TORN BY A THUNDERBOLT.

Homan's Livery Barn Struck by Lightning Last Evening.

Last evening about 6 o'clock and while the sun was shining clear, Mr. Homas and the men at work about his barn, or sented a memorial to the council for Thirteenth street near Howard, were startled by a loud report. It was first thought that a keg of powder in [Steele Johnson & Co.'s store house had exploded, but the appearance of dense smoke in the rear of the stable dispelled this belief.

On examination a large hole on the side of the building marking the course of a thunder-bolt was found. Sometime ago when the alley, along the barn, was graded the ground wire of the lightning rod to the barn was torn off and had never been replaced. It appeared that the bolt striking the rod had followed to the end, then running off into the barn ran along an iron bolt until it reached the electric light wire and melting it off was lost. Several horses standing close by were knocked down but soon got up again. The men used hand fire grenades and threw them upon the hay loft whence smoke was issuing. The bolt, however, had not lit a flame and the smoke soon

Motions to Quash.

In the district court yesterday, John M. Thurston, W. J. Connell and Simon Bloom, attorneys for Chase, and E. E. Smythe, attorney for Guthrie, filed mo tions to quash in all their clients' cases. The alleged grounds for quashing all these indictments are the misjoinder of parties where Chase and Guthrie are jointly indicted and when separately that the indictments are defective and insufficient. The court, with both judges on the bench yesterday, heard the arguments of Thurston and Connell for the detense, and Goodwin for the state, on notion to quash the indictments where Chase and Guthrie are jointly indicted court.

A BOOM FOR OMAHA.

in this City.

Bone Charcoal and Fine Pottery to be Manufactured in the Gate

City.

Omaha is now promised another addition to her large manufacturing interests which will, in time, surpass anything in its line, in size or proportions, in this part of the United States.

For many years it has been thought there existed in many parts of Nebraska a kaolin or potter's clay, from which all kinds of earthenware could be manufactured. Mr. Schaller, who has been investigating this subject for the last twelve years, became at last satisfied that it existed in Nebraska in different places, me north, one south and one west of Omaha. The last bed does not lie over four miles from the court house. Here the best quality of clay of all kinds is found in inexhaustible quantities.

On last April Mr. T. W. Higginbottom, of the great Staffordshire, England, pottery works, came into this section of United States to look after a supply of bone dust which is largely used in the manufacture of pottery and fine earthen wares. While here he was shown the kind of clay that existed in several points of Nebraska and after giving it a careful examination pronounced it the equal if not the superior of the clay now used in the works in England with which he has een connected since childhood.

So thoroughly was Mr. Higginbottom satisfied of the feasibility of starting a a manufactory here that he at once enlisted himself into the cause of forming a company for this purpose. The railroad companies were seen and they promised to do all in their power to foster and encourage this scheme which promises to be a manufactory in this state whose raw materials are to be found in Nebraska.

The works for the manufactory of these pottery and earthenwares will be ocated either on the U. P., or B. & M. tracks, south of the city and just outside the corporate limits. The works will be divided into two parts. In one brick, common, pressed, and glazed and agricultural drain tile will be manufactured. The raw material for these products are found close to the works and cars will not be needed to transport it to the manufactory. In the second the kaolin or real potters earth will be used as the raw material from which will be made all commoner classes of pottery, plates, dishes. cups and saucers, chimney pots, glazed tiles for lining lavatories, bath rooms, and fire brick of the best quality, to be used as flooring, the same as now are used in the Omaha National bank in A decision will be rendered to-day by the this city, terra cotta and glazed socket sewer pipes from four to twenty-four

Clay.

This company will start with a capital of $100,000, $25,000 of which Mr. Higginbottom will take for himself. The balance necessary to carry on this great project will be subscribed by Omaha capitalists, and when the works are developed sufficiently to show the quality of their products English capital will lend its aid to an unlimited amount.

It is intended by those interested in this project to fully supply the Omaha trade and at greatly reduced rates. These products, when the works are fully de-veloped, will be made in such quantities as will supply in a great measure the demands of western markets for these kinds of goods. The great Staffordshire works now covers three acres of ground, and employs three hundred hands. It is expected that at no distant day these works will assume like proportions and employ a like number of hands. Mr. Higginbottom is now in communication with skilled artisans in this trade who will come from Stafford shire to go to work in the Omaha manufactory whenever it shall be opened and ready to turn out its products. The gentleman says enough will come at his bid-ding to fill all the places where skilled labor is needed. The necessary machinery for the manufacture of pottery will all be imported from Staffordshire, and can be on the ground here within two months after it is ordered.

The land to be used by this company will be fourteen acres. The work of clearing it and ordering the machinery will begin on or before August first of this year. A BEE reporter was shown a grea mumber of specimens of pottery ware by Mr. Higgenbottom, which were made at his works in Staffordshire. They are unique in designs and are the equal in quality, material and workmanship of the goods in any china store in the city. DISTINGUISHED PASSENGE

Admiral T. Ito, of the Japanese Navy Passes Through Omaha,

Yesterday's train over the C. B. & O. brought into Omaha a distinguished foreigner, who, had it not been for that peculiar cast of feature which marked him as one of the Mongolian race, would have passed through the city unnoticed. This distinguished gentleman was T, Ito, an admiral in the navy of Japan, who, with two others of his rank and six vice admirals, command and control the men-

Admiral Ito was on his way from England to his native country, going home by what he called the "overland" route. Although high in office and representing his government abroad in his official capacity he traveled without even a servant or a page, preferring, he said, to avoid the gaze and attention of strang-ers, which a retinue of foreign menials always command.

When he was approached by a reporter he expressed himself in broken though intelligible English, and stated that his business in this country, was simply a journey homeward.

He continued that some fifteen months ago his government, feeling the need of better defenses in time of war and deeming its navy to be in a somewhat demoralized condition, had sent him over to England to examine the navy of the "mistress of the seas," All this time since he had been traveling amoung the various seaports and investigating her ships and steamers Before he left England, however, he entered into a contract for his government to have built four ironclads of the latest and most approved pattern. The boats will cost on the docks of the Clyde £250,-000 each, or $1,000,000. They are to be completed by two years from July 1st next. He also contracted for the construction of several merchantmen for private parties now in Japan. Having finished his business he started for home, and landed in New York June 2. He remained there some time and then came to Chicago, where he stayed a couple of days. He stopped only long enough to change cars for Denver. He will arrive in San Francisco about the 1st of July, and intends to be in his native country by August 1. He expressed himself pleased with America, and said that at no distant day he would visit it.

MR. DAILEY has made arrangements with the B. & M. R. R. to return all who attend his sale at Lincoln on June 26, at one-fourth the regular fare.
