The Union Pacific train was delayed yesterday morning, the cause being the burning of a snow shed west of Granger, and an accident this side of there, the drive-wheel of an engine breaking and the engineer being so badly injured that it is thought he cannot live.

The talk about the cemetery breeding disease and death calls forth the fact that the same trustees who were elected in 1861 still hold their offices, and seem to be very vigorous men, despite the fact that they have had charge of such a cemetery for about twenty-five years. The board consists now, as in 1861, of Horace Everett, J. M. Phillips, J. P. Carady, John Hammer and Samuel Jacobs. Aside from all levity the fact is a remarkable one.

Mr. Clarence Judson has found in necessary on account of the demands of business and other duties to resign his position as organist of the Presbyterian church, a position which he has held for a long time, and to the satisfaction of all, he being a skillful and cultured musician. The difficulty of securing some one who could fill the position satisfactorily has been more than overcome by the engagement of Miss Fannie Westcott, who has need become satisfied that there was no for years been the organist of one of the danger at all and that the fright had leading churches of Keokuk. Miss West been foolishly caused.

cott is by no means unknown here, she having in her visits to this city been called before the public, and for several Sundays past has been presiding at the organ of the Presbyterian church, for which position she is now permanently engaged. She is acknowledged to be one of the finest organists in the west, and has some peculiarly strong points, especfally her smoothness and evenness of touch, her wonderful accuracy and perfect time. Having been under the best possible instruction, she has developed her natural gifts, so that in the rendition of the most difficult music she wins just praise from critics, and in the simpler music pleases the people no less.

The Reliance Binder Wins Another Victory in a Field Trial.

On Wednesday last, on the farm of Charles Green, six miles south of Council Bluffs, a field trial of blnders was contested. Any and all binding machines were at liberty to enter the contest, but the only ones that put in an appearance were the Buckeye, Osborn and Reliance binders, notwithstanding the fact that the local agents of the Champion, St. Paul, Dennett and Plano machines all knew of the contest and had been invited by farmers who wanted to buy binding machines, but wished to buy only the one that would do

A large number of farmers and also a number of men interested in agricultural impliments attended the trial.

The first to start in the contest was the old reliable, Reliance with its 64-foot cut with one pair of horses weighing about ,000 pounds each. Going around the field of twenty-four acres without missing a single bundle and only stopping twice, once to change the aizs of the bundle and once to raise the machine.

The Buckeye low-down following the lead of the Reliance making small bundles and choking up, while the Osborn light-binder started last doing little, if any better, than the Buckeye. The Buckeye and Osborn each were drawn by very heavy horses and the Buckeye only cut five feet and the Osborn five and a half feet, while the Rellance cut six and

BACK WITH HIS SCALP.

How the Indian Scare at Ogallala Started as a Joke.

A. T. Flickinger returned yesterday from his western trip having gone through a goodly portion of Nebraska and Colorado. He was at Ogallala during the scare about the Indian raid, and tells the true history of the fright about as follows. It seems that several causes gave rise to the report that the Indans were on the war path, and were following up the old trail, burning everything and killing off the whites. There was a rather serious joke played upon a rather unsophisticated fellow who lives there and whose folks live about twentyfive mi'es south of bogus telegram was shown him, stating that the Indians coming, and he jumping on a horse started in hot hatte for his old home, warning everybody on the read to fly for their lives. Sattlers began pouring into Ogallala in goodly numbers in wagons bringing what effects they could with them, and on arriving there they found the Fifth regiment, colored cavalrymen, in camp, and learning that they had been ordered to look out for Indian raids, the report was confirmed and for days there was much excitement. When Mr. Flickinger left there were still numbers of aettlers camped there afraid to return home. The regiment was still there also is Wanted to Keep the City From Burying Its Dead.

A Claim That the Present Cemetery is Unhealthy,

A move has been started to force a change of the location of the cemetery, the first step being the filing of a petition asking for an injunction against the edd, to Walnut, $2,500. Fairview cemetery association, restraining the selling of any more lots for burial purposes, and forbidding the future burying of bodies there. The petitioners named in the papers are C. K. Hesse, E. St. Paul's church in this city, is visiting W. Burnham, Ed. Mott, Wm. Dorland,

- Martin, and E. R. Cadwell, The claim Is set up that the cemetery is so located that the health of the city is endangered. The cemetery is located, as stated in the petition, in close proximity to a city having a population of over 30,000 people. It is claimed that there are already 5,000 persons buried there, and that there are in the potter's field some 1,000 more, many of whom died of infestious and contagious diseases. It is further declared that the character of the soil in this vicinity is such, being light, porous and full of subterranean channels, that the water from the ceme-tery is carried through this into the wells and springs of the city used for domestic purposes, thus spreading disease and endangering health and life.

the residents in that part of the city is thereby endangered.

Another claim is that the bodles of persons who have died of contagious diseases are hauled by the front doors of the resdences on Oakland avenue, and that this is intensely disagresable, and is unhealthy. In view of all these facts the petitioners desire to have the court grant an injunction restraining the Cemetery association from disposing of any more lots, or allowing any more dead to be buried there.

This petition has been presented to Judge Connor, and he has fixed next Tuesday night, at 7 o'clock, as the time for hearing.

This move will be strongly resisted by the Cemetery association, and the claims made are stoutly denied by the trustees and others interested. It appears that the cemetery ground has been thus used for thirty-seven years, long before any of the residences in that part of the city were thought of, so that those building there or purchasing there knew all about the situation. There are about forty acres in the grounds, and it is estimated that not one-fourth has been used yet for burying purposes, so that the grounds are not crowded. The talk about emallpox cases being buried there is all nonsense, for as is well known such bodies are buried out by the pest house. The very figures set up in the petition show that hundreds of families have an interest in this cemetery and such an interest as is held by the most sacred associations, and they will not be deprived of having the privilege of being laid beside the forms of those to whom they were so attached in life.

The mere intimation of such a move as is contemplated in the petition will cause a storm of indignation, so long as there appears no just cause or necessity for it. It is claimed that all this talk about endangering the health and lives of citizens is groundless, and that the real purpose and hone is that in case the contemplated in the termination of such a move as in some forland, value about $4,000. > the enterprise has led them to seek this way of accomplishing the purpose. There should be the greatest necessity clearly proved before any such move is made, or attempted, and is stoutly insisted that no such necessity will ever arise; it certainly would be an outrage if any other motive should cause a change except accessity. It is getting so popular to get out injunctions that any one may issue, but these who have the ceme tery in charge will resist to the last such an attempt.

THE SHUTTLECORK CASE.

Judge Connor Makes no Order In the Injunction Case After

AII,

The statement that Judge Connor has made an order sending the saloon in junction cases to the federal court, seems to be a little in error, the fact appearing that he has not made such an order. The position taken; by Judge Connor is that no such order is necessary, and that such an order does not affect the jurisdiction of the federal court in any way. He simply lets the cares stand on his docket as now appears, and no matter how he should rule it could not affect the right of the defendants to take a transcript to the federal courts and try to have the cases recognized there. Judge Connor, therefore, simply makes no order either way, and the barden of deciding whether the cases are in the jurisdiction of the federa! court will remain with Judge Love, and if he refuses to entertain them they will be still pending in the circuit court. Judge connor is said to hold the position in other words, that if Judge Love should decide that the cases belonged in the federal court, his order refusing the change would not amount to anything, and if Judge Love should decide that the cases did not belong in the federal court, his order sending them there would be of no aveil. Hence he makes no order at all. The defendants, t appears, capnot be deprived of the privilege of trying to have the cases recgnized by the federal bourt and taking transcripts to that court for this purpose.
