"THOU ART THE MAN." So Say the Marshalltown Officers Who Come After Reynolds.

A Glenwood Officer Shoots at a Man He Thinks to be Him - A Scramble For the $1000.

Yesterday morning there arrived here two officers after the man arrested here Monday as the shooter of Sheriff McCord. They were Sheriff Marj. Barr, of Okauchee, and Sheriff W. B. Armstrong, of Sigourney.

The wounded sheriff is still alive, and it is thought that he will recover. Sheriff McCord showed much bravery in his encounter with these two desperadoes. He had caught Reynolds and his partner, as they were driving away in a buggy with some stolen goods, having also in their possession a full set of burglars' tools.

Many of the residents of this city and Omaha, as well as those of other places in the west have visited Spirit Lake this season, and they seem wonderfully unanimous in their expressions of praise, and many others are planning to see for themselves the beauties and enjoy for themselves the comforts of that trip.

The officers who came for him were joined here by Sheriff Dan Farroll of Mills county, who is president of the sheriff's association that offered $500 of the $1000 reward, while Sheriff Barr is the secretary. The officers were besieged to fix up the reward at once, even before an opportunity was given to take the man to Sheriff McCord, for complete identification.

The local officers all seemed anxious to get a share of the $1,000, whether they had anything to do with the capture or not. The case was brought here when the new police force was organized last spring they agreed to divide all rewards, great or small, but that some had of late not lived up to this agreement, and that these small breaks had justified a full break now that there was so much in the pot.

for the offense, each individual or agent becomes a conspirator and equally liable under the statute with the liquor seller for the commission of that particular crime. Monday night the city marshal at Glenwood, Mr. Rupert, saw a man at the depot whom he thought answered the description of Reynolds, and so sure was he that he attempted to arrest him.

FLEET FEET. A Young Man of Speed Makes a Lively Run After a Young Lady.

An amusing incident is narrated by some of the railroad boys about a young man who has been making his headquarters of late in this city, and who prides himself on his running speed, he having been engaged in several footraces. It appears that where he has been boarding he became charmed with the loveliness of a young lady, who seemed to be annoyed rather than flattered by his professions of love.

The Favorite Trip. Many of the residents of this city and Omaha, as well as those of other places in the west have visited Spirit Lake this season, and they seem wonderfully unanimous in their expressions of praise, and many others are planning to see for themselves the beauties and enjoy for themselves the comforts of that trip.
