

THE DAILY BEE.
COUNCIL BLUFFS.
 Tuesday Morning, Jan. 20.

Subscription Rates: 25 cents per week by mail; $1.00 per year.

Office: 7 West Street, Near Broadway.

MINOR MENTION.

The police get little game nowadays. One price only at T. N. Bray's shoe house, 102 Main street.

Job printing in the latest style of the art, at Pryor's Bee job office.

Mike Risak now wears the silver medal of St. Joseph's academy.

For a wonder the gambling houses were not running Sunday night.

Leave your orders for job printing a day or two ahead at Pryor's Bee job office.

"Beala's" letter in yesterday's Bee seemed to cause quite a ripple among the young society folk.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning the thermometer at the water works stood at 26 degrees below zero.

The city physician reported yesterday that all quarantined cases were doing well, and no new cases had been heard of.

At Bray's great shoe sale all goods are marked in plain figures and sold to all at the same low prices. 102 Main street.

A number of young ladies and gentlemen propose going to Missouri Valley to attend the masquerade of the Grand Three Thursday evening.

Smith & Loecker, proprietors of the Union Bakery, give as many ounces to a loaf of bread and sell it as cheap as any other establishment in the city.

Pottawatomie Grove, U. A. O. D., is to give its annual ball in Everett's hall February 11, instead of as previously announced.

A musical and literary treat is promised to the people of this city in about a week, to be given by home and foreign talent. Further notice will be subsequently made.

One vagrant booked at police headquarters must be pretty well known for the arresting officer makes the minute under the head of "witnesses," "All of Broadway."

Mrs. Florence Bede has commenced divorce proceedings against J. A. Bede, formerly editor of the Union Arrow, at Tabor. Cruelly and inhuman treatment are the grounds alleged.

L. P. Larson has reopened the old headquarters of the Joseph Schlitz Milwaukee beer, 413 Broadway, and started yesterday delivering to customers. He was in this business two years ago.

"Rise and Fall of the Mountaineer" is the subject of the lecture to be given by that prince of humorists, Bob Burdette, at the opera house Friday evening, February 6. Tickets are on sale at Foster's drug store. Reserve your seats early.

Smith & Harb, the barbers, yesterday rented the store, 402 Broadway, lately occupied by the 99 cent store. They will shortly proceed to renovate it and remove from their present location, under the opera house.

The variety show is getting to be a good deal of disgrace to the city. The police prevented the still further disgrace of having the show run Sunday night, but at 1 o'clock (it being then Monday morning and not Sunday night) a dance started up there.

Sheriff Gultar returned Sunday night from Fort Madison and started back last evening with Von Bulow, who is sentenced to nine months for stealing clothing, and John Hunter, sentenced for a year and a half for burglarizing a house in Hazel Dell.

It has become evident that the heating apparatus of the Masonic temple is better adapted to burning soft coal than hard, and yesterday twenty tons of hard coal were being removed a bucket-full at a time to make room for the other. Wonder if some one will not get out an injunction as in the Bloomer school building case.

The city clerk is preparing the poll lists for the city election, which is to be held on the 3d of March. These poll lists must be posted up a month before. There are to be elected at the coming election an alderman at large in place of P. J. McMahon, an alderman for the Third ward in place of Mr. Keating, and an alderman for the Fourth ward in place of Judge James.

It seems as if the police committee had been spending most of its time in listening to charges against Officer O'Brien, and his explanation of the same. If they have got about enough light on his case, let them take up some other policeman now, and thus go on through the list. Serious charges have been whispered about others, and let them come to the front so that all the truth may be had.

The new road map book lately prepared and just finished for the county, by C. R. Allen, is greatly praised by all who have inspected it. It is pronounced the most complete and most accurate map-book possessed by any county in Iowa. It is prepared from data and by personal survey, and every foot of road is laid down and so drawn that one can see at a glance all differences between an established road and the traveled road. All creeks, etc., are also marked, and the old channels given. In fact, by aid of this book any one can see clearly "the lay of the land" as if he stood upon it, with all the records before him. The new book cost the county only $550, and it certainly is a credit to Mr. Allen's skill and reliability.

A very interesting programme will be presented free to all at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 8 o'clock. All are invited to be present. One of the prominent features is to be "One of the Big Days of My Life," by several of the boys. The noon day prayer meetings will be continued this week at 12 North Main street. A special invitation is extended to our business men. The meeting closes promptly at 12:30. James township is stirred up over a case of scandal. It seems that one of its citizens has been too intimate with a woman, who wants $300 as a bail to her feeling, while he offered only $135. She has had him arrested, and the case was begun before Squire Sutherland at Minden yesterday. James Crow, of Minden, and John Lindt, of this city, being for the prosecution, and J. R. Tatz, of this city, for the defense.

For sale—My book and stationery business 341 Broadway. H. E. Seaman.

THE BLUFFS COUNCIL.

Sundry Business Done at a Daylight Session.

A special session of the city council was held yesterday afternoon, at which the mayor, and Aldermen Keating, James, McMahon, Mylander and Stedtopf were present.

On motion of Ald. James the city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for filling Eighth street, between Eighth and Tenth avenue, and First avenue between Eighth and Tenth streets.

All James offered a resolution appropriating $200 from the general fund for the improvement of Ninth street. Referred to the committee on streets and alleys.

The committee on streets and alleys was instructed to purchase two cars of limestone of Regan Bros., not to exceed $20 per car.

All Stedtopf stated that the work of the special assessment committee was becoming so laborious that more clerical help was needed and on motion, Mr. William Stedtopf was authorized to take charge of the special assessments and keep all accounts and lists in order.

City Auditor Holmes reported that he found nothing in the statutes regarding the city auditor to keep the special assessment accounts, and in his opinion the work belonged to some agent employed by the city council, and who should have a seal of the city. The council is a manager of all the funds of the city, and the auditor had nothing to do with it. On motion of Alderman James the matter was referred to the city attorney and finance committee, with instructions to report, defining the duties of the city auditor in full, and making suggestions as to the carrying out of some plan of bookkeeping.

Adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

A SMALL INQUEST.

The Body of a Babe Found But No Criminal Intent Shown.

Yesterday a boy named Mason noticed in Harris park a little box, and opening it found it to contain the body of a babe not fully developed. He informed Mr. Louis Wyatt, who sent word to the authorities, and Coroner Connell proceeded to hold an inquest. It was ascertained that Mrs. Sarah Bell, who lives north of the park, was the mother, and that Mrs. Lizzie Hoover was with her when the babe was born dead. This was on Friday night last and the body was taken by the wife of the well known colored "Texas," and kept until Saturday night when she put it in a box, and gave it to Texas to bury. He took it to the middle of the park, and not having any nick and the ground being frozen, and the night cold, he simply covered the box over with snow and left it. There was no proof that any foul means had been used causing the death of the child, and the jury accordingly brought in a verdict charging no crime to any one.

A STILL HUNT.

The New President of Iowa's Agricultural College.

No More Car Loads of Pretty School Marms Needed.

Special to THE BEE.

Des Moines, January 18.—The election of Leigh Hunt to the presidency of the state agricultural college creates no little stir among the educational forces of the state. But a short time ago, at the annual meeting of the State Teachers' association Prof. Leigh Hunt, who had before shown an intense yearning to become the president of the association, again appeared as a candidate, and succeeded in being elected by a small majority, but statements were given in regard to the lowest sort of ward political methods had been used in getting him elected, that school marms were shipped in by the carload, their expense of transportation being paid, on condition of their voting for Hunt. The protest being prepared accompanied these statements duly signed. Hunt's friends made a compromise, by which he shall decline to accept the presidency if the opposition would keep mum about the methods used in his election. The result of the election is a great blow to Hunt's wonderful generosity in declining the honor, but Clarkson did not give his readers the other facts about his election. It was generally understood that all that Hunt wanted of the presidency of the State Teachers' association was as a stepping stone to a college presidency. Clarkson, of the Register, is credited with having done the planning, and the scheme was so well fixed up that when the trustees of the agricultural college met, Clarkson had not finished his speech of nomination before Hunt was elected by acclamation, and with great enthusiasm. Thus it is that the Register describes the scene. The public would like to know whether the same sort of method was used in Hunt's election to the college presidency that were used in the other contest. There are many of the leading educators of the state who are not listed among the admirers of Hunt, and his election to this important position causes much dissatisfaction. Hunt is considered by them as a vain man, and very ambitious, reaching out for positions for which he has not the necessary qualifications. The methods used at the State Teachers' association, and the present election of Hunt, has used his cunning to boost Hunt along, indicate that there is a nice bit of secret history yet to be produced.

TRAMP TRICKS.

How Even the Portals of the Halls of Justice are Marked With Their Signs.

It has been known for a long time that tramps have been in the habit of marking the gate posts of houses visited by them, so as to inform other tramps who might follow whether the place was one at which it was any use to apply for food or money, but yesterday it was learned that they even dared to put their marks upon the door of the court room, so as to guide other tramps, and give them hints as to how they could get best treated. The discovery was made by catching a veteran tramp, who has already appeared before Judge Aylesworth, this being his second appearance. As he sauntered out of the court room, after receiving his order, to leave town, he stopped at the doorway and hastily made a mark or two, but not so quickly but that the officer noticed it, and, very indignant at the defacement of the door, began threatening him with another arrest. The tramp, on being pressed for the reasons, finally explained that it was not marks, marks, but simply some marks to help some of his fellow-sufferers. There was a sort of dagger, which meant, he said, "look out sharp," or in other words, "follow these directions or it may go hard with you." It was also an intimation to the coming tramp that the judge on the bench was a mean questioner, and the prisoner should be careful in answering. Then there were two short straight marks, one below the other, both perpendicular. These meant that it would be better for the tramp to represent himself as having worked on a farm, and by two of these marks, that he must not attempt to tell about working at two different places. With some judges it was the tramp's duty to name a number of places where he had worked, as the tramp could dodge about among them and not get caught, but here it was not safe to name too many, as they might get tangled up under the sharp questioning of the judge.

"The farm hand racket" was better here than the railway racket, he said, unless it was that so many tramps had represented themselves to this court as railway men out of employment that it had worn out. Perhaps the judge had a soft side for agriculturists, who when at work got small wages, and when out of work, as was natural in the winter, quickly got out of money. In some courts the "railway racket" worked best. In that case the sign on the door would be two straight lines side by side like railway tracks. There were also a few dots, indicating that if the tramp could squeeze out a few tears in telling his story, it would help. Some judges, the fellow said, "give a dollar to a stranger." This meant that kind of a count. "A little water if it ain't too much of a leak sort of helps out." Another bit of information on the door was a cross and three rude links, like a roughly drawn Odd Fellows' sign. This the fellow said, meant "no changing in this place and plenty to eat." With such help on the entrance to the courts of justice the tramp, who was a stranger, could readily see what was before him, and how he ought to meet it. If he made a mistake then, it would be his own fault.
