

THE DAILY BEE.

Saturday (Morning) Sept. 27.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Does are causing a good deal of trouble all over the city especially in store where candles are kept.

John McClelland was yesterday arrested for an assault upon a man named Clifford. His case was called for trial and continued.

A telegraph pole on Sixteenth and Webster, during the storm last night, was struck by a thunderbolt and riddled from top to bottom.

The body of John Burns, who was killed by lightning a few days since will be buried from Drexel & Maul's undertaking rooms this afternoon.

The meeting of the second ward Cleveland and Hendricks club at Kasper's hall Thursday evening was a very successful one and was largely attended.

There will be a regular meeting of Ruth Heleah Dugre, lodge No. 1, in Odd Fellows hall, at 8 p. m. Saturday evening September 27, 1884. A full attendance is requested.

Street car No 7 broke an axle between Ninth and Tenth on Farnam last evening. The car was run off the track upon the street and was afterward taken to the shops for repairs.

There will be a grand rally of the First ward republicans at Seventh and Pierce streets, this evening. Messrs. C. W. Kyle, W. F. Gaily and County Judge McCulloch will address the meeting.

The Tenth street city mission will reopen their sewing schools this morning, September 27th. We hope to see all the little girls who are interested in learning to sew. Don't forget to bring your thimbles.

The men who came near death from suffocation at the Goo's House yesterday were gradually regaining consciousness all of the afternoon and night and were able early in the evening to signify their desire for water.

The Eighteenth Street M. E. church will hold services again next Sunday in Captain Bruner's new store building, northwest corner of Saunders and Hamilton streets. Preaching at 10:20 a. m. Class meeting immediately after preaching.

Governor Dawes has commissioned Dr. H. P. Matheson, superintendent of the asylum and Rev. P. W. Howe, chaplain of the penitentiary, as delegates to attend the national conference of public charities and reformatories to be held in St. Louis, Mo., October 18th.

Williams, the tailor, has gone to Chicago to look after a young man named Moore, who left town a few days ago, taking with him Williams' unpaid bill and a new overcoat, and leaving an unpaid board bill at the Metropolitan. Moore had been clerking for Williams, and was thought to be straight.

A temporary organization of a Fourth ward Cleveland and Hendricks club, with A. E. Coggeshall as president and F. J. McShane secretary, was had with a large attendance Thursday night. Another meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the city hall, when the club will be completed.

In last Wednesday evening's BEE, under an item headed "Arrested for drunkenness," the statement was made that the man apprehended was liberated by Deputy Marshal Gorman. This statement was erroneous, as there released, not even being brought into the city jail.

Last night an alarm was turned in from box 34. The fire was found to be in the grocery store formerly occupied by Tom Brunner on the northeast corner of Guming and Nineteenth streets, and was extinguished by the department before it made much headway. The loss was about $300, and was fully covered by insurance.

A street car driver was quite badly hurt on Ninth street yesterday morning. Barum big elephant was coming up the street and the driver left his seat and took his horses by the head, as they were very badly frightened. The animals reared up and threw him under their feet and then jumped upon him. He was sent to St. Joseph's hospital.

At the meeting of the Fifth ward republican club, Thursday night the following organization was perfected: Joseph Redman, president; T. C. Brunner, first vice president; Thos. Callan, second vice president; Erick Peterson, third vice president; John T. Clark, secretary; John Quinn, assistant secretary; Henry Boh, treasurer. The meeting adjourned to next Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

John McClelland, an old offender, was yesterday afternoon arrested at the circus by detective Cooper who travels with the show. It is claimed by Cooper that McClelland had his hand on a lady's watch and was about to wrest it from her when he was apprehended. Cooper will not stay to appear against the offender and it is probable that he will be released this morning.

A HEALTHY CITY.

Omaha People at Present in a Very Healthy Condition.

Doctors, Undertakers and Grave-Diggers Complaining of Dull Times and Fears a Panic.

Omaha at present is enjoying a very healthy period. Her inhabitants have every cause to be thankful for the health and consequent happiness which exists at the present time. The doctors are finding fault and complaining of hard times. Dr. Leisenring, the city physician, was called upon by a BEE reporter last evening and asked regarding the pulse of Omaha at present. He stated that it was fully up to standard, and boasting regularly. In answer to an inquiry he said that Omaha people at present are enjoying exceeding good health.

"Well, doctor, how has it been during the season?" asked the reporter.

"It has been quite healthy, except among the children. The mortality among the children has been very great during the past few months, but now the number of deaths have greatly fallen off."

"What is the most prevalent disease at the present time?"

"Oh, malaria. There is considerable malaria in the community and many people are afflicted with it who are not confined to their beds."

"How do you account for so much malaria?"

"It is very easily accounted for. There is so much earth being turned over in Omaha this season. In almost every part of the city grading is being done and this fresh earth causes a great deal of impurity in the air, and this causes malaria. Large quantities of partially decomposed vegetable matter is turned up by this grading and the unhealthy odors from this go forth breeding disease."

"What portion of the city is most affected?"

"That is a hard question to answer. I have not been able to see any difference, it is distributed about equally, and grading is being done in nearly part of the city. The city has been particularly free from epidemics and contagious diseases and on this account the citizens have every reason to congratulate themselves."

"What do you think about the cholera coming to this country?"

"I am of the opinion that this country will be visited by the cholera another season and if such should be the case I cannot see why Omaha should not be infected. This is a sort of half way place across the continent and a great many people stop off here for a day. A large number of emigrants pass through this city in the course of a season and it is from these people that the disease is most to be feared. It would probably astonish the people of Omaha to know that there had been evidences of cholera here recently, but such is the case. I do not imagine, however, that it is going to be anything serious and no alarm need be felt by the citizens of Omaha."

THE UNDERTAKERS.

The undertakers of the city are a sour looking lot these days. They are offering chromos for corpses and yet are unable to get but very few. It is hard for them to keep from soliciting trade these times. One of the prominent undertakers of this city was visited yesterday and asked as to the state of the trade.

"Business is dull," says the man of coffins and stiffs. "It seems almost impossible for people to die now a days. I am thinking of offering a lottery ticket with every coffin sale just to see if I can't stir up a little boom."

"Would that induce people to buy in advance?"

"It is hard to tell. We do have a customer once in a while who buys his own coffin and lays it aside. If I should tell you that there is one man in this city who sleeps every night in his coffin you would hardly believe me, and yet such is the case. Sarah Bernhardt has not got a monopoly in that business. The only difference is that Sarah advertises her bed and this man does not."

"Well," the undertaker volunterly continued, "Our business is a dead one any way. There is very little life about an undertaker's business. Some people think that undertaker's are terribly hard-hearted, but they are mistaken in this. We do not like to see people die, but if they must die (and all of us must) why then we want the job of burying them."

The sextons and grave-diggers were seen also, and they were growling about all times, so the reporter put it down as a sure thing that the city is in a very healthy condition.

Mr. Woodworth's Letter.

OMAHA, September 24.—To the Editor:—Your paper to-morrow morning will doubtless contain a record of the fact that Mr. E. Rosewater has made complaint in the police court charging me with being both directly and indirectly interested in paving contracts with this city in violation of the statutes. His paper of this evening contains a number of statements which seem to have grown out of the ground upon which the charge is made, and, of course, are as false as the support upon which they rest.

I do not deny that, at the time of my election to the city council, I was in the employ of the Union Pacific railway. In connection with this statement is published the assertion that, at the time of my candidacy, the BEE opposed me for that position. This is manifestly untrue. The paper at that time was being conducted by an assistant of the editor, while Mr. Rosewater was absent, I think in the east. This fact may be substantiated by a reference to the columns of that paper.

It is further stated that many citizens voted for me on my personal pledge that I was thoroughly independent of and would atter throw up my clerkship with the U. P. than "wrong" my constituents. So far as this is concerned, I would rather throw up matters of greater importance than the clerkship in question, than do "wrong" to my constituents. But, it is a fact that I made no such pledge, and further, no such pledge was asked or given. My nomination was made on an even Saturday night, and the election took place on the following Tuesday, and my majority was 850. During that time I had but little time to make a campaign, and the fact is, I never spoke to any person as indicated in Mr. Rosewater's article.

In the next paragraph it is alleged that I voted for sandstone. I have no desire to deny the fact. I voted for it because I believed, as I believe now, that it was BRUTAL TREATMENT.

A Crowd of Men Brutally Treat a Balking Horse.

Thursday evening on Sixteenth street as was as clear a case of cruelty to animals as could be seen anywhere. Jake Schriener, the proprietor of the Blue Barn, makes a business of buying, selling and trading horses. He had managed through some of his dickering to get hold of a thoroughly balking animal, and last night he attempted to drive her but it was no go.

He had her and another horse hitched to a top buggy in front of his barn and there they stood and the balking one refused to move a peg. A large crowd of men gathered around the team and every one who came knew of a sure way to start her and each way was, in its turn tried. First the animal was severely thrashed with a whalebone whip but it was like pounding a hitching post.

A sharp stick was procured and with this the poor beast was punched behind the foreleg for several minutes, but without avail. A great big fellow then took to kicking her in the forelegs below the knees, but still, like the boy upon the burning deck, she stood her ground. A twist was then put upon her nose and another dose of whalebone whip applied with just as good effect as the first dose had. Now comes a man with less feeling than the others, and with him he brings a jock-strap which he fastens to the animal under the jaw. Ten or twelve big, strong men take hold of the rope and begin to pull and jerk with all their might. This was too much for the poor beast, and she bleated out like a calf, so great was her agony. The squeals of the suffering animal did not cause the men to desist in their infamous work, but they kept on pulling, until with a loud squeal the horse reared in the air and threw herself broadside upon the pavement. Still they pulled and still the animal squealed, and it was not until the brutes were warned of their danger of arrest that they ceased their persecution. When the harness was unfastened from the buggy it was with difficulty that the animal could be got upon her feet, when she was led into the barn with the blood streaming from the gashes made by the cruel rope.

Men who have handled horses all their lives know that a balking horse cannot be made to go by torture, for such torture only maddens it and makes it all the more stubborn. A man who has not the time and patience to work with a balking horse had better sell the animal or give it to some one who has nothing else to do.

It must be admitted that a balking horse is almost enough to try the patience of a saint, but such scenes as that of last night are not to be tolerated in the principal streets of the city, is barbarous, and men who will thus treat a poor dumb and defenseless animal cannot be counted as higher than heathens.

FOR CHAUTAUQUANS.

An Important Meeting Next Tuesday Evening.

All members of the Omaha C. L. S. C. and those who intend to read the course of the coming year, should attend the meeting to be held in Y. M. C. T. hall, corner of Farnam and Fifteenth streets, Tuesday evening next, at 8 o'clock.

There will be an election of officers, admission of members, and reports of last year's work. A large membership is already assured, but there are hundreds of young men and women in Omaha who would confer lasting benefit upon themselves by reading the carefully arranged course offered by the circles. Few persons realize how much may be accomplished by systematic reading, or how much is lost by the want of such system. The Chautauqua course has been carefully arranged by those who are familiar with the whole field sought to be covered, and the result is a system which commends itself to all classes of society. When such men as President Saelle, of Amherst college, John B. Gough and many others find the course worthy of their attention and read it year after year, there must be in something which would prove beneficial to the masses of society.

Police Court.

In police court yesterday Wm. Hamel, W. J. Johnson and Chas. Young were each fined $5 and costs for disturbance of the peace by drunkenness.

G. E. Evans had been pounded nearly to death while drunk and was discharged, the judge remarking that he had punishment enough.

Frank Hoover was charged with intoxication. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued.

John Lay, Chas. Meyers and August Strubed were arrested for fighting. They all told different stories, and they were held until the officers who made the arrest could be found.

Fanny Leonard was arrested for being a streetwalker. She pleaded not guilty and was held for trial.

Ed. Orland, for stealing $15 from the Buckingham bar yesterday was sentenced to twenty days in the county jail on bread and water.

Communication.

To the Editor of THE BEE. OMAHA, September 26 1884.—My little boy Ray was crossing Farnam at Twelfth street yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, and was run over by a man and woman driving a buggy in a reckless and unlawful manner. The boy barely escaped the wheel, and was stepped on by the horse, and his leg is badly bruised from the knee down. The stocking was stripped off, his pants torn, and his shoe cut open. He was unable to walk to his home and has been confined to his bed since from the injuries received. Protests have been made time and again through your columns against this fast driving on our paved streets, and it is to be hoped some of these parties will be prosecuted and an example made of them.

Pedestrians, as is well known, have the right of way of crossings, but this brute drove right on and over the boy, never stopping to see what injury was done, shouting to him "get out of the way the way there." I have made diligent inquiry but no one as usual in such cases, know the driver of the buggy, so no prosecution can be made.

lying insensible in bed and the other, the older, in a half reclining position with wet pants and boots on, also unconscious. Admission was gained to the room through the transom. Upon examination of the gas jet immediately over the bed, the cock was found at right angle to the feeder, letting the gas escape to its full capacity.

Dr. Parker, Peabody and Armstrong were called in who found the men nearly dead from asphyxia. Restoratives were applied and the men soon began regaining consciousness. The doctors think the men are now out of danger and will fully recover from the poisonous effects of the gas.

The two men are father and son and said they come from Walnut, Iowa. They intended to leave this morning for Missouri Valley.
