A Much Astonished Dude.

Passaic Cor. New York World. In an east bound train from Paterson this morning sat a young man, dressed in the height of fashion. He wore a single eyeglass and amateur mustache and a pair of clandestine side whiskers that made him look as if he permitted his hair to grow long in front, but had forgotten that his ears would keep the sun off and retard the growth. A stout woman, who resembled a bale of hay At the well-known Establishment uied in the middle, with a baby took a seat beside him. She placed the sleeping infant on the seat and disappeared. As the car started onward again the young man, probably imagining that the wicked woman was endeavoring to put up a job on him, grabbed the child, ran to the rear platform, handed the infant to a native, and, pointing to a woman who was just disappearing through the door, said "Catch that woman! She tried to abandon her baby in the train." Then, with a satisfied air on his lawntennis face, he retook his seat. In a few minutes the mother returned. The train was going at the rate of twenty miles an hour. "Where's my child?" she gasped.

"I-I-I thought you were gone," he said. There wasn't room enough in the car so warm for the young man that he cantered off to the baggage car. At Passaic Bridge the almost frantic mother alighted and returned to this city, where she found the baby in charge of Expressman Norman.

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice in praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla fully justified the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are based entirely on what the people say Hood's Sarsaparilla has done. Send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for book containing statements of many cures.

Discovery of a Missing Heir.

The will of Wolfgang Kiesling, who died March 11, 1881, contained a clause bequeathing property amounting to $1,-150 to a missing son, John C. Kiesling providing the latter was found within three years from the death of the testator. If not, the share was to go to a widowed sister of the in Bavaria, Germany. This limitation, under the will, Main street. expired some time ago: but as counsel had ascertained that the son was living somewhere in the west, about 100 letters to postmasters out west were mailed. A letter was received from Ackley, Iowa stating that the heir was there, and sub-sequently a claim was put in by him for his inheritance. Since then the substituted legatee in Bavaria sought by petition to be awarded the property, but Judge Ashmah, in an opinion delivered yesterday, held that as the subsequent knowledge of the younger Kiesling's whereabouts was so distinctly admitted no adverse judgment would bind him, and certainly none would conform to equitable principles which did not first require that he should be made a party to the record. The Court directed that the heir be notified to answer to the petition within twenty days from his receipt of the notice.

In the early days of Virginia City there was a run on a bank, but before the depositors had time to draw out much the institution closed its doors and announced a suspension. Idaho Mica Mines.

Walla Walla (W. T.) Journal. Among the mining discoveries of last year, probably not the least important was that of what seemed to be expensive creek, Potlatch county, I. T. Last summer and fall several mining claims were taken up in the region mentioned and work at development begun. Several shipments of the product to New York and Chicago were made with good re-sults and one of the eastern firms which handle the material have offered to place an agent at Moscow to buy all the output. The Woody mine has been most worked and shows large amounts of mica of good size and good quality. The proprietors have arranged to put thirty men at once, running them night and day, in three eight-hour shifts. The other claims have been hardly tested, but all promise well. The mineral shipped out has brought an average of $3.50 per pound, Several Wall Wallans have in- United States Depository terests in these mines,
