LOCAL BREVITIES.

Young Kohlmeier was Saturday released from custody under $1,000 bonds.

Henry Grebe, who is the only manufacturer of farm machinery in this city who is a competitor at the state fair, took first premium on his exhibits.

In the case of Carpenter against the city of Plattsmouth, pending in the United States circuit court, a decision was filed on Saturday last in favor of the plaintiff for $1,812.48.

Fanny Whitmore, a little two-year-old child, whose parents live in Valley precinct, was drowned on Saturday last. The particulars of the unfortunate affair could not be learned.

Friday night a thief broke a screen in a dining-room window at the St. Charles hotel and stole a coat from the office, and which belonged to the clerk. The clerk then awoke and the thief disappeared.

A drunken man named Charles Ferry fell from a moving freight train at Plattsmouth Saturday night. The whole train passed over him, severing his head from his body. His home is thought to be in Towanda, Pennsylvania.

Doc Middleton is in the city. Everybody in this western country knows of the notorious Doc Middleton. He is now running an agricultural warehouse at O'Neill City, and it is said that his name there is Mr. Johnson.

Ed. Wells, James White, John Williams, John Ryan, Ed. Harris, and Budd Copeland, confidence men arrested the fore part of the week, were Saturday each sentenced to pay a fine of $20 and imprisoned in the county jail for 30 days.

On Saturday last the "Omaha Elevator and Grain Company" filed its articles of incorporation. The capital stock of the company is limited to $50,000 in shares of $100 each, the corporation continuing until the year 1900. The incorporators are Henry W. Rogers, David S. Barriger and Fred H. Davis.

County Superintendent Bremer was busily engaged Saturday in making a map of the school districts of Douglas county, defining the boundaries and locating the school houses. This is being done by request of the state superintendent, who will make an exhibit of Nebraska's school map at the New Orleans exposition the coming winter.

Col. Smythe and another party, whose name could not be learned, were running horses upon Sixteenth street Friday evening about 6:30. It was a reckless piece of business as the street was crowded at the time and a foot passenger came very near being run over at the corner of Webster street by the flying steeds.

The practice of throwing hand bills upon the street is a bad one. Many horses are frightened by these flying pieces of paper and besides that it gives the streets a very untidy appearance, notwithstanding the efforts of the street sweeper. Omaha now has elegant streets and it is a shame to have them thus littered up.

Complaint is made against the contractor putting in the sewer in the alley in the neighborhood of Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth and Chicago and Cass streets. It is said that the trench is over twenty feet deep and has been left open, without any signal lights, for two weeks past. The people claim that they cannot get in or out of their homes, and that they cannot have any coal delivered. The trench is an exceedingly dangerous thing to leave uncovered to say the least.

Last night as Officer Nightingale was coming out the street from the city jail he heard the shrill report of a police whistle. He started toward the Paxton, whence the sound came. He could see no one or any indications that a policeman was wanted. The officer stood around on the corner a short time when a man whose actions were suspicious attracted his attention. He started toward the street where the stranger was standing, when he turned and ran, the policeman in hot pursuit. Nightingale called upon him to halt, and not doing so he fired in the air, the man escaping in the darkness.

HEADS THE LIST.

Parker, Robertson & Co.'s Splendid Implementation Display.

They Are Confessedly Leaders in Their Line.

The Bee man, in his annual tour over the Nebraska state fair grounds, had occasion to use his argus eye so that nothing of importance should be overlooked and no item be omitted that would be of interest and value to the patrons and readers of THE BEE. Among the many fine displays of agricultural implements this year on the fair grounds, the exhibit of Messrs. Parker, Robertson & Co. stands confessedly at the head of the list.

Learned and brilliant philosophers and scientists have discoursed profoundly and eloquently on "the unity of the race," and have filled the world with wonder by the processes by which mankind has reached an exalted perfection. It is not within the province of THE BEE to indulge in technical science nor to delve in philosophical lore—but rather to speak of current events, and to bring its readers into contact with the practical things of life, and for this purpose we wish, in the briefest possible way, to speak of the unity of labor and its concomitant results. In no line of manufacturing do we find a more elaborate illustration of the results of the unity of labor than in agricultural implements.

CORN PLANTING.

It is within the memory of many of the readers of THE BEE, when corn was dropped by hand and sowed with a hoe, but to-day the farmer is supplied with a machine, to be drawn by horses, and two rows of corn planted at once, either by the use of a hand lever operated by a boy or man, or by a wire check cover which does superior work and is more accurately than hand work. The corn planters sold by Messrs. Parker, Robertson & Co. are the Troy and the Champion, manufactured by the Beadle & Kelly Co., of Troy, Ohio; and the Rockford, made by Briggs & Enoch, of Rockford, Ill. The Troy planter is a new machine, with all the latest improvements introduced, assuring accurate and perfect work. It has a combined foot and hand lever, for forcing the runners into hard ground or lifting them out of the ground at the end of the row. The new Troy has an open hovel and a glass plate covering the lower or dropping valve, exposing to the view of the operator the corn as it passes from the seed box into the ground. The frame of the planter is square and braced with truss rods, which keep the frame in line and insure a uniform depth of planting. The "old reliable" Champion planter is so well known that we need not speak of its valuable points. The Rockford planter is a combined corn planter and drill, and is constructed on a plan entirely unique, doing most efficient work. Besides corn planters, Briggs & Enoch manufacture one-horse corn drills, listers, and plows; their full line of goods are sold by Parker, Robertson & Co.

The most valuable agricultural crop in the United States is hay—therefore an indispensable farm implement is a mowing machine. The scythe is a reminiscence of the past, and the severe labor of its use has been supplemented by the mower of the present. The latest mower placed upon the market for popular favor is the "Finger," manufactured by J. W. Stoddard & Co., of Dayton, Ohio. Some special features of the "Finger" may with propriety be mentioned. It has all the good points, and none of the objectionable features of "front and rear cut" mowers and has many virtues of its own, among which may be mentioned: The sharp guards will not catch in an abrupt dead furrow, because they are automatically tilted at the points where they drop into a depression, and are drawn upwards out the furrow and downward into the furrow again both horses walk in the swath tracks and therefore do not trample upon either the cut or uncut hay. Another feature is that it is a combined mowing and raking machine. As a mower it is essential to the farmer, its use makes it necessary that the hay should have a perfect hay rake, and the celebrated Troy Rake which is a horse dump, and the Troy Champion Sulky Hay Rakes, manufactured by the Beadle & Kelly company, Troy, Ohio, are perfect companions for the mowers above mentioned.

The finest display in the exhibit of Messrs. Parker, Robertson & Co. is the line of Cortland buggies and spring wagons made by the Cortland Wagon company of New York. The exhibit consists of twenty styles, from the finest finished carriage to the open plain buggy. The stock used in the manufacture of the goods is the best second growth seasoned hickory. The Cortland wagon is known the world over as standard, in work, material and finish; the trade mark on each job is the best guarantee of genuine merit.

In farm wagons the "Rushford" stands in the lead and needs no encomiums at our hands. In the old good book we read that the "sower went out to sow," this passage of scripture no doubt referring to the sowing of wheat and oats by hand. That is the primitive way of doing that class of work, but to-day, having been supplemented by the use of the drill and seeder. At this point we wish to call the attention of our readers to a new broadcast seeder, manufactured by the Whitman Agricultural company of St. Louis, Mo. This simple and effective seeder is placed in the rear of a belt chain, the master wheel is attached to one of the wheels of the wagon, and thus has power transmitted to it for propelling purposes. The Whitman seeder is so constructed as to be made to sow with the wind, and thus assure an even spread of the grain. None of the grain is thrown against the end of the wagon as is common with other seeders of this class, thus making a thicker growth in one place than another, but the seed by the Whitman is sown evenly on all sides and in the rear, insuring an even growth over the field surface. Besides these specific articles named, Messrs. Parker, Robertson & Co. sell tongueless cultivators, corn shellers, common and horse agricultural implements and are worthy of the confidence and patronage of the implement dealers of the state.

Columbus Driving Park and Fair Association.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12, 1884.

To the Editor of THE BEE:

The efforts put forth this year by the officers of this association, have been seconded by the business men, nearly all of whom are actively favoring the enterprise.

Fair week is a good time to visit a county. It is a time of general merry-making, and the community is wider awake to the true enjoyments that abound. Farmers are more disposed to speak cheerfully of the crops, country and the condition of stock and things in general.

Go at fair time and if there is any spirit of enterprise will be manifested. Without these review days, no opportunity is given farmers to come together for comparison of notes and products.

The stock exhibits are such in these days that the farmer who long remains ignorant of the points of superiority in the many good breeds of stock, is far behind the times, and deserves a reprimand for his indifference, which has continued his ignorance.

Blooded stock commands good prices, and will continue to be a source of profit to the intelligent ranchman. The novice must acquire some experience in a school of trial, but many points of a more excellent course of procedure may be gleaned at the fairs, now so common, as to stimulate even the frontier county.

Schick-On Pancake.

The beautiful and accomplished Mrs. Ella T. Schick, of Auburn, Neb., superintendent of Nebraska county schools, was married to Joseph F. Pancake, a prominent attorney, of Bloomington, Ill., September 31, 1884. Among the cards sent out was one to Mrs. Lu B. Cako, known to the public as Ella June Meade, the gifted elocutionist. Mrs. Cako responds in the following unique verse in the delectable, and under the name of her character sketch, "Mrs. Gottlieb Vaterland."

TO SOME OTHER CASES.

Let's see, I was so glad to know it; And Gottlieb, he send word to you, Dotter county suptender was harder. Ash-bell's snyderer for two.

It was nice dot you folks could be married, So easy von livin' you'll make; Vor, you see, he will always has Schick-on! You always will had good Pancake.

Now, I wish you long life to be happy, Und hope dot, ash older you grow, You will find, like myself, gone vat will come.

Your Cake will be better had dough.

—[MRS. GOTTIEB VATERLAND.]

A Hard Time of It.

Frank Nance and Mary Polan have had a hard time to get tied up so as to suit all hands. A couple of weeks ago Frank got a license which gave himself and Mary a right to enter into wedlock, but his father procured a writ of replevin and deprived Frank of the precious document. Frank and Mary then skipped over to Council Bluffs and there were tied by a justice of the peace. Together they returned to this city laughing in their sleeves to think how nicely they had fooled the old man. But a new barrier was in their way to happiness. The priest of their church refused to recognize the ceremony because it had been performed by a justice of the peace. The old man had the original license and refused to surrender it, but Friday Frank procured another license and the couple were joined by the priest.

The future now looks bright to them, and certain it is that they have had trouble enough to thoroughly enjoy their married life so long as they shall be spared to each other.

A Farewell Party.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. E. Morony gave a farewell party for the Rev. C. S. Witherspoon, who is about to leave Omaha, having accepted a call to Youngstown, Ohio. It was in all respects a most delightful affair. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barker, Doctor and Mrs. Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Rev. James Peterson, Rev. Mr. Stinson, Rev. C. S. Witherspoon, Mr. and Mrs. P. Mince, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. W. Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Schaller and the Misses Schaller, Mr. and Mrs. Litch, Mr. E. B. Chapman, Mrs. Smith, of Keokuk, Miss Greenough, Miss Loomis, Mr. R. L. May and a number of others whose names we do not list. Mr. Witherspoon has been a faithful worker during his mission here, and has endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact. His departure will cause great regret to his many friends here, he will carry with him to his new field the kind wishes of all with whom he has been in contact. He will return to Omaha, in which event he will and a hearty welcome.
