

PAPILLION'S CRIME,

The Little Sarpy County Town Pressents a Bouquet of Criminalities.

In addition to the death of the girl Tena Miller, by abortion, which was mentioned in yesterday's BEE, the Papillion Times chronicles the following criminali-

W. H. Haynes, formerly station agent at Papillion, was arrested yesterday or charge of forgery, on a warrant issued by Judge Langdon. The charge was preferred by the Union Pacific railway company, claiming that Haynes had forged : check as agent three days after he was discharged. Haynes says he can explain everything satisfactorily at the preliminary hearing, which will be held before Judge Langdon this afternoon. About a month ago a marriage ceremo ny was performed in Omaha, uniting the fortunes of two Papillion people—Dr. J. C. Klingeman and Miss Mary Brader. To-day Mary and John are not the loving pair of a few days ago, but on the contrary, the once loving wife now charges the husband with inhuman treatment, and has filed her petition for divorce on this allegation. Dr. Klingeman, the husband, claims that his wife was led to apply for divorce by the machinations of outside parties; that if he and his wife were left to themselves they could get along nicely; that ry, the once loving wife now charges the selves, they could get along nicely; that festly impossible for this committee to the step she has taken.

An interesting suit was ventilated last Saturday before Judge Langdon and a jury. Jerry Dee, jr., caused the arrest of Louis Koenig, on charge of assaulting his mother. When put upon the stand Koenig testified, through Hans Breckenfeld, his interpreter, that he was simply defending the children of Mrs. Dee from violence at her hands; that in the struggle Mrs. Dee attacked him with a huge knife, wounding him severely. The jury deliberated three times and returned a verdict of not guilty.

It is reported this morning that Chris. Saelfeld, the shoemaker, went home intoxicated last night, seized a huge knife and drove his wife and children from the house. It's about time for the law to take charge of the numerous wife-beaters in this town. Murder will be the result, if these fiends are not intimidated by the law's stern hand.

They are delighted to attend our mission school, and in many amilies the children carry the only gospel light that is brought into their homes. Mothers have told me how anxiously they watch for the coming of their little ones, with their papers and cards, they are so anxious to read them.

Many of these children are very poorly clothed and any one having any children's clothing, we would be glad if they would send them to the Mission. Clothing for both boys and girls.

The Corbin Banking Case-Matters in Various Courts, which has been pending in the circuit conrt of the United States, was among the cases disposed of yesterday by Judge Dundy. The demurer to the complaint's this county, under a warrant issued by W. L. bill was sustained. The facts as they Orr, Esq., of this city, arrested at Blakesburg are learned were about as follows: Warren borrowed of one Benj. Rotch, of Massachusetts, $500, obtaining the money, however, through one McIntyre, of Hastings, Neb., and the Corbin Banking company, of New York, and gave a mortgage upon his farm. Desiring to pay off this loan, Warren borrowed of the lowa Loan and Trust company, $400, giving the money to McIutyre to pay Rotch, instead of which McIntyre sent the money to the Corbin Banking company where, he being overdrawn, they appropriated the money, in payment of his (McIntyre's) indebtedness. In the meantime Rotch had died and his executors through Judge Hull, of this city, filed a bill to foreclose the Rotch mortgage. Defense was made, but a decree rendered for the plaintiff for full amount our dinner on Friday, December 26th; local interest, and a number of Omaha this was our tenth annual dinner to the people will set their faces toward the rendered for the plaintiff for full amount than now prevail, we might soon see an inclaimed on the ground that McIntyre was creased demand and better prices for iron not the agent of Rotch. The present case was for the purpose of obtaining this money from the Corbin banking company, charging them with a conspiracy with McIntyre to defraud. The bill also charged that Warren's attorneys had sold him out in both the preceeding cases. The demurrer had been twice argued be-fore both the circuit and district judges, and the result is quite a victory for the Corbin banking company.

The court rendered judgment in the se of Christian Neidig vs. the Under- der an indictment for the m writer's insurance company.
