Of all the mysterious and terrible features of criminal life in Omaha, there is perhaps, nothing more fraught with mystery than the opium "joints" of the city mysterious, by reason of the dark veil of almost impenetrable secresy which cloaks the resorts and the actions of the confirmed opium-eaters of the town; terrible, because of the throttling of all moral character and physical force, which is an evitable result of the awful habit. The bondage of the poor opium wretch to his dark idol is, once entered upon, never to be cast off. The victim of the liquor habit may, by efforts more or less strenuous, throw off the shackles which threaten him; the oplum-eater rarely or never. Once let the habit be firmly established; once let its envenomed fangs sink into the flesh of its victim and the subtle polson course through his vens, and he is forever doomed. He cannot shake off the coils; they close upon him, crushing out of him all life; he sinks first into spiritless spathy; then blank despair, and finally when the vital energy falls to respond sufficiently to the stimulus of the drug, death must ensue; unless, perchance, the victim first turn

And it was by this latter method that the reporter was enabled to gain an insight into the workings and appearance of the opium lay-out or joint. It will be interesting to observe for the moment its interior appointments and its habitues. Passing through the laundry which occupies the front part of the building, where the almond eyed sons of the Flowery kingdom are bending over their work, the observer passes through a back entrance and up a rickety flight of stairs into a back room where the opium smoking is conducted. Pansing for a moment, one notices that the walls are covered with small bunks or beds, one above another, where the opium victim lies stretched out, enjoying the pleasures of the temporary rhapsody induced by the drug. Examine the outfit which the smoker uses. First, there is the heat the opium or "hop" as the Chinamen call it, and a long "pin," by means of means of which the smoker picks up it is put up in large family bottles and sold or the small price of 75 cents per bottle. The Prospects for Public Improvements this Year.

Paving and Grading to be Done-Policy of the New Council.

Now that the season is wearing on the city officials are preparing for the paving and grading work that is to be done this year. The city of Omaha, in keeping with her spirit of push and enterprise, cannot afford to altogether drop the matter of street improvements at the point identified.

A reporter for the BEE called Thurrday upon City Engineer Rosewater to ascertain some facts this city. relative to the prospects for public improvements this year.

Mr. Rosewater said that there would not be nearly so much work done in the way of public improvement this year as in 1884, and in fact there was no necessity for it. As the city advanced fur-ther and further to a metropolitan stage of appearance and improvement there would be, year by year, less need for ex penditure in broadening, grading, paying, or beautifying her streets. In the city intersection fund there was about $45,000 with which considerable paving could be done. (It is, of course, understood that the city pays for the cost of paving street intersectious only, while the bal-ance is paid for by the taxpayer whose tirely upon the petition of the property owners requesting the establishment of the grade of their respective streets. It is probable that $200,000 will cover the expense in this direction. It is not likely that any sewers will be laid during the coming season.

The appended list will show the streets for the paving of which the city council has already passed ordinances. The list will doubtless be much modified, to suit the exigencies of expense. Farnam street from west line Fifteenth

The funds of the city will not permit the paving of all these streets and some of them will have to be stricken off by the council. Farnam and Sixteenth streets can be paved Twelfth, between Capitol avenue and Davenport and Howard can also be paved, inasmuch as there will be no intersections. Caming will also be provided for in all probability. Thirteenth and Tenth streets will, it is very likely, have to be stricken, as the
