THE QUESTION OF VIADUCTS. What Mayor Boyd and City Attorney Connell Think About the Matter.

Charles Francis Adams Answered—The Needs of Omaha Clearly and Strongly Set Forth.

Some time ago the Bee published a letter written by Charles Francis Adams, jr., to Mayor Boyd, on the matter of the proposed viaduct. Mr. Boyd has answered this letter, in an elaborate way, and forwarded with this communication a written opinion on the viaduct question from City Attorney Connell.

OMAHA, July 8.—To Hon. Charles Francis Adams, jr., President Union Pacific Railroad.—Dear Sir: Before I received your communication of the 24th ultimo, you had left the city. As it was the president of the city council, acting mayor, who had the interview with you, I at once transmitted your letter to that body, for its consideration, without comment. You have made propositions in your letter which at the time I deemed so manifestly absurd, that I thought it unnecessary to reply, but have since concluded that I would not be doing my duty to our people to allow such assertions as are made therein, to pass uncontradicted.

Our citizens not only know that Omaha is no longer a country village, but they realize that it is a city of such proportions as to command the respect of the railroad companies here, as well as the very best passenger and freight facilities for the accommodation of our business men.

Union Pacific and Missouri River railroad companies to construct or aid in the construction of viaducts. At the last session of the legislature a bill was passed giving the mayor and city council power to secure and adopt plans and specifications for the construction of such viaducts as might be deemed necessary, and to aid in the construction thereof.

Mr. Adams, in his official capacity as president, speaking of the proposed viaduct on Tenth street, says: "The company fully admits that in its present condition the Tenth street crossing is a standing source of danger."
