BILL POSEY. The Stormy Career of the Chief of a Band of Texas Outlaws.

Celebrating a Successful Raid by "Shooting Up" a Town. A Tragic Death.

William, or "Bill" Posey, writes a correspondent of the Philadelphia Times, was one of the most reckless and blood-thirsty desperadoes in Texas...

While the wild carnival was at its height, the sheriff of Comal county, a cool and resolute fellow, was urging the timid citizens to unite and put down the riot.

"Bill," he cried, "the sheriff's coming down the street with a big gang." "The devil you say," cried the outlaw.

At night of the outlaws the courage of the citizens suddenly vanished, and they, trembling, obeyed, begging for mercy. The sheriff was made of different stuff, however.

SCHOOL MARRMS WHO FLIRT. Vacation Days for the Young and Pretty Teachers.

Where They Spend the Summer Months—What their Baggage Consists of—Little Money, but Much Fun.

New York Journal. Soon the summer holidays will be over and the pretty little schoolmarm will be found on the list of September sitting at her desk in the big school-house prepared to toil through another year.

To a reporter's queries as to what the schoolmarm does during vacation, a well-known educator replied: "Why, the pretty dears go up in the Catskills and down to Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, and hundreds of other places convenient to the seashore or in the mountains."

"Do they generally start on their vacation singly or in groups?" asked the reporter. "Always in groups. Five or six of them in the same school will put their money together."

"Oh, they do flirt, then?" said the reporter. "Well, I should say so. They are in-ventive school teachers have an idea that they will never get married."

"What is the average age of school teachers?" asked the reporter. "Well, I know one lady, she is principal of a school up town, whose hair is quite gray."
