News of General Interest Relating to Railway Matters-Personals, Etc.

Mr. Elljah Smith, president of the Oregon railway and navigation company, great hurry, which indicates that there is more than two years and has been postsomething unusual in the wind. He left poned from time to time. New York Monday evening and reached here yesterday morning, making the entire trip, which is nearly fifteen hundred miles in two nights and one day. The ruuning time of his train from Omaha west is placed at fifty miles an hour. Division Superintendent O. H. Dorrance, of the Union Pacific, had his special or reputation, either before or since this car attached to Mr. Smith's suit, and assert that the charges contrain and will accompany him out as far as Cheyenne. It has been known for some time that the Union Pacific company is trying to lease the Oregon Railway & Navigation road, and as President Adams, of the Union Pacific, is now out in that country, it is supposed that he desires to see President Smith there, on very important business is the reason

A LIBEL SUIT.

An Interesting Trial Commenced Yesterday Morning.

The Publishers of the Omaha Re publican Held to Answer Charges of Blander-The Testimony,

The suit for libel which was brought by Mr. Rosewater against the publishers of the Omaha Republican in December, 1882, has finally been called up in the district court and the trial is now in progress, before Judge Wakeley. The li-bellous article is as follows: "Mr. Rosewater makes a piteous ap peal to the old soldiers, and if tradition is truthful this is not the first time he has sued for mercy. The other time was when Grant's army overtook the little confederate spy and talked of stringing him up. The fright received there made a spublican of him, but he is a spy and traffer now, and always has been and always will be. The old soldlers will be transmitting all classes of communications.

Q. That is the signature of Mr. Eckert (referring to the paper)?

A. Yes sir, the whole of it is in his handwriting, and the writing on the envelope is also in his handwriting; (the objection to the paper are overruled and defendants except).

Q. What position did you assume immediately after the acceptance of that resignation?

A. I went to Cleveland and remained there a few weeks in the employ of the Western Union until I got ready for coming west, then I came out here as operator and shortly afterwards as manager of the Western Union, which I held for some time.

Q. Duving your connection with the mili-tary telegraph, state how far you were confidentially employed in the transmission of dis-patches by the federal government or officers of the federal government.

Q. During all this time from the time when war was first imminent, or supposed to be approaching up to its very close, were you ever a spy on either side?

Objected to as leading and calling for a conclusion, as irrelevant and incompetent.

A. By a spy you mean that I was employed by either the confederate or union armies to transmit dispatches or communications from the one to the other. I never was employed by any confederate to do their service; and I never was employed by the union army to do any spying. That was not my duty. Q. Did you ever act as a spy in the ordinary sense of the term as against the union cause? Same objection as last made; overruled; defendant excepts.

A. No, sir; I never had any occasion to.
Q. You may state what your political sympathies and feelings were in regard to secession or the maintenance of the union cause during the years 1860, 1861, and 1862.

Having heard that he could get the right party at a house on South Tenth street, near Bell's drug store he went there about 11 o'clock. The place was closed in front, and acting on the directions of a friend he went back through an alley intending to get in at the rear door. In the alley a man met him and after using several vile remarks knocked the old gentleman down. About that time another person came both of them kick ame up and kicked him them hard as they could several times; about the breast and head. Several minutes afterwards Mr. Paynter was discovered and carried, senseless and bleeding, into Bell's drug store, where his injuries were dressed, and then he was sent home, The man who knocked him down is described as being tall, with a black moustache, and was wearing the uniform of a passenger train brakeman. Being aged and somewhat feeble, it is feared that Mr. Paynter's injuries will go hard with
