

THE CAMP MEETING.

Prayer, Pity, Cigars, Singsongs, Babies and Miscellaneous Matters.

Dangerous Horse Racing.

The Seventh Day Adventists kept up a steady fire at Satan from five o'clock yesterday morning until nine last night. Except during the brief adjournments for meals, they sang, prayed and communed with a steady persistence.

The signs which adorn the grounds, "no smoking allowed," were evidently construed "no smoking aloud" by some of the irreverent visitors, for here and there a poor sinner had indulged in the delectable.

Within the grounds the deep-toned voices of the elders could be heard in pious exhortation as they called to their hearers to repentance or extolled the blessings of the creed, and the younger members of the flock wandered about the grounds, arm in arm, breathing the pure air wafted from the pools and rivulets of the bottom.

The officers preached during the day with most terrific vehemence, eliciting groans and exclamations from their hearers. The grounds were literally filled with babies, whose astonishment at being "evangelized," if the translation takes place soon, may be better imagined than described.

The strange admixture of humanity in a new country could scarcely find a more powerful illustration of the doctrine of the presence of the grounds of Mr. Thomas I. Cole, now a farmer near Nebraska City, who came here from Japan.

Mr. Cole is an Englishman, who, eighteen years ago, was a member of the metropolitan police force of London. At that time he volunteered to go to Japan, then a newly opened country, as one of the agents of the British legation.

His description of that land as it was when he entered it, and of the improvements which he witnessed during his stay there, was exceedingly interesting. He narrated to the reporter the troubles encountered by the legation from the fanaticism of the natives, and earlier days, the attack upon them at the opening of the port of Kobi, at which seven members of the escort were seriously wounded.

At the St. Mary's Avenue Congregational Church, the following music was rendered: Old English Sanctus. Victim, by Hayden. Gloria Patri. Let us Search and Try, Rossini. Rock in the Lord, Spohr.

The opening exercises were interspersed with readings from the scriptures relating to the occasion, and by the recital of Thomson's "Hymn to the Seasons" and Whittier's "For an Autumn Festival," during the sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Willard Scott. (Continued on page 4.)

THE NOTED MAJOR NEWELL

Satisfactory Reasons for His Disappearance Given Below.

The disappearance of Major Newell is easily explained when the condition in which his case now is fully known. It will be remembered by the public that about nine months ago this gentleman was arrested at the instigation of the Consolidated Tank Line company, charged with the embezzlement of between $1,200 and $1,300.

The grand jury of this term, it will not be forgotten, was charged with corruption, some people even going so far as to say that the members had received bribes for voting against a true bill. The investigation by the body proved abortive, no indictment being found against Major Newell.

Major Newell, Mr. A. H. Bishop, agent for the Consolidated Tank Line company, lodged a second complaint against this same defendant, charging him at this time with the embezzlement of $1,000 only. He was examined a second time and bound over to the next term and put under $1,000 for his appearance.

The coming term of the court which convenes next Monday may have had its influence in hastening Mr. Newell's visit to friends. The fact is however that the major has gone and should be no longer at large.

upon the face and saying, "Oh you are too small to talk to you, you can't take us to jail." Peterson offered an explanation but Hiland told him to shut up or he would run him into jail. Hiland then went up the street and entered a saloon with the gang. Hiland has before now been sent out to receive a warrant for his arrest, but he has returned, being afraid to make the arrests. What good are such policemen as Hiland?

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES. The Douglas Street School opened, Higher School to begin Monday. High School yards.

School was yesterday morning opened in the new temporary building erected on west Douglas street, and finished only a short time ago. Owing to the fact that it was not well known that the school would open yesterday, the attendance was not very large. More scholars are looked for to-day.

The principal is Mrs. Ada M. Harris, with Miss Jennie Harris as assistant. Only classes in the first and second grade will be taught here.

The night schools which the Board determined some time ago to maintain this winter will be opened so soon as the weather becomes cool. One of these institutions will be kept in the Dodge street school house and the other on Thirteenth and Pacific. Only one teacher in each school will be employed at first and the force increased as the number of pupils demand it. The Board anticipates some little difficulty in securing teachers in these schools as there has been only one applicant for a position in them.

THE HIGH SCHOOL YARDS. The committee on buildings and property last night let the contract for grading and fixing up the high school grounds to J. V. Craig. The turf will be removed from a strip 60 feet wide on this side of the ground. The yard along Twentieth will be terraced down to the grade of this street and the whole surface re-graded. A gutter running along this whole side. To keep the surface waters from damaging the retaining wall will also be put in. This work will be begun soon and finished at the earliest possible moment.
