PROHIBITION IN IOWA.

MUSCATINE, Iowa, August 5.—The Daily Journal will publish to-day the full account of the important decision of Judge Hayes, of the seventh Iowa judicial district, as to the jurisdiction of justices of the peace under the new Iowa prohibitory liquor law.

MUSCATINE, August 5.—The following are the important points of Judge Hayes' decision that justices of the peace have no jurisdiction over cases under the prohibitory law.

THE FACTS. In a case in which the petitioner was convicted before a justice of the peace in Muscatine county, of the crime of selling intoxicating liquor, first offense, and by the justice sentenced to pay a fine of $15 and costs, and ordered committed until paid, provided by our present law, that was committed accordingly.

JUDICIAL OPINION. The only point made relates to the jurisdiction of the justice to try and determine offenses against the provisions of section 140 of the code (selling intoxicating liquor), as passed by the Twentieth general assembly.

THE PENALTY. The only point made relates to the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, so far as appears here, that the petitioner is not entitled to a trial, but if otherwise the justice is authorized to try and determine the guilt of the defendant for the action of the grand jury, and that his commitment upon trial and conviction is void for want of jurisdiction.

THE CONSTITUTION OF IOWA. Article 1, section 11, says: "All offenses less than felony, and all punishment less than imprisonment for thirty days, shall be tried summarily before a justice of the peace or other officer authorized by law to do so."

THE FUNDAMENTAL LAW of Iowa, and binds the general assembly as well as all courts and officers of the state, and is not subject to its provisions, and is not subject to its provisions, and is not subject to its provisions.
