Now, aithough the two streets, Fiftsenth and Sixteenth, are impassible until viaducts shall be built across the rai road tracks on each, still the contractors come in and demand their $1.02 per front foot. The t-x is levied to pay this, and that is what the citizens propose to resist.

AN UNPUBLISHED PLOT

Plan to Get Away with Lottic Combes Falls Through

Owing to the Mutual Fear of the Men Creating it.

It has been predicted by many who pretend to know the Forbes gang, that an effort would be made by them to get Lottle Coombes out of the way by fair means if possible, if not, by foul. A vigilant eye has been kept over her by the police. Her goings out and comings in are noticed by the officers and no visitors call upon her without the knowledge of the city's protectors. The woman Rifles this evening in Cunningham hall. A herself is in a constant state of trepldation and she is frequently accompanied to her home by those who fear evil may befall her from certain parties who it is said lie in wait for her. It is the firm belief of those interested in this matter that strenuous efforts have been made to induce her to leave the city. This, how-ever she has refused to do, and fear, it is thought, may drive them to desperation. An unexecuted plot was partly formed, but the mutual fear of its creators prevented its being carried out. The man who first broached the subject gave himself out as one of Sandy Forbes' gang, and was one day last week arrested on suspicion and still is in jail. A proposition was made by this suspect to a sporting man known to be in sympathy with the neighbors that he was not, but intended the Forbes gang, although not in league Ties to be delivered at Council Bluffs, with them, that the latter should hire a carriage and start with Lottie Coombes for the river bottoms. While on his way to this destination he would overtake the suspect, who would accept the proffered invitation to ride. They were to go in the darkness to some lonely point on the bank of the river, where the suspect was to put her out of the way, but by what means had never been determined. The sporting man being almost a stranger to the one who made this proposition to him, fell in with the railroad, yesterday, brought out the folidea, but feared it might be a plan devised to entrap him into statement implicating him with the gang. He pondered over from Omaha to Chicago. The figures the matter for a couple of days and final- are taken from the company's records, It is to guard the life and property of Omaha citizens, whether the man in jail would commit a crime of that kind, and exposed the plot. Upon being told that he would, he went away, but before the day ended the suspect was in jail on the charge of being a suspicious character.

The official to whom this information was given does not doubt for a moment that this plan would have been carried out had not its executors had a mutual fear of one another.

A Great Show.

Saturday night a good audience greeted Salsbury's Troubadours at the opera house. The play presented was Mr. E. E. Kidder's new production, "Three of a Kind." The play gives Nate Salabury their mirth-provoking qualities and they (Nellie McHenry), who spend their vaca-tion on the farm of a hard-hearted Jersey farmer. The farmer, Ezra Whittle, has a pretty ward, through whom an amusng series of events transpire on the farm and in a rickety flat whither the salesmen go when their employer discharges them through an accident in a game of blind man's buff. Nate Salabury as Jack Potts, John Webster as Bob Flush and W. S. Daboll as Phil Straight, all of which three gentlemen in short acts become salesmen, dudes and tramps, kept the audience in continual good humor. Nellie McHenry never appeared to better advantage and fairly captured the audience with her vivacious and saucy ways.

A party of local roughs headed by two brothers known as the Griffin boys entered the Union Pacific saleon on Sixteenth street between Burt and Webster streets, at about 5 o'clock Saturday night. The men were drunk and bellig erent and although the saloon was already full of customers, and workingmen em ployed a finishing some interior work, they made themselves boisterously at at home. The beginning of the trouble is a difficult matter to ascertain. The first intimation that the proprietor, Peter Fedde, received of intended hostilities was the simultaneous rush of the whole gang upon himself and guests. The ruffins seized planks, bricks and Adjourned to Wednesday, December coal and attacked the inoffensive occup-pants of the place without discrimination or mercy. Mr. Fedde was struck on the head and knocked behind the bar, the gang then proceeding to the destruction of furniture and fitting. Portions of the assailants ran to the pavement and hurled bricks and stones into the saloon will receive tenders up to the 31st of yelling and shouting meantime like December for 250,000 Oak and 50,000 demons, The work of wholesale de-Cedar Cross Ties, to be delivered in lots struction was still in progress when of not less than twenty thousand each. Fedde, regaining his feet, secured his pistol from a drawer in the rear of the bar and fired two shots into the ceiling. This demonstration frightened the mol and they fled into the street and disappeared in the immense throng which had been attracted by the tumult. Although some very ugly wounds were received by a half dozen or more of the workmen and peaceful customers, none are believed to be serious. Cuts bruises and contri sions about the head constitute the chief character of all the injuries. Mrs. Fedde, who from her home across the street had heard the noise, and had started across the street to her endangered husband's side has received a shock from which it is yet extremely doubtful if she can recover. Being in a delicate health she was prostrated from the excitement and is still very ill.

A man uamed McKvoy was the only member of the gang captured, although warrants are out for the remainder. Yesterday it reached the ears of Marshal Cummings that just before the disturbance officer Whitmack had been with the crowd, and ran out of the rear door when the trouble began. Mentioning this statement to Whitmack, he immediately surrendered his star, the marshai remarking he wanted no cow-
