STREET'S SHORTAGE.

The County Board Simply Wants Reports in Detail.

There has seen considerable talk caused by the charge of the democratic organ a few days before election that County Clerk Street was short $9,000 in his acounts. It was right on the eve of the the matter in a completely satisfactory showing to the voters without going 100 bushels of corn in nine hours.

through the books in detail.

The law requires that the clerk shall every six months make a statement of unclaimed witness fees and pay the amount of such monies over to the county treasurer, who would then become the custodian of the money, instead of the clerk, This law has been ignored by all clerks, and the county board has never insisted on such a transfer. In fact the matter has been allowed to go along loosely by county boards as well as county clerks. One of the reasons for the precedent thus established is that witnesses generally apply to the clerk and expect to get their money from him. If the "unclaimed witness fees are turned over to the treasurer, then when a witness is to be paid, he gets a certificate from the clerk, presents it to the auditor, the auditor draws an order on the treasuser, and the latter pays it. This red-tape business is avoided by the county clerk keeping the fund and paying from it direct, at least that is one of the excuses given for the failure to turn over the amount on hand at stated periods. The only safe and straight way, however, is to do as the law requires, and the county boards have also been negligent in not demanding such reports and

Mr. Street has allowed himself to be bulldozed by certain attorneys into letting these discrepancies creep into his accounts. The matter has been misrepresented and, I think, Mr. Screet's state ment of accounts, when finished, will place them all right."

Mr. Street, under such showing of facts, should not be condemned until he has had time to present his side of the matter. Then, if not satisfactory, it will be time enough to make charges.

CREOLE LOVE-MAKING.

The Dangers of Courting in the French Portion of New Orleans.

Philadelphia News. Down in the old French portion of New Orleans it is highly unsafe for young unmarried men to venture alone, writes a correspondent. The black-eyed beauties are only too glad of the chance to capture an American, and will resort to all sorts of devices to entrap the unsuspecting youth. In order to depict for our northern friends this peculiar phase of creole character, I will relate the true story of the experience of my friend, Jack Laflance, who fell a victim to creole strategy not long ago.

Jack met the beautiful Melanie at a soirce dansante on the Rue Bon Enfants. Being a good dancer and also a first-class waiter, he was Mile. Melanie's partner for many figures, and by a judicious use of cream and cake gained the good will of Melanie's mamma. An invitation to call next Sunday was accepted, and the vicitor was entreated to "call again" Jack did so upon the Sunday following, and was so cordially received that he repeated rant of creole customs, and he waited right into the snare. On his third call to 490: Exercise (to to 180; Exercise (to 180; Exercise (

Despondency and ill health induced William Ryan, a painter at Dis Moines, to take the poison route to rest and the hereafter, on the 10th.
