

LINCOLN.

Incidents of the Day at the Capital of the State.

A Few People Hippodromed by a Pair of Thugs.

The Governor and Treasurer in a Bad Light in Court—Legal, Educational and Personal.

AT THE STATE CAPITAL.

THE HIPPODROME. Reported by The Bee's Bureau.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 14.—The soft glove contest Saturday evening was opened with a friendly set to between Miller of Chicago, and Smith of Omaha, which for six rounds was uninteresting.

At 9:30 it was announced from the stage that an intermission of twenty minutes would take place to allow the merchants, who could not close their stores before 10 o'clock, to attend the contest.

When 10 o'clock came the house did not fill up, so another adjournment of thirty minutes was announced to give the saloon keepers an opportunity of getting their rooms changed.

At 11:30 Driscoll appeared upon the stage and entered the ropes. He is a large, well built man weighing about 225 pounds, with a heavy, rather soft, but very minute Mike Haly on either side.

He is compactly built, hard fish and wiry, weighing about 150 pounds. There was a dispute about the referee during which some party thinking to settle the whole business climbed upon the stage, but was soon ejected by a policeman.

Ed Henney was again upon with John Shedy for time keeper. Ed Miller, of Omaha, seconded Driscoll and John Rhom, Haly.

Time was called and the men shook hands. The first round about which Haly intended to wear his opponent out by dodging and falling.

Driscoll got in one lick on Haly's shoulder, knocking him under the ropes, and Haly struck Driscoll once on the stomach, staggering him. The round ended without interest or harm.

Before the close of the second round Driscoll threw off his glove, and the referee stopped the fight. Haly intended to wear his opponent out by dodging and falling.

the end to be gained is worth all the sacrifice they have made or ever can make. Tell them we watch and pray with them, and that we look with the warmest sympathy upon their struggles, to the cherished goal of our national hopes; that we shall not waver in our allegiance to the grand old cause till the end is reached. Tell them that though we are scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the lakes to the gulf, we are as one man where Ireland's good is at stake.

Finally, we beg you to convey to Mr. Parnell and his faithful followers our heartiest congratulations in the splendid victory which they have just achieved over the Gladstone-Spencer ministry—the authors of the most cruel and infamous regime that has ever covered our country since bloody '68.

In bidding you, dear friend, good bye, we do not tell you that you carry with you our sincerest wishes for your safety and happiness, and, not far in the future, we shall, we hope, have the honor of greeting you again amidst us as the representative of a prosperous people and a victorious cause.

JOHN FITZGERALD, state delegate, Irish national league of America; JOHN A. TERRY, national secretary, Lincoln branch, Irish national league; MALACHI GRACE, president, Celtic club, Lincoln; CHARLES HEGARTY, president, division No. 1, ancient order ofibernians, Lancaster county.

LAID OUT BY LIGHTNING.

A Brakeman on Robinson's Circus Train Suddenly Killed.

During the heavy storm that swept across central Nebraska yesterday Thomas Sullivan, a brakeman on John Robinson's circus train, which had just left Columbus, was struck by a bolt of lightning and instantly killed. No damage to the train is reported. Sullivan's body arrived here on the 4 o'clock train last evening in a rough box, and was conveyed to the depot to Burke's undertaking establishment on Sixth street, where it was dressed, placed in a casket, and will be sent this morning to Des Moines, Iowa, for burial.

Cholera's Third Year.

The cholera usually runs for six years and makes a circuit of the globe before disappearing. The present epidemic is now in its third year and has proceeded from the jungles of Asia as far westward as Madrid and some other places in the Spanish peninsula. Two years ago it raged most severely in Egypt. Last year it was epidemic in Southern France and Italy. This year it resumes its march westward at Madrid. As to the probability of this year's epidemic dying out, it is now possible to say.

Although the epidemic of 1817, the first one known, did not reach America, that of 1820, starting in the same place, was speedily communicated to this continent in two places, each appearing almost simultaneously at Quebec and New York. The disease followed the Atlantic coast westward and north, and did not entirely disappear from United States territory until 1832. The epidemic of 1842 broke out in New Orleans and continued for seven years, but the visitation of 1865 and 1871, one beginning in New York and the other in New Orleans, were of shorter duration. The track of the disease is always along the great routes of travel, and when once gaining a foothold in a country its progress in these days is rapid.

The last severe experience that Chicago had with the cholera was in 1866, so that there are now thousands of people here who have no conception of the nature of the ordeal. While the disease has never been as destructive of human life in this country as it has been in Europe, Asia and Africa, its presence here has invariably filled the people with alarm and excited radical changes in habits, diet and clothing. Probably the fact that Americans read extensively and are well posted through the medium of the press may account for their immunity from the frightful ravages which the disease has invariably made among the more ignorant and wretched communities of the old world.

The epidemics of 1830, 1845 and 1866 caused the people everywhere to adopt preventive measures which were thought to have great efficacy. Care in diet was considered most important, of course, and fruits were almost entirely discarded. Watermelons and cucumbers were looked upon as poisonous, and even ripe peaches and other harmless fruits were perceived to be dangerous.

So heavy were the losses in fruit by fruit growers and dealers in the east in 1830 that for a few years after the plague disappeared no one would raise melons and other objectionable vegetables and fruit for fear that they could not be disposed of. Boiled rice, mush and milk, and bread and milk became the principal articles of diet in many families, and meats and other heavy foods were practically entirely sparingly.

Camphor came into universal use as a disinfectant, and nearly everybody wore some of it on the person. Flannels were worn all summer, and plasters of various kinds were used on the chest and back.

Of course many things were done under such circumstances which were without sense or reason, but the most important measures were those relating to diet. Temperance and simplicity in drinking and eating, at all times desirable, are never more so than during a cholera season. Care in these respects, with cleanliness of parts in and habitation, will accomplish about all that it is possible to do in the way of prevention, and it is none too early for a general adoption of simple and sensible measures in every American household and municipality.

THE BEST WASHING COMPOUND of the day is undoubtedly JAMES PYLE'S PEARLINE. It cleanses the dirtiest and most elegant fabric without injury and with little labor. For sale by grocers.
