The jury yesterday returned a verdict for the plaintiff, fixing her damages at $25,000, which was a surprise to many, even those who expected that the verdict would be in her favor hardly thinking that she would be given such heavy damages.

Two more cases are pending growing out of the same accident, and the final outcome is naturally looked forward to with much interest by the tax-payers of that county.

A mulatto woman from Omaha was here yesterday hunting for her recreant husband, whom she described as a white man, to whom she had been married only a few months, and who disappeared last Monday. The white truant had sought to get even with his dusky father in-law by taking with him some clothing, valued at $50 by the wife, at least. She seemed qui'e as anxious to recover her father's clothing as to recover the husband.

The report that Judge Loofbourow had decided the Carroll county cases in favor of the saloon men, and that he had held that the law was unconstitutional because of a defect in the house journal, is still emphatically denied by those who are in a position to know just what the decision was. The fact appears that the court stance from this bridge. About 5 o'clock she started home in a lumber wagon, acissued a temporary injunction, and left companied by the hired man and seven the decision of the constitutionality of children, their way leading across Farm the law on the point named to be further

HEAVY DAMAGES.

Mills County Called on to Pay $35, 000 for a Faulty Bridge

In the circuit court of Mills county the past week has been taken up with the trial of the case of Elizabeth Cooper vs. Mills county, the plaintiff claiming $35,-000 damages for injuries received by the falling of a bridge over a creek near the town of Henderson, over which bridge she and her family were passing. The details of the case are about as follows: On the 4th of July, 1882, Mrs. Cooper with her family had been attending a celcreek. They entered upon the bridge on
