

THE DAILY BEE.

Wednesday Morning, June 25.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Forepugh's big circus bills were placed upon the bill boards yesterday. A ten year old boy had two of his fingers taken off yesterday by getting them caught in a tackle block at the corner of Thirteenth and Leavenworth streets.

The commencement exercises of the High school takes place this evening at the opera house. A fine literary and musical programme has been prepared, to which all are invited to listen.

J. J. Schneider, the man who was struck in this city a few days since and taken to the poor farm, has recovered sufficiently so that he is able to walk around in the shade but as he steps out into the sunshine he becomes sick.

The large plate glass in the Washab ticket office, which was shattered by a bullet from a revolver fired by a man, has just been replaced by a new one. It is said that Frank Moore, the general ticket agent, saw the bullet approaching, and with his usual alacrity dodged it, thus saving himself.

A Caucasian and an almond-eyed Celestial last evening engaged in a dispute on Harney street over five cents which the Asiatic claimed, the American owned him and refused to pay. The quarrel ended by the white man's being thrown head first through the window by Wing Foo and his companions.

Captain O'Donoghue, of the police force, is entitled to the sympathy of this community. It is only a few weeks since that he was called to Chicago by the death of his wife, and now comes another summons. Yesterday he received a telegram from Chicago announcing the death of his little daughter, eighteen months old. He left for that city in the afternoon.

Patrick Rockbird, who was arrested Tuesday night for beating his wife in police court yesterday and so was the old lady in jail for him. She said she would forgive him if the judge would, and would take him over to her heart. The judge concluded to let him go but first sentenced him to three months in the county jail, but suspended the sentence during Pat's good behavior. If in the next eighteen months he is arrested he will be compelled to serve out the sentence.

PERSONAL.

H. Newnam, of Oakfield, is at the Metropolitan. C. R. Fletcher, of Detroit, is at the Metropolitan. E. S. Thompson, of Atlantic, Iowa, is at the Metropolitan.

There was a change of 25 degrees in one hour during the storm, the mercury dropping from 91 in the shade to 66. The scales of justice on the new court house were knocked out of balance by the wind yesterday afternoon.

On Farnham street the sign of the big 'G' in front of Keuter's saloon blew down breaking several window panes in the fall. Lorenzen's cigar sign was knocked out of plumb by the wind.

A number of bill-boards about the city were blown to smithereens during the storm. The storm at Council Bluffs was more severe than it was at Omaha, the wind blowing stronger than it did here. A large crowd had gathered at the circus grounds just previous to the storm to attend the Barrot circus.

Ladies should reflect before using any preparation that is applied to the delicate surface as the skin. Any cosmetic will at first impart a beautifying effect and not apparently injure the skin, but in a very short time little blotches and discolorations appear on the face which conclusively show the poisonous drugs in their composition. It can be safely said that more than two thirds of the face powders contain these injurious ingredients.

Many medicines now on the market owe what virtue they possess to the presence of powerful and poisonous drugs. Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY is purely vegetable and will not injure the feeblest and most delicate person.

A BIG BLOW.

A Heavy Wind and Rain Storm Which Drove Everybody to Shelter--Considerable Damage Done.

A Circus Tent Blown Down in Council Bluffs--One Man Killed and Several Wounded.

This city was treated yesterday to a miniature tornado. During the dinner hour the clouds rolled up thick and black from the west and almost without warning the storm turned itself loose. The streets were filled with clouds of dust, pieces of paper, small boxes and all kinds of refuse, with a liberal sprinkling of hurrying humanity.

It was indeed a comical sight to see ladies wrestling with their parasols while the wind tossed them hither and thither. Their dress skirts made fine game for the unblinking wind and filled like a balloon they hurried the wearers along at an exceedingly swift pace.

To add to the discomfort of many of the ladies, the forenoon having been sweltering hot, they had come down town dressed in snowy whiteness, and by the way, some very nice white costumes were to be seen upon the streets during the forenoon. Nearly everybody who knows anything at all about human nature knows that a lady never feels comfortable in a rain storm when she is robed in a white gown. A good many Omaha ladies felt uncomfortable to-day.

The ladies were not the only ones who were out of humor. It was a funny thing for a man to breast the storm, armed with a big umbrella while the wind blew around at will, while inside the stores, peeping through the windows, were crowds of human beings laughing at the unfortunate carrier of the measly thing.

While the rain was decidedly unpleasant to all who happened to be away from home, it was a good thing in many respects. It cooled the atmosphere and it was possible in the afternoon to draw a lung breath. It washed the dust and mud from the pavements, which was not blown away by the wind.

The strong wind did some damage about the city. A number of trees were blown down, as were also some fences. The fence and gate of the Tivoli beer garden were laid low.

St. Philomena cathedral spire veered from one side to the other, and for a time looked as if it was going to succumb to the elements and fall prostrate in the street, but it stood the storm all right.

The Missouri river felt the influence of the rain and during the storm raised considerable, and rushed on looking more muddy and ugly than ever before. It was one of the hardest storms that has visited this section this season, and it is hoped that they will come in a little milder form.

children and that man to support, and yet he beats me all the time." The last sentence was spoken in the most agonizing despair, and the poor woman's voice choked with sobs. The two little girls at her side, though pale with fright, attempted to soothe her; and said, "Now, don't cry, mamma."

The brute had struck his wife in the face, making an ugly gash. He ought to be sent up for five years.

CREIGHTON COLLEGE.

Its Commencement Last Evening Attended by Many Omaha Citizens.

Six Years of Successful Work by This Institution. The hall of Creighton college was completely filled last evening by citizens of Omaha, who were present to witness the sixth annual commencement exercises of this home institution of learning.

The room was beautifully decorated and arranged for this occasion. The frame work about the stage was festooned with evergreen wreaths upon the rostrum had been placed the chemical appliances to be used during the evening's entertainment, and surrounding all were the almost life size picture of Edward Creighton, and Mary L. Creighton his wife, through whose munificence and liberality this college was brought into existence.

Upon either side of the stage were seated the students of the institution, numbering nearly two hundred. In front of it sat the faculty, ten in number, Bishop O'Connor, Fathers Coliniere, Shafiel, Koopmans, Daxacher and Pelt from the Catholic settlement near Olean, the two Fathers Glauber and Father Seraphim, of Columbus, who had come to Omaha to be present at these closing exercises.

The exercises were opened by the overture "Fra Diavolo," rendered by the Musical Union orchestra of this city. It was well received and called forth loud applause from the audience.

"WHAT GOOD HAS HISTORY DONE?" was the theme of the next exercise, an oration delivered by Master Peter Corrigan. Said the speaker: "In history, nations can read their past and their future." The greatest pages of history the orator continued relate, between virtuous and vices, in which struggles the former have always come out triumphant. In history patriots bring their courage into luxuries, finally by ambition pride and envy, and so they, and their people are brought to ruin, like the worm that waits for the fruit to grow, only to destroy it. Unless some strong moral principle underlies all institutions, they must fall. This exercise was well delivered, great pains having been taken to make it the success which it was.

"Prompeter's Lust" — a cornet solo, by Henry T. Irvine, was a fine rendition of this beautiful piece, and elicited rounds of applause.

"THE AIR WE BREATHE." The next in order was a lecture in two parts, by John Whalen and Francis McGuire. We are in the bottom of a great sea, whose existence is as necessary to us as water to fish. Experiments were then resorted to to show the component parts of air. The nature of oxygen was shown by several experiments. The nitrogen jar was also brought into use. That air has weight was also shown, by experiments with the exhausted globe, the barometer and the pump. The pressure upwards, downwards and laterals was also shown. These experiments and the ease and success with which they were accomplished showed these two young men to be not mere tyros in the search of scientific knowledge.

"Fair Sister the Moon" — a song by Master Chatham Redick — a song by such a manner as to call him back for a second. He then sang "The Last Rose of Summer" and at its close was loudly applauded.

"PREPARING FOR EXHIBITION" A dialogue in seven parts by Master Patrick McGovern, Emmet McCreary, Edward Creighton, James Murray, Augustus Cooper and Steven Boylston. The play is little exercise represented a group of small boys appointing their parts for an exhibition without the aid of those older than they. Master Creighton gave "Old Oaken Bucket," Master Cooper "Nobody's Child," Master Murray "The Razor Seller," Master Murray "The Return of Regulus," Master Boylston "I've Wandered to the Village, Tom," Master McCreary "Stay, Jailor, Stay," and Master McGovern "He is not Mad." The recitations were well spoken and each speaker being presented with a beautiful bouquet at the close of his part.

The next was potpourri, "Pleasant Recollections," which was well received. Then came the distribution of premiums by Bishop O'Connor, as follows: The John A. Creighton medal for excellence in the classical course—Francis J. McGovern. The medal for excellence in the third academic—William Quinlan. The John McCreary medal for excellence in first rhetoric commercial course—Peter Corrigan. The medal for excellence second rhetoric—Edward McGovern. The first grammar class excellence medal—John Fitzpatrick. The second grammar class excellence medal, by Francis Dellone—William Brady.

The first rudiments excellence medal donated by Felix McShane—Hartnett Murray. The second rudiments excellence medal—Francis McShane. Then came the finale "Nabuccadnezzar" and music by the orchestra, which closed the exercises of the evening.

The institution, which has grown up with Omaha seems to be appreciated by its citizens. The attendance last year was 275, the greater number of whom were going to school when it closed for the year. Nearly every one of these students live in the city. The faculty now consists of ten able teachers, whose work is given to educational purposes.

To more fully meet the needs and demands of parents it has been deemed best by the college authorities to change the courses of study. Hereafter there will only be one course, which faculty now consists of ten able teachers, whose work is given to educational purposes.

OVERRULED.

The Motions in Guthrie's Cases Held 'Not Well Taken.'

Mayor Chase's Not Yet Determined—Mrs. Ward Secures a Divorce.

In the district court room yesterday quite a crowd was present to hear the decisions of the judges upon the motions to quash in the Chase and Guthrie cases. The decision of the court by Judge Neville, overruled the motions in all the latter cases. In the cases against the mayor, the court stated that for the present it would render no opinion, the difficulty being to determine whether or not the mayor is a ministerial officer as charged in the indictment.

The court, upon rendering its decision, ordered the case of the state against Guthrie set down for trial at two p. m. yesterday. At that time the defendant, by his counsel, Colonel Smythe, was present, and asked for a continuance until Mayor Chase, who, it was shown, would not be able to be in court for a week, could be present. Smythe was informed by the district attorney that in the case to be taken up Mayor Chase's testimony would not be needed, as he knew nothing concerning the charges in the indictment.

Smythe then asked for time until tomorrow morning. The court did not seem at all inclined to grant it. The defendant's counsel said he was called into the case only last Saturday and more time was necessary, and if the court insisted upon going to trial yesterday afternoon he would withdraw from the case. The court then allowed the case to go over until this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

An attorney Godwin then stated to the court that he could be ready to-morrow morning to try three cases against Guthrie, and would go through with them all until a conviction was reached or he was acquitted.

Judge Neville said he should have three cases ready against three individuals and not against one. Mr. Godwin stated he had arranged the criminal calendar for the best interest of the state, as he thought, and if the court wished to change it it could do so, but he would resign, and another district attorney might be appointed.

The case of Matilda Ward against William Ward was then taken up. This suit was brought by Mrs. Ward to obtain a decree of divorce from her husband, alleging want of support and cruelty. There was no appearance of defendant, either in person or by attorney.

The court stated that her attorney, after the plaintiff and her daughter had testified, that he would grant a divorce, but that she should be entered up until July 11, that being the day set down for trial on the trial docket.

Mr. Ferguson, attorney for Kinney, indicted for abducting with intent to kill, argued his motion to quash, which was overruled by the court.
