POP GOES THE POP. Injunctions Asked Against Six Council Bluffs Saloons.

Hope Hanging on the Alleged Defect in the House Journal—Saloon Men Starting Cases.

The war opened on the saloonists yesterday, the sheriff personally serving notices in six cases in which injunctions are to be asked for before Judge Connor, at Glenwood, on the 15th.

It is understood that the saloon men propose to make a legal fight, and one of the attorneys retained by them, said to a 23rd man yesterday, that no stone would be left unturned to defeat the attempt to make them close.

The report of the recent decision of Judge Looftbourrow has given hope to the saloon men, it being virtually that there is a fatal mistake in the present prohibitory law, from the fact that the journal of the house does not show that the law ever passed the house, the record showing simply recording the fact that such a bill was introduced, and afterwards that it was passed by the senate.

The fact, as stated by responsible persons in a position to know, is that Judge Looftbourrow has not decided that there is a defect in the passage of the law but in deciding the case, he simply stated that he would issue a temporary writ of injunction, and that he would reserve the decision on that point until the cases came up on a final hearing, so that the point is still to be battled over.

In the superior court yesterday, a motion for a new trial in the case of Scott vs. Richardson was heard and overruled and the defendant given thirty days to prepare a bill of exceptions.

T. Mower, of Cedar Rapids, was in the city yesterday, on his way to Villisca, to attend a meeting of the Southwestern Iowa dairymen's association.

Miss Potter reads and impersonates grandly. Her delineation of Sarah Bernhardt was as well received as her impersonation of Charlotte Cushman and John B. Gough.

At the last meeting of the council an important improvement was started upon, the city engineer being instructed to make the necessary survey for the purpose of establishing a driveway from the end of Oakland avenue, through the corner of the cemetery, along the land of Mr. Rohrer, onto the ridge, where there is a chance for a road a mile in extent, as level as a floor, and presenting a splendid view of the Missouri valley, and connecting at one end with Grand avenue, at the other end with the lake road, thus giving two ways to circle about and enter the city.

The law may benefit the city trade in preventing small capitalists from investing their funds in this class of business, but it works direct damage to all country trade.

This law has been of great advantage to those wealthy druggists who have the capital to invest in several stores, and some have three or four such stores run by young clerks with little bits of pasteboard with three chosen names upon it, which qualification is their for all the responsibilities of pharmacy.

The election of city officers at the council meeting Monday night did not suit the democratic minority of that body, and they are preparing a grand "kick."

The chief point raised on the chiefship of the fire department is that the ordinance, passed just before Walters was elected, provides that the chief shall hold his office for two years, unless removed for cause, as provided in the case of the city officers chosen by the council.

The claim that the old city clerk is still to hold on is based upon the same statute. The ordinance under which the chief of the fire department proposes to hang on, was passed just before Walters was elected, and was supposed to have been framed for the special purpose of making way for his election, the old ordinance providing that the chief could hold until removed for cause, and as there was no cause for removing Chief Templeton, the new ordinance was passed as to let Walters in.

The mayor, of course, takes a hand in the row, and the part taken by him is in the form of a veto. The council at its last meeting passed a resolution that "we now proceed to the election of a city clerk," etc., and a similar resolution was passed just previous to voting on the question of chief of the fire department, and these resolutions the mayor yesterday vetoed, thus in his judgment making the election of both officers illegal.
