The Episcopal ladies are to give another of their pleasant social balls at the Masonic temple next Thursday.

Norman Green is building a new livery feed and sale stable at the corner of Broadway and Union streets.

The daughters of Rebekah are planning for an entertainment during the session of the grand lodge in October.

The board of registration closes its session at No. 505 First avenue at 5 o'clock this afternoon. See that you are registered.

The Presbytery of Council Bluffs is to meet in Missouri Valley to-morrow evening and continue its session for two or three days.

The two dusky females, mother-in-law, who amused themselves by throwing brick bats at each other were each fined $10.00 Saturday. A draw game.

Owing to the torn up condition of the corner of Broadway and Pearl street, the Main street car now runs only from Pearl street, in front of THE BEE office.

A man named Nick Weber was arrested yesterday on complaint of his wife, who says that he tried to settle a family misunderstanding by thumping her.

A change was made in the police force yesterday by which Officers Brooks and Cusio go off day duty and on night duty, while Officers O'Brien and Smuller go on days with Officer Kirk.

The funeral of Frank Keeline was held yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Mackay officiated. There were a hundred carriages filled with friends, who followed the remains to the cemetery.

A citizen's meeting was held in Missouri Valley last Thursday evening to take steps for the enforcement of the prohibitory law in that place. A committee was appointed to visit the saloon-keepers and request them to close, and if they did not comply with the request the committee was to call on the citizens for financial aid and prosecute them.

Deputy United States Marshal McCrary arrested J. C. Gerstenberg at Manning, Friday night for passing a spiel-mark upon Henry Runte, of Cass county. The prisoner was taken before the United States commissioner, who placed him under $300 bonds to await the action of the United States grand jury. Not being able to give bonds, he went to jail.

There were no religious services at the jail yesterday, and the prisoners amused themselves by holding court. Johnson, the confidence man, served as judge, and the one-armed darkey, caught picking pockets at a circus, served as prosecuting attorney. A prisoner was charged with spitting on the floor, and after the jury of four had found him guilty, he was given his choice to take either ten slaps with a board where it would do the most good, or clear off the table and do sweeping for a week. He decided to take to housekeeping, and seizing the broom, went at it.

The little mayor is evidently right in saying that he had many obstacles to overcome in order to sell any bonds, any although it may be true that he has done well, considering the obstacles, yet there is a lingering suspicion in the minds of many that many of the obstacles were the result of the unbusiness like way in which the bond selling was commenced. There are many who still remained unconvinced that it was best to send a committee east to paddle them out, rather than have the bankers and brokers of Council Bluffs effect the sales through the legitimate and usual method.

PERSONALS.

United States Marshal Root is at the Ogden. United States Attorney Rankin is at the Ogden. Will Wittman of Lincoln, Sundayed at the Pacific.

J. E. Lewis of Amboy, Ill, was at the Pacific yesterday. J. A. Bede of the Tabor Union, was a Bechtel's yesterday.

Mrs. John Epeneter has gone on a visit to friends in Milwaukee and Chicago. James G. Brooks, the ex-politician, is still lying very low from the effects of injuries received several weeks ago.

Chas. Keith, the general agent of the C. B. & Q., has returned to his post, from which he has been absent about a week.

Homeer Causby still lies at the residence of his brother-in-law, L. A. Casper, in a very low condition, and fears are felt that he will not recover.

BUILDING BABELS.

Rev. Mr. Mackay Points Out Some Practical Truths His to People.

Yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Mackay, rector of St. Paul's church, preached an excellent sermon on "The Tower of Babel," choosing as his text Genesis 11:4. He gave in his opening a vivid description of the attempt of that ancient people to build a tower whose top should reach to heaven, and the confusion and overthrow of their ambitions. He said that almost every nation had some tradition which was a counterpart of the Biblical account, and he gave interesting outlines of several of these traditions. It had generally been considered by Biblical students that the effort to build the tower of Babel was to be condemned, but several new theories had sprung up in recent years. One advanced by Archbishop Whately was that they were trying to build a great temple of worship and that they fell into disputes as to the form of worship to be followed, and that dividing up into factions the great work failed.

However the traditions and theories varied in detail, they all agreed in this, that the enterprise was a great one, and as that the further progress was stopped by a lack of unity. The work itself was not a sin. It was no violation of God's law to erect a great monument of brick and stone. Whatever sin there was must be in the motive of urging on the work. Among the many lessons to be drawn from the account of the tower of Babel, he pointed out the necessity of having right motives in order to push any work to a successful completion. On all sides were men building towers of Babel. They were attempting to build up fortunes by selfishness, by disregard of others' rights. Such towers while often greatly admired by those watching the progress of the work, must fall—must end in confusion. Men sought to make for themselves a great name—sought to climb to positions which they had no right to occupy, their ambition crushing the characters and treading upon the rights of others in order to step higher. Confusion, ruin, discord must follow. In the financial world there had been many illustrations of this late, disgrace, flight, imprisonment, suicide resulting as the legitimate fruit of unholily ambition. Men should build towers. They should emulate the zeal of the builders of Babel, they should build up fortunes, but they should do so from right motives and with just means. They should get money and fame honestly, with a desire to use them for the bettering of themselves and the world. Their towers should be built upon a foundation of God's eternal virtues, and every brick and stone should be cemented by love for God, and love for man. The necessity of unity was apparent also, as well as the necessity of a right motive. As a Christian family the church should remember this in its work as an organization for the bettering of mankind. This church was building—not a tower of Babel—but a temple in which the worship of God, and the practice of the virtues of life should reign supreme. In this work of building there was need of zeal and unity. Everyone should have a work to do, and all should work together.

The speaker spoke earnestly to his people concerning this, and in closing announced that he had arranged for a meeting next Wednesday evening of all those interested in the building of the new church, that they might meet in the spirit of zeal and unity, and plan for the successful progress of the work. The foundations of the church would be completed this week and it was necessary for each one to take up his share of the burden and do his share of the work. At this coming meeting he would indicate several different channels of work, and he wanted every one to choose voluntarily one or more of these.

That Hardman Prize Piano. Mr. J. Mueller, the well known music dealer, has received the following letter from the young lady who won the $1,000 prize, offered by him as a premium at the Nebraska state fair. His answer to the letter will appear in next Monday's BEE.

COLUMBUS, Neb., Sept. 18, 1884. M. J. Mueller, Council Bluffs, Iowa. DEAR SIR: Thinking that you would be interested in the fate of your premium piano, I write to tell you that it reached an excellent condition, and is the admiration of all my friends, as well as my own special delight. I cannot tell you how much I prize it, and shall ever cherish toward you, feelings of the deepest gratitude and respect.

I think the instrument is perfectly exquisite, both in tone and workmanship, and expect to spend some of the happiest hours of my life in its society. Hoping that the sofa pillow reached you in safety, and that it may prove a slight memento of the respect I have for you, I am Very Gratefully yours, LOUISE BAER.

Hundreds of grateful people who have been cured of rheumatism, say that Siloam Springs, Mo., is ahead as a specific for that disease. entf

Opinions of the New York Press on Barnum. AN EXHIBITION EXTRAORDINARILY ENDORSED BY EVERYBODY.

The Barnum and London shows—nine big shows combined in one—will be here on Thursday, September 25, and to show what is thought of it in New York City, from where these united shows come, a few press extracts from the morning journals of city are given:

The entertainment is certainly a wonderfully varied and interesting one. What with a stage and three rings, in all of which the exhibitions are going on at one and the same time, there was a bewildering embarrassment of riches, and the observer left that something more than normal allowance of eyes was necessary in order not to miss anything. The hippodrome races after the circus was over were superb. —[N. Y. Herald.]

The performance shown yesterday was in its completeness undoubtedly the best the indomitable and youthful Barnum has given to the public. —[N. Y. Star.]

Mr. Barnum gave the most interesting show he has ever given in this city. —[N. Y. Star.]

There was no dissenting voice in the opinion that the show was the best which Barnum has ever given. —N. Y. Tribune.

The show was pronounced better than ever by the masses, and great improvement was shown in the ring performances. —N. Y. Times.

The exhibition given last year by Barnum was better than the year previous, and this year is better than last. —N. Y. Dramatic News.

The most solid looking and imposing personages imaginable thronged the place, and children chirped and screamed with delight as novelty after novelty floated before their enraptured vision. —N. Y. Telegram.

The parade of these shows will take place at 8:30 o'clock on the morning of their arrival here.

All forms of blood diseases cured at Siloam Springs. Kidney and liver diseases speedily relieved and cured. Address Rev. M. M. Thompson, manager, Albany, Mo. ent.

THE REPUBLICAN RALLY Senator Allison Devotes His Eloquence to the Political Question.

The republican rally at the Masonic temple Saturday evening was a great success. A procession was formed of the member of the Blaine and Logan club, uniformed and with torches, and headed by Wall McFadden's martial band, made a short street parade, and escorted Senator Allison from the Ogden house to the hall, which was packed to its utmost with eager and enthusiastic listeners.

Mr. Jason Sims called the meeting to order, and George F. Wright was chosen chairman. The Blaine and Logan club furnished vocal music, and Senator Allison was then introduced amidst applause.

He devoted much of his time to facts and figures of finance, yet made even these statistics interesting by their thrilling and telling points. He handled well the question of the revenue, and made some clinching arguments in reply to the democratic cry about there being such a great surplus in the treasury. He compared the records of the two parties in regard to land grants and civil service reform, and pointed out the democratic inconsistencies. He showed the evasions and hypocrisies of the democratic tariff plank, and the inconsistency of Iowa democrats in voting for six Butler electors. In closing he compared the records of the presidential candidates.
