I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I hooped at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six year since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years; and has kept her and my children, well and hearty with from to to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters

SIGNOR SALVINI'S BRIDE.

Miss Adele Belgarde Captures the Swarthy Italian

The Marriage Largely Dependent Upon His Arrangement of a Prominent Successful Tour-The Lady's Career.

N. Y. Journal. The report that Signor Tomaso Salvini sometimes irreverently termed Tomato Salvini, is to wed Miss Adele Belgarde, had done for her, she at oncegot and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

"The accord dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had wed her on American soil. A copious correspondence has been going on between them since Mr. Salvini left for Eu rope last year, and there is every likeli-hood that in spite of the fact that the future bridegroom has the reputation of being a gay deceiver, he will keep his promise anyhow, whether he comes here or not. When the time came to depart he made her a formal declaration of his love and that then and there he promised to come and take her to his Italian home near ters translated to her by any third party, and she so mastered the lauguage that she has been able with the aid of a dictiis owing to the fact that he is married already in Italy and has several children. This in a sense, is a calumny. It is true that Mr. Saluini was married and had several children, but his will has been dead a number of years. They did not live happily together, and for a long time before her death they did not live happily together, and for a long time before her death they did not live happily together, and for a long time before her death they did not live happily together. That Trustee Pullback be experiment.

Mr. Salvini is much the senior of his future wife. She is not over twentyeight years of age—certainly not twenty-nine—while he is about sixty. But he is a very robust man and carries his age well. He does not look more than forty-five. He looks as if he had twenty good years of life in him yet, which is not usual in an Italian.

Miss Adele Belgarde is not very well known in this city, though she has been connected with the stage in a modest way for several years. She began her career dramatically in Albany a few seasons since as a Shakespeareian star, under the management of Mr. Horace Wall, well known as the manager of the late E. A. Sothern, and since of his son. Mr. Wall managed her as an amateur. She had managed her as an amateur. She had some money to spend to make herself an actress, and he expended it judiciously. She displayed some talent, though she flew too high, and after a while she subsided. The next heard of her was that she was to make a tour under the brilliant H. J. Sargent. He managed her as a boom and brought her out as Hamlet. The season took her down south, where the whole thing ended very disastrously.

The promise of marriage was, it appears made during Mr. Salvini's last season here when Miss Belgarde was his leading lady and his Desdemona. She never developed any great power acting, but that naturally best suited the star, who does not desire to see any great ability in the members of his support. But she was very sweet and sympathetic in her acting and surprised manufactured only by having the star of the star of the star of the wild west Exhibition is to take place at half-past eight o'clock this morning. The roasted ox was then served in large tin plates, after the fashion of life on the prairies. The meat had a peculiar richness and succulence and caused serious doubts to arise in the minds of some of the gentlemen present who live in boarding houses as to whether they had been really eating beef for some years past. A large barrel and several corpulent bottles were noticeable in a corner of the tent, and the eyes of a number of persons in the party turned upon them during the progress of the meal with an expression of horrified suspicion. Mr. Cody, however, noticing these looks, speedily put all temperance scruples at rest by explaining that the cask was nicknamed "Hiawaths." and that it contained the laughing waters of Dreen-ken-swell river, a stream recently discovered in the Indian territory. The bottles, he said, contained various preparations concoted by various medicine men. The various fluids were tested
