ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS,

POINTS FROM THE PEN.

7TH & 18TH STREE'13 How Some of Western Iowa's Criminals are Getting Along at Fort Madison.

Mr. A. A. Davis, of this city, who has been connected with the express companies here, has just returned from a visit to friends at Fort Madison and at Monmouth, Ill., his old home. While Monmouth, Ill., his old home. While receive. I have spoken. Let Spotted at Fort Madison he visited the penitentiary, and there gleaned some facts concerning the condition and doings of some of the prisoners whose names was made to secure a pardon for him, but it was not accomplished, and while others do not think the pardon will be granted, the old man-he is now about sixty-five years of age has had hope kindled, and he is anxicusly watching every day for the pardon to arrive.

Polk Wells, whose career is so familiar to all, has recently got religion, and has so far secured the confidence of his keepers in his sincerity that he has been released from solitary confinement and allowed to run a knitting machine in an out of the way corner in one of the workshops.

Clauser, who was brought back from Colorado about a year ago, to stand trial on a murder committed ten years or more before, is now serving his life sentence, and is at present in the wood-working

The fellow Kempten, who burglarized Tierney's jewelry store here about two years ago, and who was sentenced for Owens, who cashed a railway time check at Forman's store in this city, is serving his third term instead of his first, as was supposed to be the case. He has been recognized as an old offender, and he has a brother in the penitentiary also.

Lyons and Brush, who were sentenced here for eighteen months for breaking into C. B. & Q. freight cars, were re-seen. For the first four months of his imprisonment he was so troublesome that he had to be kept in solltary confinement, but now he is allowed in the workshop. He has made good time since his first bad breaks, and if he continues behaving himself will be out next. August. Crowley worked at Neola at one time and suffered a sun-stroke from which he never fully recovered, and it is could drink, a very little whisky would make him wild.

The City's Finances.

ple, or the existence of a ring of moneysharks, or both, city warrants have been selling of late for seventy-five cents on last time upon a stage. the dollar. There seems no reason for such a share, as it is officially stated that the proportion of cash in the treasury to the number of outstanding warrants is larger than when city warrants sold at 97 He rose from almost nothing and became cents. It is evident, therefore, that either the people do not believe this, or that they fear future extravagant expenditures on the part of the council, or that "bear" ring is in existence to keep the warrants down. Whatever the causes, the fact remains the same, that warrants are being sold at 75 cents on the dollar. At this price no safe investment can prove more prefitable to anyone having a little spare money. The amounts draw interest at the rate of six per cent after presentation. This six per cent interest is not on one dollar interest but only on seventy-five cents instead. Here a man really gets eight per cent on his money, Then he gets the twenty-five cent share, so that if the amount is paid at the end of one year he has made six per cent plus twenty-five cents, on an investment of seventy-five cents which makes forty-one per cent interest on his money. If Surplus Fund, - - 70,000 the amounts are not paid for two years, the interest will then get twelve cents interest on twenty-five cent share, making thirty-seven cents or fifty per cent on the seventy-five cents invested. This will give twenty-five per cent interest to the investor, per annum. There is no loubt that these amounts will not average much over a year before being put so that the investor gets from twenty-five to forty odd per cent.

The fact of warrants being thus sold causes all who can do so to figure in their bills against the city enough to cover this shave on the warrants, so that for he most part the city is really the party which stands the shave, as well as pays the interest. The fact appears then that the interest. The fact appears then that Council Bluffs is paying from thirty-five to forty per cent. interest on money with which to run. Can any business be conducted successfully with such a policy? If a private citizen would have his credit and business ruined by paying forty per cent. for money with which to pay expenses, is it a wise financial policy for a city to pursue? Hardly.

Sitting Bull to His Braves,

Minnesota Bazoo. Braves! Warriors! Your great chie speaks. 'Tis many moons since I gazed upon you, but Sitting Bull has not been idle. I'Mid the palefaces of the right idle. I'Mid the palefaces of the rising suns I have wandered with my great moral show (all for one price of admission-secure your tickets at the wagon and make your own change), and they poured their gold into my buckskin trousers. 'Tis a great thing to be a chief of the warlike Sioux and paint the frontier a ghastly crimson, for when the snows and the scalps are strung upon the ridge pole, he can surrender his braves to his pale faced foes, who proceed to clothe them with Government blankets and fatten them on Government rations. When the finances of his people wax low, and their hearts are hungry for the bug juice and gunpowder of their enemies, the great chief can go in the hippodrome business and be carted about in a palace car and be gazed upon at so much per gaze by the squaws and pappooses of the soldier whose scalp lock toyed with the red man's knife.

For many moons Sitting Bull has been

You have long been idle; your hearts pant for the war trail. Let us be up and doing. Fire water and powder, knives and re-peating rifles we have in plenty, and in yonder hill, wrapped up in a pair of your great chief's second-hand trousers is the gold of the paleface that will purchase more from the avaricious trader. We cannot conquer the palefaces, but we can make it hot on the frontier, and when the second was a second was a second with the second was a second was a second with the second was a second with the second was a seco my young men tire of war, when the soldiers of the paleface become too many for us we can go back upon the reserva-tion, and the more scalps we carry with

OMAHA VIEW

JOHN MCCULLOUGH,

A Pathetic Scene at the Rehearsal of Richelieu,

Chicago Times, October 1.

There was a pathetic scene in the thea tre in the morning, when the members of the company, to humor McCullough, con-sented to rehearse Richelieu, although they knew the management had declared the engagement at an end. Mr. McCulgled through the lines of the great cardinal, now and then uttering sentences from Virginius, The Gladiator, and other favorite plays. At last he came to the curse scene, and there was a momentary gleam of his former fire as the splendid and powerful washing line. lough himself insisted that he would conhis lips. Some of the members of the company who were sitting in the parquet began to applaud, and touched by this sudden exhibition of sympathy, the actor burst into tears. As he wept the fond illusion of power that he cherished seemed to fall away from him. Then the play went on and Mr. Lane uttered a line descriptive of the cardinal's breaking leased the other day, their time being up.

James Wesley Watson, the young man who killed an old man in a little shanty north of Malvern, and who was sentenced for life, seems to be thriving and growing fat on prison diet.

Crowley, who was sentenced for three years for biting a piece out of the lip of an Irishman who he attacked, was also seen. For the first four months of his seen. For the first four months of his testing the despondent actor to speak these instrength. McCullough looked at him in
