This gentleman has a fine delivery, clear and distinct. His subject proper was common sense, decency and culture, showing that in all ages and times, wnether among the savage, the cannibais, aunny Itsly or grand America, these combined to make up all that was good and great, and preserved nations. The recitation of a selection from Tennyson's Aenid, by Jessie Wolf, was marked by much feeling. Her voice at times was a little low, but upon the whole she acquitted herself very creditably, and was worthy of the spplauss which followed.
