THE STAGE NECKLACE.

How Modjeska's Diamonds Secured Their Popularity—The Gems Given to Rhea by the Czar.

Jantsch's Jewels.

Mr. H. J. Sargent, the manager of Mme. Jantsch for the coming season, in conversation with a New York reporter, made a clean breast of his old diamond trick the other day.

"Why," said he, "when Modjeska was employed by me she had not enough diamonds to buy a loaf of bread with. I had to advance her the money to come on here from California with, and when we began the season she was in my debt very nearly $1,000. You can imagine, then, that when she first played Camille at the Fifth Avenue theatre there were no diamonds to exhibit. But when we had played several towns and got through with Boston we began to feel a little easier. I had some money in my pocket, and so had she. One day we were walking along King street, in Montreal, and we passed a jeweler's just next door to the theatre. In the window was a magnificent diamond necklace. Modjeska and I feasted our eyes on it, and then I said that we might as well go in and see it. She protested, 'what was the good?' but I said, 'it may do us good to handle it, any way.' So we went in and asked the man in charge of the store to see the necklace in the window. He recognized us, and taking it out said it would be just the thing for the madame. We nudged each other as if it were a delicious joke. Then he told us it had been made for Mary Anderson but she had never come to claim it. I thought 'May be going to rather strong' and then asked him the price of it. 'ES, ES,' said he, 'I'll give $35 for it,' said I, and the bargain was concluded. I took the necklace away (so far Modjeska had been playing Camille with a queer old necklace that fell to pieces nearly every night—many a time I mended it.) The next day I had a box made with bands of brass, a strong padlock and handles on both ends for two men to carry. When we got to Chicago I put the necklace in this strong box, and one night after the performance I walked up to the office of the hotel and had a man lift the box onto the counter. 'Put that in the safe,' I said. They looked at the box, and said they never could get a box like that in the safe. 'Well,' said I, 'you put a notice in every room that the box won't be responsible for valuables unless they are left in the safe, and here is Mme. Modjeska's $40,000 necklace. I want you to take charge of it.' By this time there was a crowd around the counter eyeing the box. The clerk didn't know what to do. 'Strange,' said I, 'that the present Mme. Modjeska got from the czar of Russia can't be properly protected. Then get two policemen and put them to guard the box all night, and I'll pay them myself.' The policemen were got, and they sat on each side of the box of $35 diamonds till 12 next day. Nothing more was necessary for me to do. The papers were full of the czar's $40,000 diamonds, and Modjeska's jewelry was one of the attractions of the season.

Tired Landlord Dull.

Exactly expresses the condition of thousands of people at this season. The depressive effects of warm weather, and the weak condition of the body, can only be corrected by the use of a reliable tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Why suffer longer when a remedy is so close at hand? Take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will give you untold wealth in health, strength and energy.

What Progress in Cattle.

Western Agriculturist.

We have been inquiring of farmers and stock breeders throughout the west, what progress is being made in stock raising in their locality. The answers all indicate that stock is attracting universal attention. More grass and more stock is the rule of progress, and improved stock is generally required. The prejudice against the improved breeds of stock has given place to enthusiastic admiration, because the more progressive farmers and breeders in every county have demonstrated the practical value and superior merits of the improved breeds over scrub stock.

Western farmers and breeders now lead the world in stock raising, as to quantity and quality. The best of all good breeds of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs have been liberally imported from European countries, and with our liberal feed, fine grass and water, and superior stock raising facilities, with that ambition to have the best of everything in stock breeding, we are now enabled to sell back to the old world our high grades at remunerative prices to us, which is cheaper than they can raise them.

Hence it is the general tendency of our farmers to convert their grain fields into grass for stock. The uncertainty of grain crops depending upon good seasons can no longer successfully compete with stock raising, and by investing the same amount of money that is required in machinery for grain farming in good breeding stock, in ten years the improvement of the stock will create a valuable herd, by keeping the females and selling the males to pay running expenses, while the farm machinery will be worn out and worthless.

The western states have developed a superior grass country, and stock and grass in this day will make any country prosperous. If the improved breeds of stock are bred, the best of the stock on earth and the most and best stock the west leads the world in stock breeding, and this improved stock breeding is not only more profitable, but it gives more dignity, influence and importance to farming, and makes the farm more inviting to the merchant, manufacturer or capitalist, and more attractive for the young farmer. Both the old and the young farmer can profitably engage his surplus capital in the improvement of stock breeding than in any channel of trade or speculation, for just as true as like produces like, does a two hundred dollar animal produce offspring that with two or three years' feeding will sell for two hundred dollars. Thus the stock breeder cuts off his coupons of 100 per cent a year. Whether it is $100, $500 or $2500 paid for a female, breeding animals of good recorded pedigree, the offspring in worth just as much. Improved sires are equally profitable in paying for themselves every year.

The spirit of our extensive intercourse with our readers throughout the west will bear us out in this universal adoption of improved stock breeding, either of full blood stock or by grading up with blooded sires. The Western Agriculturist has been urging this good work for years, and we are happy to have the hearty co-operation of our readers, for the highest prosperity of our country is in raising good stock, as only our country can.

Underdraining.

St. Louis Republican.

It was only a few years ago that the attention of Illinois farmers was directed to the subject of underdraining as a means of improving the productive capacity of their lands, and carrying off the surface water that retarded field work so late in the spring. They at once recognized the value of drainage as a necessary feature in the agriculture of a state whose surface is monotonously level, and began to take steps to introduce it. How far they have progressed may be learned from the fact that there are now 530 drain-tile factories in the state, nearly all of them established since 1875. The greater number of them is to be found in the central portion of the state east of the Illinois river, which embraces the grain district. These factories have an aggregate capital of $3,794,000, employed 5,495 hands, paid out in wages $1,434,000 a year, and turned out 176,922,000 pieces of tile pipe, worth $3,960,000 a year.

A large portion of Central Illinois is now underdrained; nearly every thrifty farmer has his fields underlaid with pipe, and the work is only fairly begun. As the advantage in draining in drying and warming the soil and improving its productive capacity becomes manifest the system is extended and it will not be many years before the prairie state will be a net work of underground pipes. Illinois farmers are becoming as proverbial for their intelligent thrift as Illinois soil is for fertility. The most effective farming in the United States is to be seen in the central and northern counties of that state; and the system of underdraining is an example of the readiness with which Illinois husbandmen carry out new ideas that promise to increase the yield of their acres.

Durke's Salad Dressing is composed of the freshest, purest and choicest condiments money will buy. It surpasses any that can be made at home, is cheaper, saves labor and all anxiety.

Drivers Who Fall.

Boston Globe.

I was sitting on the front seat of an open car the other day, gazing abstractedly at the driver, when all at once I was startled by seeing a fat woman who had sat on the seat behind me, reaching past my head to give him a terrible pull in the side with the point of her umbrella. My first impression was that it was going to be a case of aggravated assault, but I soon discovered that she only wanted to stop the car, for she presently got out and went on her way as coolly as if nothing had happened. To my surprise the driver did not even turn around, and the only apparent effect of the blow on him was a sudden indescribable noise, such as is heard when a sudden kick forces a little of the wind out of a football.

"Excuse me," said I, "do they often hit you like that?"

"Very frequently, sir," was the reply. "I should think it would hurt you."

The driver took his hand from the bra and smacked down his coat behind, "Feel that?"

I did so and encountered a protuberance.

"What's that?" I asked.

"A pad, sir."

"What's it for?"

"For the points of umbrellas and canes, sir, I always wear one."

ORIGIN OF AMMONIA.

Ammonia is obtained in large quantities by the putrefaction of the urine of animals.—Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Every housekeeper can test baking powders containing this disgusting drug by placing a can of the "Royal" or "Andrews' Pearl" top down on a hot stove until heated, then remove the cover and smell.

THE NEW MOTOR.

Satisfactory Experiment With the Electrical Street Car—A Novel Sight.

Cleveland Leader Aug. 2.

Yesterday the new electric motor street car made its first uninterrupted trip on the Quincy street branch of the Garden street car line. Several trials had been made during the week, but owing to slight imperfections, such as are unavoidable in new inventions the operation of the car was not entirely satisfactory. All these, however, have been done away with, and the electric motor street car is an assured success. At about noon Messrs. Knight and Duty, the patentees, Superintendent Duty and the directors of the East Cleveland company got aboard of the new car at the Garden street barns, Mr. Duty acting as driver. By throwing back a handle similar to a brake on the front platform a powerful current of electricity was turned from the iron conducting rods, laid between the track, into the dynamo machine. This started the gearing and pulley wheels, and the car started off at a lively rate, towing behind it an ordinary horse car. It glided along smoothly and rapidly without apparent means of locomotion. Horses and dogs were considerably startled by the appearance and pedestrian passengers gasped and mouthed at the wonder. A rate of about eight miles per hour, considerably faster than street car horses are accustomed to travel, was achieved without difficulty. The train swept around curves with perfect grace, and the journey to the end of the electric railway was completed without any mishap or break in the machinery. It was a decidedly novel experience, and the passengers expressed themselves as well pleased and satisfied with their trip.

When the Funerals' Ceremonies Will Take Place.

From the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

Everybody who was present at the official notification of Governor Cleveland of his nomination appears to have been oppressed by solemnity. The highly ornate Col. Vilas informed the governor that the committee had come in "a solemn and ceremonious manner," to notify him, and that being solemnly and ceremoniously performed, the governor replied that he was himself "profoundly impressed by the solemnity of the occasion." There need hardly have been this ceremonious adoption of habiliments of woe so early in the season. The funeral ceremonies at Albany will take place early in November.

Too Much of a Luxury.

"Look here," said a grocery keeper to a horse farmer in Kentucky, "you owe me $20 and I want my money."

"Hain't got a durned cent, mister," was the confident answer.

"Well, I'll swoop down on your miserable little garden patch and take it out of you own."

"Hain't got nothin' thar woffadang."

"You've a cow, havn't you, and three or four pigs and a mule?"

"Yes, thar's the framework of a cow, and them pigs looks like pork bar's with the staves kick out 'em, and the mule's so thin the buzzards turn their nose up at him."

"Well, I won't be hard on you, but I am bound to have something. Whatcan you spare best?"

"Lemme see a mink. There's the cow and them pigs and the mule—and—and—the old woman. You jes' son'round and git the old woman. A man in my fix hain't no use for such a luxury as a wife, nohow."—Cincinnati Merchant Traveller.
