The Mayor's New Schemes for Advertising the City.
Mayor Vaughan is preparing to issue a 40 column paper, to be entitled "Official Review of Council Bluffs," and devoted entirely to the showing up of the various advantages of this city. There will be but one issue, and this paper is to be given wholly to reading matter, without a single advertisement in it. The plan is to pay the expenses of publishing this review by private contributions entirely, and then distribute the papers free, the number to be from 5,000 to 25,000 according to the contributions offered. The paper is especially intended to attract the attention and excite the interests of eastern capitalists and manufacturers who by a proper presentation of the advantages offered by Council Bluffs might be induced to invest here. The review is to be divided into different heads, showing the city as a wholesale and retail point, its advantages for manufacturing, its buildings, public and private societies, paving and sewerage improvements, the waterworks, gas, street railway, its parks and drives, its fruit farms and vineyards, railways, electric lights, etc., etc., covering all possible questions as to Council Bluffs. These papers are to be given to any and all who will mail them, and anyone having any suggestions or information in the line indicated are requested to present the same. Col. Keatley will probably be associated in the work.

Another great scheme which he had on foot is for a grand gathering of commercial travellers with their samples. Two or three days are to be designated for this purpose, and will not only be announced in this Review, but will also be announced in a circular invitation to be sent out by the merchants to the houses with whom they are dealing. The travellers are to be entertained by carriages, bands, receptions, etc., etc., and be expected to donate a part of the time here in opening up their samples and displaying them, and it is expected that many merchants from outside towns will be drawn here at the same gathering.

JUMBO BY JOVE.
The Great Barnum and London Shows, September 25.
As a general thing the older men grow the more conservative they become. That extraordinary man, P. T. Barnum, is a most extraordinary exception to this rule. In a year when the boldest business navigators are shortening sail, and the most venturesome curtailing expenses, the old-timer of Jumbo and capturer of the only sacred white elephant ever smuggled out of Asia serenely starts another amusement boom. He defies hard times with a herd of forty elephants; builds bigger canvases, fills them with bigger troupes and collections; runs bigger trains, makes a bigger parade and even draws bigger crowds than ever. To an editor who questioned the wisdom of this policy, the Napoleon of show business recently replied: "Our policy is to offer the public the most substantial inducements to wait for us, and the tighter the purse strings are drawn the greater the necessity of making them wait. This year tens of thousands of people who generally patronize every circus that comes along will content themselves with one, and we mean to make ours that one. You see the same everywhere. We give the public a great deal for their money, and consequently, get what money they had to spare for the luxury of a sight-seeing holiday." Barnum is wiser than his biggest serpent, while, so far as injurious moral influences are concerned, his most wonderful show is as harmless as a dove.

The advent of Jumbo alone would suffice to fill the biggest canvas, and Jumbo will be here, for the first and last time, as he goes back to England next fall.
The great show's date at Omaha will be Friday, September 25.
Council Bluffs Oratory.
The Macedonian, in speaking of the Fourth there, says: "Here some very fine music was rendered by the Macedonian Cornet band and also excellent singing by the glee club, after which came the oration by Col. Keatley. Mr. Keatley's speech was an excellent one and was enjoyed by fully one thousand people. His extreme shortness was regretted by all as such an entertaining speaker as Mr. Keatley is seldom heard in these parts and a longer oration would have been appreciated."

The Oakland Acorn in its account of the celebration there says: "The oration by Hon. N. M. Pusey was a fine production, and received many flattering comments from the audience. His depth of reasoning and logical conclusions were equalled by the eloquence of his delivery."
The Emerson Chronicle says of the doings there:
Honorable J. J. Steadman, of Council Bluffs, was introduced and made the address of the day. We have not room here to speak of the oration, further than to say it was a model Fourth of July oration, complete in its thought, diction and presentation, and elicited frequent applause during its delivery.

Turning Emigrants.
COUNCIL BLUFFS, July 12, 1884.
To the Editor of the Bee.
It looks to me as though that great temporary advocate The Herald of this city has suddenly changed its views upon the temperance question, and I am somewhat surprised, yet knowing "to err is human; to forgive, divine," and hoping for the best, that the paper may yet come out on the side of right, decency, law and honor. I am well aware that different kinds of food taken into the stomach create different formations in the human system, and also that foreign substances taken into the stomach, especially if they are of a poisonous nature, will suddenly throw the system out of order. I think that one of the talented editors of The Herald has taken some "foreign" substance into his stomach, perhaps "buttermilk," and not being used to so weak a drink, it set his head to whirling, and his mind becoming weakened by this "foreign" substance (buttermilk), he was a willing tool to believe anything his friends of the "buttermilk" business told him and published his statements accordingly, or I have erred in judgment against the talented scribe, as the desire to turn traitor may lay beyond the jurisdiction and be the fault of the paper itself.

I am well aware that it takes a great deal of backbone firmness and moral principle to stand out for right where evil prevails, but that paper or individual who expects to sit straddle of the fence and truckle to both sides when law and justice are upon the right hand and lawlessness and vice upon the left, may expect to lose their independence, have their rights trampled upon and be buried in oblivion, with neither virtue or vice as a tomb stone to mark their resting place.
And in reference to the part taken by The Herald, we say:
Prohibition had a lamb,
His fleece was white as snow,
Wherever temperance people dwelt
That lamb was sure to go,
But lambs, he got smart one day,
And absconded his mother deer;
She took his woolly white fleece,
That was to him no dear.
And now, Mr. Editor, the temperance people of this city can see who are advocating their rights and govern themselves accordingly, and assist the paper willing to stand by them in adversity as well as in prosperity.
Yours respectfully, PROHIBITION.

In attempting to get upon a train just moving out of the station he slipped and fell under the cars, the wheels passing over his shoulder and over his left leg near the ankle. Dr. Hart, Henton, was called, and the boy, of this city, was called to attend the boy, and amputated his arm and leg. At last accounts there was little hope for his survival.

From Logan, Iowa.
To the Editor of The Bee.
Rev. J. G. Lemen, of Council Bluffs, delivered an excellent address at the court house Thursday evening to a good audience, upon the subject "Can the Prohibition Law be Enforced in our Cities." After the lecture a collection was taken up for The Home of the Friendless.
Mr. Lemen is laboring very hard to bring relief to the homeless and helpless, especially to the children who have been rendered penniless heirs through the influence of the rum traffic. He has succeeded in securing a "Home" for quite a number and is feeding and clothing and educating them.
In order to carry on the work of caring for these unfortunate Mr. Lemen spends a good deal of his time traveling and delivering lectures and organizing local associations. These local associations are auxiliary to the Home of the Friendless association at Council Bluffs, and yet in a sense they are independent. Each local association has its president, secretary and treasurer. The several members of the local associations are also members of the Home of the Friendless association, by virtue of the payment of monthly dues. There are several advantages to be derived from these local societies.
1st. There may be a social advantage, growing out of the relationship existing between one another as members of the society.
2d. It may be an intellectual advantage. As we all know it is impossible to get the services of first-class lecturers for our small towns because of the lack of means. But having a hundred or more local societies made up of our best citizens and working together for the highest well-being of our fellow men, it will be the desire of the members of the different societies to secure the services of our best lecturers to meet the demands of all. Having a multiplicity of societies working together it will be an easy matter to obtain the services of some good first-class lecturer, at a reasonable price, to deliver a course of lectures, spending an evening with each society. There are many features of advantage growing out of these societies, and it is to the advantage of every citizen who desires the moral and mental elevation of the unfortunate, to bring his influence in this direction. The writer wishes Rev. Mr.
