GAINING TIME.

The Examination of the Confidence Men Again Postponed.

Yesterday the cases of the two fellows arrested last Friday as confidence men came up before Justice Abbott. They asked for a continuance, claiming that they wanted to get some witnesses from Dakota or some other place. It was expected that Justice Abbott would insist on their taking the evidence of the victims so that he might go home, and then give the defendants time to get their witnesses, but the defendants would not consent, and the continuance was granted them until next Saturday morning.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A Young Girl's Dementia--How it was Occasioned--Some Few and Startling Truths.

The St. Louis express, on the New York Central road, was crowded one evening recently, when at one of the way stations, an elderly gentleman, accompanied by a young lady, entered the cars and finally secured a seat. As conductor approached the pair, the young lady arose, and in a pleading voice said: "Please, sir, don't let him carry me to the asylum. I am not crazy; I am a little tired, but not mad. Oh! no indeed. Won't you please have papa take me back home. ... The conductor, accustomed though he was to all phases of humanity, looked with astonishment at the pair as did the other passengers in their vicinity. A few words from the father, however, sufficed, and the conductor passed on while the young lady turned her face to the window. The writer chanced to be seated just behind the old gentleman and could not forego the desire to speak to him. With a sad face and a trembling voice the father said: "My daughter has been attending the seminary in a distant town and was succeeding remarkably. Her natural qualities, together with a great ambition, placed her in the front ranks of the school but she studied too closely, was not careful of her health, and her poor brain has been turned. I am taking her to a private asylum, where we hope she will soon be better."

possibility injure even a child. The fact that it was used in the day of the famous Harrison family, is proof positive of its merit, as it has so thoroughly without the test of time. As a tonic and revivifier, it is truly wonderful. It has relieved the agony of the stomach in thousands of cases; soothed the tired nerves; produced peaceful sleep and averted the coming on of a mania more to be dreaded than death itself.

New Orleans Men Win Parts of the Capital Prize of $75,000.

Eugene Gaudins, warehouseman for Messrs. B. Onorato & Co., for some time, is a good and trusty worker. He was comparatively happy at his home, No. 231 St. Peter street, and in his walks he passed a place in which the tickets of the Louisiana State Lottery Company are displayed. He had purchased tickets in partnership with his fellow-workers. During August, he saw displayed one that particularly struck his fancy--No. 15,365--whether it was the peculiar placing of the 5's, or the magical placing of the 3's, even Gaudins is at a loss to explain. But that particular ticket was still in place, started several times to walk boldly in and buy on his sole account; but the old trammels of the partnership arrangement held him, until the last moment. Ten o'clock on the morning of the 12th he held safely in his sole possession one-fifth of the coveted ticket. The revolutions of the wheel at the Academy of Music brought out No. 15,365 as drawing the Capital prize. The fact was published and came soon to the ears of Gaudins, who yesterday was poor, but today, by the investment of a dollar, ranks among the "bondholders."

He called at the office of the Louisiana State Lottery with Mr. B. Onorato, and was promptly paid in full. A reporter wanted to know what he proposed to do, and he answered that he would buy a nice home for his family, and that seeing them placed beyond the reach of want and in comfort would be as much happiness as he desired. The balance of his money he would try and invest profitably, and would himself continue to play his modest part, unspoiled by prosperity. He signed his name to the receipt for the money, and went out of the office of the Lottery as happy and contented a man as the Crescent City now contains. --New Orleans Picayune, August 15th.

Montana Stock Matters.

W. D. Flowers, president of the Moreland Ranch Stock company, Montana, is in St. Paul, looking up a market for 1,000 head of horses, ranging from five to six years of age, and from ten to fifteen hundred pounds in weight. These he expects to ship East in car load lots on consignment for sale, making St. Paul the principal objective point, with Chicago and St. Louis as collateral points. The stock embraces Messengers, Hanablenians, Cleveland bays, English draught, Norman and Clydesdales, all from the range. The Moreland range is to be stocked with five thousand head of Polled Angus and Galloway cattle. The latter are especially recommended by good authorities as specially adapted to the high altitude of the lower Gallatin ranges, where the Moreland ranch is located. Mr. Flowers says the shortage shown at the June round-up in his section will be more than made up on the record by the result of the autumn round-up now in progress. The grass this season has been a little short but more nutritious than usual, and promises to cure well for winter feed. The stock outlook throughout the territory he says, is full of promise for a favorable winter.

ORIGIN OF AMMONIA.

Ammonia is obtained in large quantities by the putrefaction of animal matter. --Encyclopedia Britannica. Every housekeeper can test baking powders containing this disgusting drug by placing a can of the "Royal" or "Arrow" brand in a hot stove until heated, then remove the cover and smell. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia. Always use the "Arrow" Phosphates, (prove it by the above test). It is prepared by a Physician and Chemist with special regard to cleanliness and healthfulness. --no-w-210

The Mule at Farallon Light.

San Francisco Paper. Probably the most cheerful light station on the California coast is the Farallon light. Four men and an army mule are the accredited governing forces at that place. The following story is told about the mule. "He has been at Farallon several years. All his work consists in hoisting up twice a year the provisions brought over by the lighthouse inspector on a steamer. He has learned the sound of a whistle, and when he hears it hides can the "Royal" or "Arrow" brand of the inspector the mule hid, and had to be hunted for two hours in the rocks before he could be found."

Private Henry's Record.

FORT BUFORD, August 24--To the Editor:--Now that so much interest is felt in the subject of the Greeley expedition and its ending, the history of one of the actors in the drama will be interesting to your readers, besides giving additional justification for his summary execution by Mr. Greeley. Private Chas. B. Henry, who was shot at Cape Sabine for theft, would never have been accepted as a member of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition, had his character been as well known to the authorities who organized it as it was to some of the members of the Seventh United States cavalry. He joined troop G, of that regiment, under his proper name--Charles Buck, in the fall of 1877 the regiment camped at Fort Buford for a while, after its return from the Nez Perce campaign, during which time Buck employed his spare time in forging checks for a considerable amount on the post traders Leighton and Jordan. For some unaccountable reason he was not punished for this offense. Being emboldened by having escaped punishment for his offense at Buford, he again engaged in the same business while the Seventh cavalry was camped at Camp Sturgis where Fort Meade now stands, during the summer of 1878. He operated this time on the field traders, Fanoheim and Roberts, and was again detected, tried by court martial, convicted and sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service, with a forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and to be confined at hard labor, under charge of a guard, for one year. He served his sentence, I believe, at Fort Meade, Dak. He again enlisted, under the name of Charles B. Henry, and was assigned to the Fifth cavalry, from which he was detailed for the arctic expedition, where his conduct was in keeping with his former actions, notwithstanding his former sentence, and could easily impose himself upon unsuspecting persons. Before starting on the expedition, he sent to his friends in the Seventh cavalry the following cards: "Charles B. Henry, Special Correspondent Chicago Times, Lady Franklin Bay Expedition."

No Reason for Shame.

New York Sun. "I should think you would be ashamed of yourself, to fight with a little boy half your size," said a lady on the street. "Do I look ashamed?" asked the boy. "No, you do not." "Is either of my eyes black?" "No." "Any bites enter my nose?" "Certainly not." "Is me ears chawed? Is der enemy mud down me neck? Is me coat torn, or me suspenders busted off?" "No." "Well, I han't got nuthin' ter be ashamed of. If I should fight with a bigger boy'n me I might have cause ter be ashamed."

A Lie Told.

Competing Insurance Companies have been circulating unfavorable reports, in regard to the condition of the State Insurance Company, of Des Moines, Iowa. Auditor Brown, of Iowa, has just given on this company a thorough investigation (and is now doing the same to all Iowa Insurance Companies) and publishes the following in his official statement: "The Company has an actual paid up Capital of $200,000, and is financially sound, and reliable, one of the strongest Companies in the State, and is justly entitled to the confidence of the public. This Company has a surplus as regards policy holders of $200,812.18." This is after ruling out over one hundred farmers' notes, judgments and interest, office furniture and supplies $257,000. These assets are good for at least 75 cents on the dollar, which would give the Company a surplus of about $100,000. You can rest assured that the Company is solid, and these unfavorable stories told and published by competitors are told and published to get away the business of this popular Western company.

Distinguished Infants.

New York Journal. The infancy of great men is always interesting. Ben Butler, upon his own showing was a puny baby. He took his pap through a spoon. It was not until he grew to boy's estate that he took to bossing all the marbles he could lay his hands on. The Plumed Knight, from all accounts was a bright infant. His imagination was marvellous, from his earliest moment he bossed the family. Black Jack was not exactly a pretty pappoose, but it was prophesied that he would make a spoon or spoil a horn. He has spoiled many horns. Cleveland was a chubby little chap, rather fond of the girls but honest as daylight. Hendricks was a lighter even as a toddler. The prettiest baby of all was little Johnny Kelley. He was a love.

and everything in the nature of eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers, scrofulous humors, and incipient consumption, which is nothing more nor less than scrofula of the lungs, completely out of the system. It stimulates and invigorates the liver, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels, purifies the blood, and builds up the weak places of the body. It is purely vegetable compound, and will do more than is claimed for it. We refer to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."
