niemann, in the character of Alvarez, manifested considerable ability, and the ever-popular Miss Puls-Ahl was vociferously applauded for her rendition of Madame Laree.

The after-piece, "Through a Keyhole," proved to be a very amusing and entertaining farce. Mr. Molchin made a highly commendable Dr. Horn; and the Amalie of Mrs. Puls-Ahl was above the average. Mr. Niemann made the most of the part allotted to him that of Dueringsfeld, and Mrs. Niemann as Glise created a very favorable impression. The Kraemel of Mr. Schmidtloff is worthy of praise; and Mr. Puls in the personification of a servant of a comical turn excited the risibility of the audience.

THE DANISH PICNIC. The society known as the Danish Brotherhood gave a grand picnic yesterday in Haecall's park. There was a large attendance of Danish residents of this city, and a good time was passed generally and all present in dancing, racing and other sports. The Union Pacific band was present and enlivened the affair with some stirring strains. The following gentlemen composed the very efficient committee on arrangements: Chris Hanson, Theo. Olsen, H. Jessen, Charlie Olsen, A. Gram, H. Larson, E. Peterson, O. Lohm, P. Smith, T. Neilson and P. H. Johnson.

THE THURSTON HOSE CO. The boys of the Thurston Hose Co. had a big time yesterday at Haecall's park. There is no question but that their picnic was one of the greatest successes in every way, which was no doubt largely attributable to the favorableness of the weather and also to the fact that when the boys of the fire department undertake anything, whether it be the extinguishing of a fire or the celebration of a picnic, they are bound to succeed.

The increasing list of friends and acquaintances in Omaha of Mr. and Mrs. O'Regan, and their legion of friends in Iowa, will be gratified to learn that Mrs. O'Regan passed the ordeal bravely, that she is now beyond the danger point, and that the little stranger is happy, healthy and, of course, handsome. As a little girl had been calculated on, and, in fact, the name selected, the dotting parents are somewhat at a loss for a title to the little fellow. Blaine, Parnell and others have been suggested, but up to the time of going to press, the important and all-absorbing question had not been definitely settled.

On Saturday evening Marshal Guthrie issued an order to roundsman Tom Ruane to go with several officers to the theatre comique and search all persons there for concealed weapons. In obedience to the order Ruane, with several other officers proceeded to the place early in the evening. They examined all who were there and found one man carrying a loaded revolver. He was taken to the city jail where the proper charge was lodged against him.

A Shooting Match.

O'Neill Frontier. A big shooting match is on the tapis. An Omaha man named Mills
